

SOCIETY NEWS BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

CHARMING YOUNG LOS ANGELES MATRON, WHO IS PASSING THE WEEK IN PORTLAND WITH HER MOTHER.

Mrs. Harvey Lindsey of Los Angeles

SOCIETY proper is thoroughly demoralized during these Festival days, and members are giving the greater part of their time to assisting the city in entertaining the vast amount of visitors from surrounding towns and states.

In addition to the expected brilliancy of the Royal ball tonight at Hotel Hall, which is being given by the Royal Rousarians to honor Queen Muriel and her court, is the opening of the roof garden, adjoining the ballroom. An orchestra will be stationed in a snug corner of the garden, and punch will be served.

tion as a special tribute to its "oldest child." A co-operation between the parent body and the local council is planned. The council's important work for the summer doubtless will be the playground work.

The Motherhood Club of Hartford, Conn. has sent an invitation to Mrs. George W. McMath, asking her to address them on February 19, 1917. Some of the Connecticut women heard Mrs. McMath tell of the Parents' Educational Bureau when she attended the National Bureau and they determined to invite her to tell them how Oregon conducts its baby tests.

Members of all musical clubs will be interested in the meeting in the Hotel Oregon today, when a state musical association will be formed. A luncheon at noon will be a feature.

The Woman's State Press Club will hold a reception on Wednesday night, June 14, in the home of Mrs. E. E. Ingham, 1181 Harold avenue. Members will take the Woodstock car.

The Portland Psychology Club members enjoyed a tea party on Tuesday when they were entertained by the Woodstock Circle at the home of Mrs. E. E. Ingham.

Oak Grove Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular meeting on Friday on account of the Rose Festival.

The Woman's Social Service Club of Oak Grove-Milwaukie will give a luncheon in Milwaukie Grange Hall on Saturday at 1 o'clock. J. D. Stephens will speak on "Government: Why and What For." Mrs. L. Gee will talk on "The Eight Hour Law for Women."

Mrs. Florence Olsen, the new president, will have charge of the luncheon. Woodburn Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular meeting, doing excellent work. The following are the newly elected officers: President, Mrs. E. E. Settlemier; vice-president, Mrs. J. J. Hall; secretary, Mrs. George W. Phillips; program committee, Mrs. J. H. Collins, Mrs. W. D. Simmons, Mrs. Louella J. Walsh.

THE SANDMAN STORY BY MRS. F. A. WALKER. Mr. Fox is vain. MR. FOX was trotting one morning through the woods by a river, so he stopped for a drink of water. Just as he was dipping his head into the water he caught sight of himself in the clear depths and he stopped to admire himself.

WOMEN WHO LEAD THE WAY BY MARIE DILLE. Miss Grace Parker, Director of the Inkova Club.

THROUGH Miss Grace Parker, of New York, business men and women are to have the opportunity of doing exactly the things that they like most to do in the company of the people that they most enjoy.

Mr. Fox searched everywhere for a picture that would look like Mr. Fox, but none did he find. "He said he particularly wanted a good picture of his bushy tail," said Mr. Fox.

Mr. Fox stood so still he did not wink for fear of spoiling the picture, and just as he was sure he should sneeze and spoil it Mr. Bear said: "That's all, Mr. Fox. Be seated a minute and I will show you a beautiful picture of yourself."

Mr. Fox all smiles, took the picture. He gave one look at it and then dropped it with a howl and tried to look at his tail. He saw the end of it just as it always had looked, but he ran to the river to get a better view.

Mr. Bear ran after him. "What is the matter, Mr. Fox?" he asked. "Doesn't the picture please you? I am sure you could never get a more beautiful picture of a bushy tail than that."
