Renworthy, Oakland second baseman, is back at his old trick of being the best ground-covering infielder of the league, having handled cleanly a total of 519 fielding chances around the keystone sack. Downs, San Francisco second baseman, is next in line with a total of 490 chances accepted, and Risberg, of Vernon, is third, with 468 fielding chances without error. Among the shortstops Coffey, of San Francisco, leads in total chances accepted with 434, and Davis, of Oakland, his nearest rival, is far behind with only 306. Jones, of San Francisco, leads the third basemen, having accepted 250 chances, with Bates, of Vernon, close on his heels with 244 chances handled without error.
