

GRANTS PASS TURNS SUGAR FACTORY 500

Thousands Cheer at Start of Work on $600,000 Plant in Southern Oregon.

EDUCATIONAL MOVE BEGUN

Experts Prepare for Campaign in Interests of Cultivation of Beets—First Meeting Arouses Enthusiasm.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Feb. 21.—(Special.)—Before 2000 cheering, enthusiastic spectators gathered today for the new $600,000 sugar-beet factory that is being built by the Oregon & Utah Sugar Company, of Salt Lake.

Short addresses were made by Mayor J. P. Truax, Superintendent F. H. Bramwell, of the Oregon & Utah Company, and George C. Sabin, chairman of the acreage committee.

Little Miss Marion Sabin, daughter of Chairman Sabin, turned the first shovel of earth in the excavation work for the new factory. The Grants Pass band played and as the first earth was turned there was an outburst of applause, long and loud.

A giant sugar beet, tinted white muslin was lowered into the first hole. The schools adjourned from 10:20 o'clock until noon when the children might attend the ceremony.

The new factory is about one mile south of Grants Pass, on the line of the California & Oregon Coast Railroad, and comprising some 150 acres. In addition to the land actually used by the factory and the necessary out-buildings, large feed sheds and yards will be used where the farmers and stockowners may bring cattle for fattening on the beet pulp.

Alexander Nibley, secretary of the company, and George Austin, expert in the cultivation of sugar beets and soil conditions, arrived last night. Mr. Austin addressed a large crowd of prospective beet growers here this afternoon at the Commercial Club, where all phases of the soil preparation, planting and growing of beets were discussed. Mr. Austin will conduct an educational campaign in the Valley.

FEDERALIZED GUARD SURE

Regiments of field artillery, 52 companies of coast artillery, 15 companies of engineers and four aero squadrons. This is the exact regular Army programme mapped out by the ex-Secretary of War before the unfavorable reception of the continental army scheme led to his resignation. It represents also a concession by Congress to the men before the National Guard, who urged previously reaching the same total strength by recruiting present regiments up to full war strength and adding to the field artillery arm.

Under the tentative bill, the Regular Army would have an organization capable of being expanded to 275,000 men in war time, and a reserve provision will be included designed to produce annually 75,000 reservists, obligated to return to the colors under call. It will provide also for doubling the cadet corps at West Point and creation of 20 cadet companies to be attached to regular regiments to be trained for entry into an officers' reserve corps.

Bill to Be Ready Soon.

The committee members found themselves in such general accord as to the general aspects of the measure they favored, that it required little discussion to produce the plan of authority on Mr. May to frame a bill which will be taken up for detailed consideration next Wednesday. Mr. May already had prepared a rough draft of the measure as proposed, and he thought tonight it could be whipped into final shape acceptable to all members within two weeks.

While the House committee was busy with this plan, the Senate military committee was working on its proposals for the Regular Army, framing its measure on the basis of the Chamberlain bill, which provides for an army of approximately 200,000 men on the basis of the War College plan of 1912. It is understood the committee plans to make its bill authority through reorganization of the Army, with a peace strength of from 160,000 to 200,000 men.

A compromise between the bills of the two houses will be the decision of Congress as to the Regular Army.

It is understood that the House committee will accept the larger Regular Army plan of the Senate, provided its scheme for federalizing the National Guard is adopted by the upper house.

Federalization Plan Worked Out.

The House measure will undertake the task of federalization of the committee that has power under the Constitution, to take full control of the National Guard in peace as well as war. Under that authority the bill will authorize a minimum strength for the National Guard of 425,000 on a basis of 800 men for each member of Congress; will specifically prohibit the disbanding of any organization by the state authorities and remove present limitations on the use of the force outside the country.

The federalization provisions will exceed the proposals of the National Guard Association's tentative bill in many respects, including the maximum strength authorized. The guardsmen proposed only 500 men to a district. The House committee bill will add provision for a National Guard reserve and for recruiting regiments sent to the front, and will fix the peace pay of privates at $18 a year, second lieutenants $250, first lieutenants $300, captains $500, and higher officers in proportion.

Members of the committee said that consultation with high level authorities has assured them of the feasibility of their plans under the law. They believe that appointment of officers is virtually the only power in respect to the National Guard vested in the states by the Constitution, and argue that with the Federal Government holding the pursestrings and requiring that only those who pass suitable examinations may draw pay, even that difficulty will be removed.

President Has Full Power.

It is proposed to empower the President to draft members of the National Guard into the Federal service in war times, setting at rest immediately any question of conflict of authority over the troops when they are needed for the purpose of the Nation.

To train the National Guard, to supply sufficient officers for instructors at all military schools, where a sufficient body of cadets is under instruction to warrant it, and to meet countless other demands on the commissioned personnel of the regular Army, the bill will add 750 officers, bringing the total up to 7000, as proposed by the War Department in the Garrison plan. It will also provide for an increase in the medical corps and the medical reserve corps, and for the detailing of three

EUGENE, Or., Feb. 21.—(Special.)—About the only thing the average American knows about Newfoundland is either that it is the home of the famous Newfoundland dog or that it was the first landing place of the Cabots—John and Sebastian—on the continent of North America.

But Newfoundland has other claims for fame—more material and more important. This insular possession, lying off the coast of Canada, is today furnishing 3000 of the best soldiers in the British army. The area of the island is hardly half the area of Oregon; its population is approximately one-fourth. The capital of the colony, St. John's, has itself contributed 2000 young men to the British ranks. The population of St. John's is round numbers is 35,000.

In recent dispatches from the general headquarters of the British army these boys—the majority of the soldiers now fighting in Europe—are only boys—have received, individually and collectively, favorable mention for their services. Like the Canadian troops, they have seen much active service since the war began. Like the Canadians, too, they are hardy and can stand the fatigues of long marches and severe campaigns. Life on that bleak island has given them extraordinary endurance. How they stood the heat in the Bardonia campaign is not known—but they must have suffered.

Residents Proud of Soldiers.

The people of Newfoundland are proud of "their boys" as they fondly call them, who are today upholding Britain's cause on the far-flung battle-line of Europe.

A shortage of coal forced the Holland-American liner, "Noordam," on which I was a passenger, into St. John's. Unlike the British authorities at Falmouth, England, the Newfoundlanders permitted us to land. "John explains how I received my information on the situation there.

The whole atmosphere surrounding St. John's is an atmosphere of war. Recruiting signs are posted everywhere; "Lord Kitchener urges young men to respond to their country's call; enlist today." And so forth. The principal topic of conversation is war. The Newfoundlanders were deeply interested in the account of the peace party's trip through Germany. They were especially interested in the Germans' food supply and were manifestly surprised when we told them that apparently—with few unimportant exceptions—Germany was not suffering from food shortage. They made no comments about the Germans, but were enthusiastic in their expressions of confidence in an ultimate British victory—they didn't say "Ailly" very often.

British flags fly from every mast on both public and private buildings. Civilians patriotically wear little flags pinned to the lapels of their coats.

Many of the Newfoundlanders have been killed or wounded in the fighting in Europe. I talked with a young man, a clerk in a men's furnishings store, about the war. I learned that he had three brothers in the western front, all of them in an army hospital suffering from frozen feet, caused by standing in trench water up to their waists. This young man would have joined the colors, too, but defective eyesight caused his rejection as a recruit. Another man told me of a brother who was shot through the hand and shoulder and bayoneted in the side in Gallipoli. He eventually recovered from his wounds and is doing active service—that is, he was the last time he was in the military. When these people speak about their friends and relatives in the ranks they always condition their statements with: "When I last heard from him." They never are certain.

The Newfoundland regiment is known as the "millionaire" of the regular British army. It didn't acquire the name because of the wealth of the soldiers, but because of the high rate of pay as compared with the regular British soldiers. They receive $1.10 a day; the British "Tommy" gets a shilling, about 25 cents.

Newfoundland was asked by Lord Kitchener at the outbreak of the war to furnish 2000 soldiers to Britain. She has already exceeded this number by 1000 and other contingents will be sent later.

"Yes! skidded—and it's up to you. You failed to provide the chauffeur with Tire Chains. Only good luck saved your wife from paying the supreme penalty for your negligence. She's on the way to the hospital, painfully injured, but the doctor thinks she'll pull through. You'd better hurry to the hospital and then report to Headquarters".

How strange it is that disaster must come to some men before they realize that all makes and types of tires will skid on wet pavements and muddy roads when not equipped with Chains.

These men do not appreciate, until too late, that by failing to provide Weed Anti-Skid Chains they expose their families to injury and death.

The time to provide against accidents is before they happen. Don't wait until after the first skid. Put Weed Chains on all four tires at the first indication of slippery going and you will have quadruple protection against injury, death, car damage and law suits.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headaches, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quickly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have scaly skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug stores. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of quickly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, and thousands have headaches every week or every month, and still others have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. It can be done to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, no matter what their nature, take anti-venereal tablets, and the results will be a factory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 100 worth, 25c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick-headache, the most miserable of all ailments, is a terror when A-K Tablets are taken two tablets, and in many cases, the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The rest and comfort which follow, can be obtained in no other way.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K monogram. At all druggists.

INDIANS IN CONVENTION

NORTHWEST FEDERATION IN SESSION AT TACOMA.

Meeting Opens With Prayer by Rev. Who Is So Old That Data of Birth Are Not Traceable.

TACOMA, Feb. 21.—With prayer by Chief Charlie Saticum, of Renton, who is so old that Indians of the present day have no memory data on which to calculate his age, the annual meeting of the Northwest Indian Federation of American Indians opened here today.

Thomas G. Bishop, president of the association, presided.

Members of once powerful tribes in Washington and Oregon and descendants of many Indians who have severed their tribal relations were at the meeting.

Several hundred full bloods are squatters around the Sound, living on fishing and fowl they are able to catch. Owing to the growing scarcity of their natural food supply, many of these old Indians are in a pitiable plight. The association will make an effort to interest the Government in this to the extent of at least giving them an opportunity to obtain food.

The matter of sending a representative to Washington in an attempt to hasten by Congress the Indian claims long pending will also be considered.
