Breyman, of the Forestry Association. Mrs. Frederick Eggert was chosen vice-president and Mrs. Martha Fullman French secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be for installation and will conclude the year for the club.

New members were added and interesting discussions were held. The movement to send women to the National political conventions was indorsed. Much interest will center around the annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse Association, which will be held Tuesday, April 25, in the library. Pictures will be exhibited, showing some of the activities of the association. The Visiting Nurses have done a vast amount of practical philanthropic work among the sick and suffering of the city and have deserved the support they have received. Mrs. Robert Dieck is president. Many prominent matrons are members. The annual meeting, it is anticipated, will be well attended.

Miss Webster is planning the visit of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who, with a party of Eastern suffragists, is touring the country in a special car. Several prominent women are planning to entertain the visitors. The Presidents' Club will not, however, give any special entertainment. This was decided yesterday at the meeting.

* * *

The Sorosis Club, of The Dalles, entertained the business women and teachers of that city recently in Lemke Hall. The elaborate decoration and the dainty refreshments, supplementing the programme, made an ideal evening.

Mrs. Siemon Bolton and Mrs. C. J. Bright presided at the table. Mrs. N. A. Bohn and Mrs. M. Z. Donnell acted on the reception committee. The entertainment committee included Mrs. E. O. McCoy, Mrs. B. L. Carson, Mrs. J. H. Weiss and Mrs. George Grobel. The big feature of the evening was the violin playing of Miss Lenore Gregory, of Portland.

The Dalles Daily Chronicle, in commenting on the work of Miss Gregory, said: "She plays wonderfully." Mrs. Alexander Thompson presided. Others who took part in the programme were Miss Alma Brune, Miss Lucile Cummins, Miss Mildred Bettinger, Mrs. Edward Ball and Rev. and Mrs. Frank Maples.

STYLE TIPS FROM PORTLAND STORES

APPARENTLY insignificant details of costume are sadly neglected by many professed followers of elusive Dame Fashion. But Dame Fashion cannot allow a beautiful garment to cloak an unbecoming frock nor lessen the ill-effect of other details. For that reason this season heed is being paid to smaller things.

The novelty shops and counters are full of little vanities which delight every woman. The vanity cases of the season seem much more attractive than before. There are silk and ribbon bags, collars, novelty pins and trinkets.

Some of the quaintest little brooches, with near-gems that are obscure enough to seem real, are among the new novelties. The vanity bags are becoming more and more adapted for being tucked out of sight, but are not a bit less pretty. The small silver and enameled ones on a short chain are greatly used.

The ribbon or silk bag has a wide variety of uses. Some have little tassels dangling from freaky corners. Others are on rings that draw up with bright ribbons. Many are extremely like the ones carried by belles in the days when mits and crinoline began their reign. Cretonne made in novelty bags, though it has been done before, is called new today. The flowered cretonne bag is in tone with many colors and serviceable and pretty.

For a long time cords have been used in petticoats, but only recently was feather-boning adopted to make rippling silk petticoats seem still wider. The feather-boning is used sparingly and rescues the wearer from the burden of several skirts. A light feather-boning is run along the very bottom of a silk skirt and the effect is surprising.

Only yesterday some cretonne hats made their appearance in a hatter's window. They are very attractive and right in the trend of fashion, for the brims are wide and sloping and the crowns novel. On one the striking design is a bright bird, on another a vivid flower, and on still others bunches of attractive fruits. Scenery on others gives the effect of old tapestry.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

ENCOURAGING reports from the different departments of Y. W. C. A. work were given at the regular board meeting on Tuesday; ninety-seven new members were enrolled in the swimming pool department during the month. Situations were found for 227 through the employment department; sixty-eight women sent by physicians are receiving special attention in the physical department.

The Norwegian, the Swedish and the Finnish clubs each had club parties during the month. The Wegfaf Bible Study Club also had a jolly evening with their friends and the regular monthly get-acquainted party was held.

Miss Lina B. James and Miss Jessie R. Burton attended the Willamette Valley Y. W. C. A. student cabinet conference, which was held at Pacific University at Forest Grove, April 7 to 9. Miss James gave a talk on the Y. W. C. A. movement and Miss Burton conducted the closing vesper service on Tuesday.

Miss Mabel Stegner, Y. W. C. A. director of household economies, has given a number of talks before Parent-Teacher Associations on the feeding of children and she at present is giving a series of weekly talks at the Behnke-Walker Business College on food and food values.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

BY LILIAN TINGLE.

PORTLAND, April 5.—Would like directions for making sachet powder from rose petals; also for beads made of powdered petals, not the black beads. Thanking you. MRS. S. E.

ROSE SACHET POWDER, No. 1.—One-half pound dried rose leaves, 2 ounces tonka beans, 4 ounces powdered orris root, 2 teaspoons dried and pounded lemon rind, 2 drops almond oil. Mix and keep in jars until needed for sachet bags.

Rose sachet powder, No. 2.—One-quarter pound dried sifted fragrant rose petals, 2 ounces ground sandal wood, a few drops rose oil. Mix and keep tightly covered. Fill small bags as needed.

Rose sachet powder, No. 3.—One-quarter pound dried rose petals, 2 ounces lavender flowers, 6 ounces powdered orris root, 10 grains powdered musk. Keep closely covered until needed.

Rose sachet, No. 4.—One-half pound rose petals dried, 2 ounces lavender flowers, 1 ounce coriander seed, ¼ ounce whole mace, ¼ ounce whole cinnamon, ¼ ounce whole cloves, 1 ounce dried musk leaves, 1 ounce dried lemon verbena leaves, 1 ounce dried sweet balm, 2 ounces orris root, 1 ounce sandal wood. Mix and keep in a closely-covered jar.

Rose beads from powdered petals.—Dry fragrant red rose petals, rub to powder and sift through a fine sieve. Mix with gum tragacanth, knead smooth and mould with the hand into beads of the desired size. Add a little carmine if red beads are desired. A lighter tint may be obtained by adding talcum powder to the mixture. If a strong perfume is desired, add a few drops of rose oil or of tincture of musk. Dry on pins, stuck into a soft wooden board. String with any preferred mounting beads, or make large beads and use in place of sachet bags.

THE SANDMAN STORY

BY MRS F.A.WALKER.

Benny Brown's Battle.

BENNY BROWN sat on the bank of the river down in Georgia fishing. Benny was sleepy, for the sun shone warmly on the water, but the howl of animals back in the forests kept him awake—for it was more than 100 years ago that Benny lived, and he was a lad right in the midst of the excitement of the Revolutionary War.

So as his cork bobbed, his head nodded. Then suddenly he sat up and gazed in wonder, for around the bend in the river came four stately ships of war. On board he could see big guns peeping over the side and men in blue with swords dangling about their knees.

"The British sloops," he cried in astonishment, "going up the river and all the American troops away. Father will be back at dawn from the Army, but what good will that do?" And poor Benny set up a shout that was soon answered by three other American boys who had been fishing farther down the stream.

"There are no men at home now," explained Benny, when his comrades had gathered about. "But some are due tomorrow, for my father gets home early in the day. It is up to us, boys, to keep that fleet—can we do it?"

There were Bob, Fred and Harold, besides himself, making four in all. So Ben sat still with his head in his hands, while the other boys watched the ships sailing toward them. Presently the little fleet dropped anchor and came to rest about a quarter of a mile off shore.

"I have it," exclaimed Benny, starting to his feet, "we can fool those English and capture their ships all by ourselves if you fellows will just follow me." Then he explained what they were to do. Harold knew all the Army bugle calls and had an instrument with which he could send the notes trembling far over the river so he ran home for it, while Benny explained the plan to the others. Fred was an expert at drumming and happened to have brought his best one along.

"My plan is this," said Benny. "We must make the British believe that the American troops have just arrived, but the best plan will be not to do the work till after sunset. Then we can manage it easily. Now all of us get to work and build big bonfires on all of the eight hills in sight. That will keep us busy till supper, and after you fellows have had supper come here as quickly as you can. That captain will think we have 10,000 troops here and father can make him surrender."

So all the hot afternoon the four boys worked like beavers dragging brush and dead planks to the top of the hills till each one was crowned with a huge pile of brush. The English ships lay still in the bend of the river and did not notice anything unusual going on around them.

But as soon as darkness crept over the land big bonfires began to pop out. First one, then another blazed forth till every hill was a beacon light. Then Benny had Harold walk along the meadow sounding his bugle as if calling troops to camp, while Fred on another lowland beat his drum loudly as if he also were carrying orders to soldiers.

All night there were to be heard the shrill calls of a bugle and the stately roll of a drum echoing from the hills. When dawn drew near Benny ran home to greet his father, who had just arrived. In a few excited words he told his story.

"Write a note to that British captain demanding his surrender, telling him it is useless to delay, that the American troops are on all sides," cried the boy. "Then take it out yourself under a flag of truce."

Within half an hour this was done, and by the time the first rays of the sun dipped on the water the English Captain, believing he was in the hands of the enemy, surrendered to Benny's father. And a very much ashamed crew were the British sailors when they marched ashore to see that four American boys had captured their entire fleet.

JUDGE AIDS INJURED MAN

Applicant, With Broken Leg, Is Sent to County Hospital.

A broken leg, especially when one is without funds, is somewhat of a problem. William Jordan solved it by applying to Municipal Judge Langguth.

"I want to be sent to jail so I can have treatment," he told the court.

"I thought he could get as good treatment, without vicious companionship, if he was sent to the County Farm's hospital," commented Judge Langguth, after he had made arrangements for Jordan's reception there.

Clarke Treasury Funds Grow.

VANCOUVER, Wash., April 12.—(Special.)—Approximately $540,000 of county funds was on deposit April 1, as against $318,190 on March 1, according to a report made by L. G. Conant, County Treasurer. During March taxes to the amount of $257,144.81 were collected.

JITNEY OFFENDERS LOSE

Council Takes Stand Against Renewing Revoked Permits.

The City Council yesterday took a firm stand against regranting jitney driving permits to men whose permits have been revoked by the Council for cause. A lengthy petition signed by Jitney Drivers' Union officials, Municipal Judge Langguth and others, asking for the regranting of a permit to Mike Kumles was rejected by the Council.

Kumles lost his permit for violation of the traffic ordinance and reckless driving. The Council decided by unanimous vote that revocation of licenses will mean that jitney drivers will be put out of business for at least one year.
