Work in South African Mines Is Practically Stopped Since Outbreak of Conflict-War Proves Undoing of Industry.

CHICAGO, May 5.-There are not ough pearls and diamonds being re-lved in the United States to satisfy

"For the calendar year of 1915 the total pearl import was $4.309,837 worth. Of that amount only $67,849 worth cleared through Chicago. Chicago, being an inland city, cannot be a pearlimporting center. New York leads all the rest of the country combined in that. I don't suppose any shipments from India at all are sent through the Chicago Customs-house. Lebolt & Co. pay more than 10 per cent of all the pearl duty assessed in the United States annually."

pear duty assessed in the cancel annually."

Mr. Lebolt called attention to the fact that the European war has effectively stopped the diamond-mining industry. He said that all the diamond mines in South Africa have been closed and the only work done there now is in cleaning up the blue earth on the floors of the milis. In one mine alone, he said, more than 150,000,000 gallons of water has seeped into the mine shaft since the operation of the mine stopped.

"The United States dealers, right now," he said, "are taking all the diamonds that are being marketed and we monds that are being marketed and ware getting them through London."

What sort of game is this old pal?
Why, here it was but yesterday
We cheered you in the big corral
And paid the tax to see you play
There with the old, world-famed machine
That held its away smid the push,
And yet your shadows leave the green
And fade away beyond the bush.

What our universities and colleges should do is to recruit their football elevens from among members of the faculty. This would show which really had the smartest faculty. Taking the field, the teams would not rush at each other. Instead, at the sound of the referse's whistle they would begin thinking. The faculty with the deep est and most profound thoughts would gradually force the other faculty back behind its own goal line for a touch down.
