Expanding Market for Oregon Salmon in England.

OPERATIONS IN PAST YEAR

Standard Grade of Fish Handled With Satisfaction by Importers.

An interesting review of market conditions in England for Oregon salmon is contained in a trade report issued by Anderson & Co., Ltd., of London.

"In our report of the 21st December, 1914, we stated that stocks had not been unduly depleted and that there was, in fact, a surplus of salmon on hand at that time."

"Speaking generally, prices in the United Kingdom have not increased so much as might be expected, and we believe in view of the fact that a considerable quantity of California salmon has been and is being imported into this country."

"The general situation was undoubtedly helped by the fact that the American supply was not so abundant as it was in the previous year, and in addition to relieving the demand for the various grades of salmon, it was also a factor in the higher prices offered at prices sufficiently low to attract the attention of buyers in the United Kingdom."

"All grades of fish, with the exception of Garry Spring salmon, have found a market in the United Kingdom. The demand for the various grades of salmon was not so great as it was in the previous year, but the buyers are not so numerous as they were in the previous year."

"The quantity of salmon imported into the United Kingdom is not so large as it was in the previous year, and the buyers are not so numerous as they were in the previous year."
