

REVOLT IN DUBLIN ENTIRELY CRUSHED

All Rebels Surrender; City Is Safe.

PRISONERS SENT TO ENGLAND

Country Districts in Region of Outbreak Are Quiet.

LEADERS ARE GIVEN UP

Terms of Unconditional Surrender Accepted by Irish Republicans—Arms Being Turned Over at City of Cork.

LONDON, May 1.—All the rebels in Dublin have surrendered and those in the country districts are doing likewise, according to an official statement issued this evening.

The statement says: "All the rebels in Dublin have surrendered and the city is reported quite safe. The rebels in the country districts are surrendering to the mobile columns."

"There were 1000 prisoners in Dublin yesterday, of whom 489 were sent to England last night."

"It is reported from Queenstown that hopes were entertained that arms would be handed in today in the city of Cork."

Surrender Is Unconditional.

"During the night of April 28-May 1 the rebels in Ennisceorthy made an offer to surrender their leaders and their arms on condition that the rank and file be allowed to return to their homes. They were informed that the only terms that could be entertained were unconditional surrender. These terms were accepted by them at 6 o'clock this morning. It was reported later that the rebels were surrendering today on these terms."

A column composed of soldiers and regular Irish constabulary captured several prisoners in the neighborhood of Ferns today.

"Wicklow, Arklow, Dunlavin, Baginbally and New Ross and the counties of Cork, Clare, Limerick and Kerry are generally quiet. The whole of Ulster is quiet."

DUBLIN, via London, May 1.—A return to normal conditions is being accomplished gradually in Dublin, and it now is possible to give the first complete account of the happenings of the last week.

Censorship Is Ended.

Hitherto, news of the Dublin uprising has reached the outside world in fragmentary form, owing to the interruption of telegraphic communication, the censorship and the frequent conflict of statements, but the collapse of the rebellion has removed these conditions in great part and the story of the uprising from the time it began, last Monday, may now be given in proper sequence, in the light of information obtained from authoritative sources.

When the irreconcilable opponents of British rule in Ireland proclaimed the republic, their move was looked on generally as a mere display of fanaticism. It was soon found, however, that it was no mere demonstration, but an outbreak which had behind it a fair organization and sufficient force to strangle the life of the capital and compel the authorities to send for military assistance from England.

Authorities Not in Dread.

At no time, however, did the military or civil authorities consider the rebellion a menace to the government, nor did they have any fears as to their ability to cope with it quickly as soon as its extent became apparent. What occurred was as follows:

Monday—The first move was a dash by members of the Sinn Fein into the general postoffice. Many of these men were in the uniform of the Irish volunteers, a body formed at the time men of Ulster organized against granting home rule to Ireland, the object being to resist any attempt by Ulster to oppose the Home-rule law. The party worked quietly, compelling all the officials to quit their posts while they cut telegraphic communications with the rest of Ireland and with England.

The rebels posted sentinels and prevented any soldiers or policemen from entering the building.

Soon afterward firing opened in the neighboring streets, for the rebels immediately shot down any man in khaki.

Rebels Spring Surprise.

The authorities, unprepared at first to deal with the uprising, ordered the police and soldiers to retire at once to their quarters, none of them being armed. In the meantime the rebels established themselves at the City Hall, Liberty Hall and St. Stephen's Green and also occupied many houses in Sackville street and the side streets leading to it.

The sentries patrolled blocks in the center of the city and sharpshooters took up positions on the roofs and at the windows of houses. An attempt was made to seize Dublin Castle, but the guard of Royal Irish constabulary and soldiers prevented the rebels from getting beyond the gate, at which they killed the policeman on duty.

The authorities were powerless, with the forces at their disposal, to dislodge or attempt to combat the rebels, who, however, made a great mistake, which eventually cost them dear. They either forgot to seize the telephone exchange

SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—(Special.)—From Seattle to the Arctic Ocean by steamship and thence by pack train and river canoe to Kianna, the northernmost mining settlement and fur center in the world, and thence across the barren tundras from Kianna to Cordova by dog team, and thence back to Seattle by steamship is the bridal journey which Mr. and Mrs. Sam Magids have just finished. They made the last lap on the steamship Northwestern. They brought with them six fine Malamute dogs.

They left Seattle for the Arctic last Spring and spent the Summer and part of the Winter at Kianna, many hundreds of miles north of Nome. Early in March they decided to return to Seattle and left Kianna for the Koyukuk River, a journey of several hundred miles through uninhabited territory and across treeless plains and blizzard-swept snow fields.

Motorists Charge Holdup by Rescue Teams Near Comstock.

ROSEBURG, Or., May 1.—(Special.)—Nearly a score of Roseburg's business men viewed the mudhole north of Comstock today, which has been the Waterloo of so many early-season tourists. The tourists claim that exorbitant prices are charged for hauling them through the 3000 feet of bog, statements of charges paid varying from $2.50 to $15.

Tourists cast suspicion on some of the road-working forces, hinting at a conspiracy to hold up the motor parties. One or two teams do nothing but wait for cars as they come to the stretch of bad road.

CRISIS IS PASSED, BERLIN ANNOUNCES

Censor Stops Forecasts of Reply.

ISSUE MUST BE SETTLED

Official Statement Declares Apprehension Is Over.

MOST OF PAPERS SILENT

German Leaders Are Warned Not to Expect Congress to Take View Different From That of President in Dispute.

BERLIN, via London, May 1.—Future German-American relations probably can be looked forward to with less apprehension.

The Associated Press is permitted to make this statement, although dispatches bearing on the nature of the German reply to the American note respecting submarine warfare have been stopped by the censorship.

The deliberations at General Headquarters have been concluded and Ambassador Gerard will leave tonight for Berlin, arriving here Tuesday afternoon.

The German reply is expected with little delay, but it is considered undesirable that preliminary indications of the nature of the note should be published abroad.

Decision Rests With Wilson.

Discussions over the answer to the American note continued Sunday at general headquarters without a conclusion being reached, according to a dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger.

The newspapers for the most part still refrain from comment. Theodor Wolff, in the Tagesblatt; Georg Bernhard, in the Vossische Zeitung; Count von Raventzow, in the Tages Zeitung; and the Tagliche Rundschau, however, give some consideration to the subject. Herr Bernhard considers the situation still grave and voices a warning against too great optimism. He declares that the final decision "depends solely" on President Wilson.

"There would be no greater mistake," he says, "than the expectation that the American Congress might reach a different decision than the President. The time for exercising influence on the American people and their representatives is past. It is not doubted now that Congress stands behind President Wilson; the German leaders who have the task of framing the German answer must remember this."

Final Settlement Is Hope.

"We could understand any decision, no matter what it is, under the self-understandable condition that it preserves Germany's dignity."

"But there must be no halfway measures," says Herr Bernhard, "and the decision must create a final and enduring status." He argues that if it is impossible to attain with certainty a status that will endure, it will be (Continued on Page 4, Column 2.)

PAIR ARE JAILED AS MOTORCAR BANDITS

ARREST MADE AFTER CHASE OF FIVE MILES.

Farmer Is Held Up Near Cottage Grove—Youths Admit Stealing Auto in Seattle.

EUGENE, Or., May 1.—(Special.)—Two 19-year-old motorcar bandits were arrested at Comstock, Douglas County, tonight, by Deputy Sheriff Green Pitcher, of Lane County, who pursued the boys across the border, after they had held up Abe Emerson, farmer, on the roadside near Cottage Grove.

The youthful highwaymen operated without masks, in broad daylight. They drove up to Emerson, and, stepping from the car, which they had stolen in Seattle, one boy pointed a gun at his head, while the other searched him. Emerson was without money, but the boys took his empty purse.

Sheriff Parker early today heard that the two boys had been seen in the vicinity of Cottage Grove, and that they were acting suspiciously. He telephoned to Deputy Sheriff Pitcher, but the boys had passed through the town before he started on his trail. He overtook them after a chase of five miles. They submitted to arrest without resistance.

The boys said their names were Wilford McDewitt and Leroy Hess, and their homes were in Seattle. The car they admitted having stolen in that city Thursday night, at 9 o'clock. They asserted that they held up Emerson because they had run short of funds with which to buy gasoline.

According to McDewitt, it was the first hold-up they had attempted. The officers found several purses in their possession. The gun, a .32-caliber revolver, comparatively new, McDewitt said they had found on the roadside near Vancouver.

California was given as their intended destination.

Sheriff Parker tonight telegraphed the officers at Seattle, telling of the arrest.

ISLANDS WILL NOT GET INDEPENDENCE

Administration Bill Is Beaten, 213 to 155.

MEASURE VIES FOR SESSION

House Conferees Instructed Against Time Limit.

FILIPINO BITTER IN DEFEAT

Appeals of Democratic Leaders Are Ignored and Jones Bill Is Substituted for One That Had Indorsement of President.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Administration's fight for the Senate Philippine bill with its Clarke amendment authorizing independence for the islands within four years was lost in the House tonight.

After voting 213 to 165 to strike out the Clarke amendment the House by a vote of 251 to 17 passed as a substitute for the entire measure the Jones bill, providing for a greater measure of self-government in the Philippines and carrying a preamble declaring the intention of the United States to grant independence ultimately but without fixing a date.

Administration Protest Ignored.

Over the heated protest of Administration leaders, the House, by a vote of 293 to 154, instructed its conferees not to agree to any declaration setting a definite time for granting to the island their independence. Speaker Clark named Representatives Jones, of Virginia, and Garrett, of Tennessee, Democrats, and Towney, of Iowa, Republican, as conferees.

Now the bill goes to conference between the two Houses, with the opponents of the Clarke amendment asserting that it is dead at least for this session of Congress.

The House remained in session until late tonight to take the final vote. Thirty Democrats joined the solid Republican majority in defeating the Clarke amendment, which had received unqualified indorsement from President Wilson. It was the first marked victory of the year over any part of the President's legislative programme and the Republicans were noisily jubilant over it. After each victorious vote they applauded for several minutes and by way of mocking the Democrats emitted repeatedly the famous "rebel" yell of the majority. Democrats accepted their defeat in silence.

All Proposals Are Voted Down.

The Democrats who voted against the Clarke amendment were: Allen, Ohio; Bailes, Michigan; Bruckner, Carey, Conry, Dale, Dooling, Driscoll, Farley, Fitzgerald, Flynn, Griffin, Hubbert, Maher, Patten, Ploridan and Smith, New York; Coady, Maryland; Egan, Hamilton and Hart, New Jersey; Ekropol, Louisiana; Gallagher, McAndrews and McDermott, Illinois; Galivan, Oines, Phelan and Tague, Massachusetts.

ALL LIBRARY MAY BE USED IN COURT

LATITUDE GIVEN ALLEGED LIBELER OF WASHINGTON.

Paul H. Haffer, of Tacoma, Declares "Halo Lifting" Was Only Antidote to Hero Worshipers.

TACOMA, Wash., May 1.—(Special.)—Paul H. Haffer may move all the volumes from the public library to the Superior Court to prove that George Washington was a tippler and a bit profane at times. Judge Card held that Mr. Haffer had a right to present proof to substantiate statements he made in a newspaper when he wrote disparagingly of the Father of his Country. Mr. Haffer's defense is based on published accounts of Washington's life.

In the trial today Mr. Haffer said he became a "halo lifter" only when he saw persons become hero worshippers. It was to set them right, he said, that he penned the letter which brought him notoriety.

When the defense began its case, Colonel Albert E. Job, who brought the charge of defamation of Washington's character against Mr. Haffer, was called.

"When I read the article," he said, "I felt that I had been struck a blow in the face."

"Are you any relative of the deceased?" asked the examiner.

"No immediate relative," he answered, "I don't claim any blood relationship. I have never run it down. I am no other relation except that of a patriotic American citizen."

"How did you feel when you read the article?"

"My face was flushed and burning with righteous indignation. Those who saw it will tell you so."

COURT SETS ASIDE DECREE FOR BACON

Victory Over Bard of Avon Short-Lived.

JUDGE TUTHILL YIELDS POINT

Jurist Admits He Acted Without Authority in Case.

REHEARING TO BE SOON

Horace's Line, "The Mountains Labored and Brought Forth Mouse," Quoted by Judge Who Had Called Shakespeare Faker.

CHICAGO, May 1.—(Special.)—The victory of the Lord Francis Bacon over William Shakespeare in the Circuit Court was short lived. Judge Richard S. Tuthill, who delivered a stunning blow to "Bill Shakespeare" 19 days ago, announced today that he would set aside his world-famous decree, in which he transferred the Bard of Avon's literary laurels to the brow of Bacon in order that Chief Justice Frederick A. Smith may hear the case and draw his own conclusions on the greatest literary controversy the world has ever known.

The meeting of judges in Chief Justice Smith's chambers, called to adjust a matter "affecting the dignity and standing of the court," was no more than five minutes' long.

Judge Tuthill Apologizes.

Half of the 20 judges of the Circuit Court announced the call, but only five were present during the actual "meeting," namely: Chief Justice Smith and Judges Jesse A. Baldwin, Thomas Taylor, St. Oscar M. Torriason and Richard S. Tuthill. The latter opened the discussion by addressing Chief Justice Smith thus:

"I want to say, Judge, that if I have been discourteous to you in any way it is my desire to apologize; if I have taken a case to hear that you think you ought to hear I will set aside my decree and you may hear it."

"I will hear it," replied Judge Smith. "That ended the meeting and Judge Tuthill, Baldwin, Torriason and Taylor left the room."

As Judge Tuthill passed through the courtroom into the corridor he quoted from "Ars Poetica" of the Latin poet, Horace, following it with a translation, as follows: "Tartarum montes nactus ridiculus mus"—the mountains labored and brought forth a ridiculous mouse."

If Judge Tuthill had been quoting Shakespeare or Bacon, according to his view of the controversy, he probably would have said, "Much ado about nothing."

As Judge Baldwin was about to reenter his own chambers he offered the following statement for publication:

"Judge Tuthill, I understand, has had feelings toward me for having stirred up the matter. I want to say that there was nothing personal in the part I took in this affair."

Collision Is Charged.

"I am head of the Chancery division, and a law judge called my attention to the fact that there was an appearance of collusion between the parties in this case. The evidence of collusion is in the files themselves. They speak for themselves. I merely considered it my duty to bring the matter up on the basis of this evidence."

It was announced that Judge Smith will take the matter up within a week and that a hearing will be given soon, probably next Friday. Judge Smith refused to be interviewed, but Judge Baldwin said that the hearing would be along legal lines and that the question as to whether Shakespeare or Bacon wrote "Shakespeare" would not be passed upon. Judge Baldwin said also that, if Chief Justice Smith should see fit to throw the case out of court, he would have full power to do so.

Case Hinges on Code in Plays.

The suit was filed by attorneys representing Colonel William M. Selig, motion picture magnate, against Colonel George Fabyan to restrain the latter from publishing a book which let forth the code theory that Lord Bacon wrote the plays and sonnets attributed to William Shakespeare, revealing his identity only to those who are able to decipher the code in the text of the plays and sonnets.

Colonel Selig represented to the court that the publication of this book would injure the presentation of the works of Shakespeare in motion pictures during the celebration of the Shakespearean tercentenary.

Judge Tuthill granted a temporary injunction, but announced that he was likely to reverse his order.

Injunction Set Aside.

He informed both parties that he was a student of the subject and had some preconceived ideas on it. He set aside his temporary injunction April 21, including in his decree an expression of his conviction that Bacon wrote "Shakespeare" and that Shakespeare was an ignorant "Barbery faker."
