Grandnephew of Zachary Taylor Is Accused.

VICTIM'S WIFE HELD, TOO

Prosecution Contends Pair, Infatuated With Each Other, Plotted Death of Wealthy Planter So They Might Wed.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 10.—T. S. Bradberry, grandnephew of General Zachary Taylor, went on trial today charged with killing P. G. Jenkins, at Sherrill, December 26, 1915. Mrs. Johnnie Jenkins, widow of the planter and heiress to his $100,000 estate, will answer to an indictment charging her with being an accessory to the murder, at the conclusion of Bradberry's trial.

The state contends Bradberry's infatuation for Mrs. Jenkins prompted the murder.

P. G. Jenkins was shot dead as he stood in a lighted doorway opening on the back porch of his home on the night of December 26, 1915. Next day Bradberry, who was Jenkins' plantation foreman, was arrested, charged with the actual murder. Two weeks later the Jefferson County grand jury accused Mrs. Jenkins of being an accessory.

Soon after Bradberry and Mrs. Jenkins were indicted, T. G. Parham, prosecuting attorney, issued a statement, which said:

"We have discovered evidence that Bradberry and Mrs. Jenkins were infatuated with each other and that they plotted to get Jenkins out of the way that they might be free to marry. At the trials we will attempt to prove that Mrs. Jenkins sent her husband out on the porch to get her a drink of water, knowing that Bradberry was lurking outside in the darkness waiting to shoot him down."

The Treatment of Influenza or La Grippe

It is quite refreshing these days to read of a clearly defined treatment for Influenza or La Grippe. In an article in the "Lancet-Clinic," Dr. James Bell, of New York City, says he is convinced that too much medication is both unnecessary and injurious.

When called to a case of influenza, the patient is usually seen when the fever is present, as the chill which occasionally ushers in the disease, has practically passed away. Dr. Bell then orders that the bowels be opened freely with salts. "Acetone" or citrate of magnesia. For the high fever, severe headache, pain and general soreness, one anti-kamela tablet every three hours is quickly followed by complete relief. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headache, neuralgia and all pains.

The Everlasting Fig Leaf!

Once Eve had tasted the charm of clothes the Garden of Eden held no further attractions for her. Every woman likes to be dressed becomingly. She likes her friends' faces to mirror their admiration. And she likes to see the new styles and to read about them.

Perhaps that is the reason women find the advertising columns of The Oregonian so interesting at this season of the year.
