Oregon Agricultural College Military Training Big Aid.

MEN ARE WELL EQUIPPED

Theoretical and Practical Drill at Corvallis Is Factor in Upbuilding of State Regiment on Mexican Border.

PALM CITY, Cal., July 19.—Military training received at Oregon Agricultural College is playing a big part with the Oregon troops on the Mexican border. The men who have come from Corvallis are doubly well equipped for service, because they have had the military work, theoretical and practical, at the college and fit in especially well in the task of upbuilding the companies of the Third Oregon.

well in the task of upbuilding the companies of the Third Oregon. In one battalion alone there are three ex-colonels of the Oregon Agricultural College cadet regiment. Two are sergeants and one is a corporal. They are Joe McAllister, of the class of 1911, who now is a corporal with Company M, C. L. McFadden, of the 1915 class, a sergeant in Company K, and M. F. Hathaway, sergeant with Company K. Major Charlie Abrams is also an Oregon Agricultural College graduate. Company K has on its rolls the following men who got their first military experience at the Corvallis institution: Lieutenants, Ellenberg and Brett, of the classes of 1914 and 1916, respectively; sergeants, A. C. Skelton, R. H. Hawley, J. C. Rollins, R. P. Laird, M. F. Hathaway and C. L. McFadden; corporals, F. W. Walton, J. M. Franklin, G. L. Kane, B. W. Schubert and H. T. Yedder; musicians, D. W. Ritchie and K. L. Gloss; privates, E. J. Brown, A. Shankland, R. Bond, H. Fellows, J. Sprague, C. R. Gatchell, C. Z. Landreau, L. C. Richey, L. F. Van Norden, J. E. Proebstler and A. Hoffard. Company M contains: Sergeants, R. C. Wygant and James E. Norton; Corporal Joe McAllister; privates, C. E. Stricklin, Cecil Barrett, Earl Mason and James McClelland. Company K's Second Lieutenant, O. L. Chenoweth, is an Oregon Agricultural College man, as is Private Ellis Harper, of I Company. Undoubtedly there are other Oregon Agricultural College men in the other companies.

GROCERS' PICNIC JULY 26 Gathering at Bonneville Next Wednesday; Not July 29.

The annual picnic of the Portland Retail Grocers' Association will be held at Bonneville Wednesday, July 26, instead of July 29, as previously announced. Several thousand grocers and their friends will attend the picnic, and attention to it will be called by a parade to be staged this coming Saturday night. Hundreds of autos and teams will be lined up, according to Robert G. Duncan, secretary of the association. The retail meat dealers will take part in the picnic, as will the grocers and meat men from Vancouver, Wash., where a special steamer will be chartered. It is proposed to have Governor Withycombe attend the picnic and speak.

TIMBER ROAD PROPOSED J. H. Chambers Will Build Line Into Lorane Valley.

COTTAGE GROVE, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—Reports that a railroad will be constructed from this vicinity to tracts of timber in the Lorane Valley were confirmed today by J. H. Chambers, owner of the timber and of the J. H. Chambers mill here. O. L. Nichols, of this city, has been engaged for several weeks in running surveys to select the most practical route. The least expensive route, it is said, would be to connect with the Southern Pacific either at Comstock or Leona, although this point has not been decided.

PRIVATE ROAD FUND AIM Hood Men Want to Help County Surface Columbia Highway.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—A movement has started here to raise a subscription to supplement county funds in surfacing a portion of the Columbia River Highway in this county with gravel, from which excellent roads have been constructed on the West Side orchard district roads. Charles A. Bell, a local hotel man, after his first automobile trip to Portland over the highway, said he would contribute $50 to such a fund. Henry Serr, another local hotel man, has made a larger offer.

CROP SUMMARY IS MADE Rains Damage Hay, but Are of Benefit to Fall Wheat.

Following is a summary of the crop conditions in Oregon for the week ended July 18 to E. A. Beals, District Forecaster in the Portland office of the Weather Bureau, by the special correspondents throughout the state: Rain during the latter part of the week was unusually heavy in the western counties. Haying is general in all parts of the state, and much hay was caught on the ground improperly stacked, which in some places was badly damaged. The second crop of alfalfa is better, as a rule, than the first crop, as it matured under more favorable conditions. The first crop was kept back by cool weather, although moisture conditions were better than usual. Fall wheat is filling nicely, and much more promising than expected earlier in the season. Some fields are weedy, and in a few localities they will not be harvested on this account. The barley and rye harvest has begun, and both crops are yielding as good or better than expected. The wheat harvest will not begin until about the first of next month. Corn, although still backward, is doing much better than it did earlier in the season. With warm weather from now on it will make a good crop. Potatoes are doing splendidly, and no complaints are heard regarding the condition of this crop in any part of the state. Sugar beets and garden truck also are making satisfactory progress. Late cherries were injured in the western counties by the recent rains, and this crop, except in a few localities, has not turned out as well as usual. Raspberries, loganberries and blackberries are plentiful in the market. Peaches are rather scarce. Apples are doing well, although Hood River reports that the weather is favorable for the development of fungus.

ACCUSED NOT IN COURT Bench Warrant Asked for Alfred Collins, Charged With Theft.

Alfred Collins, indicted on a charge of the larceny of trolley wire, failed to appear in court to answer to the charges against him and Deputy District Attorney Pearce announced yesterday that he will ask Circuit Judge McGinn for a bench warrant to bring the man in. Following his indictment Collins was released on his own recognizance by Judge McGinn.

Three indictments were returned against Collins. One charged him with the larceny of the trolley wire from the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, another with the larceny of trolley wire from the United Railways Company and a third with the cutting of a trolley wire.

RECRUIT TOURS ON TODAY Four Details to Start Through Oregon to Enlist Guardsmen.

Recruiting for enlistments to fill up the various companies of the Third Infantry, Oregon National Guard, to full strength will be begun actively today when four squads will start to different parts of the state. About 20 recruits are to be enlisted. The four recruiting tours will last until early August and each party will be made up of two officers. Meanwhile, recruiting will be carried on at the Armory in this city as at present. A small number of enlistments is being made up each day. Acting-Adjutant-General Wilson yesterday received a telegram from the War Department to the effect that hereafter transportation of recruits from their enlistment point to the camp at Clackamas will be paid by the Government instead of by the state as heretofore.

FIVE WANT TO BE JUDGE J. E. Hutchinson, Montesano, Is Latest Entry Into Contest.

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 19.—(Special.)—John Hutchinson, pioneer Montesano attorney, filed today for superior judge, bringing the number in that race to five and the total number of filings to 28. All candidates are Republicans with the exception of the judges, who are nominated on a non-partisan basis. Those in the race for judge are: Ben Sheeka, Montesano, and George D. Abel, Hoquiam, incumbents; E. A. Thibault, Hoquiam; R. E. Taggart, Aberdeen; and J. E. Hutchinson, Montesano.

TONS OF FRUIT TO BE DISPLAYED AT ANNUAL FESTIVAL. COVE CHERRY FAIR TODAY

COVE, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—Tons of cherries, larger in size than shown at last year's exhibit, are being packed and placed for display tomorrow. Cove Cherry Fair day. On last Monday the queen and king were selected to preside over Cherry Fair day festival. They are Mrs. Mary Carr and Roy Bell. The coronation ceremonial will embrace several new features.

RIDDLE FARMER PASSES. RIDDLE, Or., July 18.—(Special.)—John M. Howard died at his home, near Riddle, Friday, July 13, at an advanced age. He had been ill for many weeks. Mr. Howard was a pioneer farmer. The funeral was held from the Baptist Church at Canyonville Sunday afternoon. Mr. Howard was the father of 11 children, nine of whom survive him.

ARSON SUSPECT JAILED. CENTRALIA, Wash., July 19.—(Special.)—Charged with setting fire to a single mill on Coal Creek owned by Frank Harm and Carroll Brown, Eugene Hawley, a shingleweaver, formerly employed at the mill, is lodged in the County Jail. Hawley was discharged following a drunken spree.

PRISON LEFT AFOOT Ex-Soldier, Slayer of Filipino, Making Way Home.

13TH APPEAL WINS PARDON Albert F. Rhodes Says Parents Have Died While He Has Been Held, but He Will Ask for Former Rating in Army Again.

OREGON CITY, Or., June 19.—(Special.)—Albert F. Rhodes, a former soldier of the regular Army, was in Oregon City today working his way to his home, Coyote, Cal., where he enlisted September 27, 1901. Since then his mother and father have died, and Rhodes himself has served 13 years of a 50-year sentence in a Federal prison on conviction of murder—a sentence most unjust, if his story is true. According to Rhodes, his career has been most extraordinary. After enlisting he was assigned to duty as a private in Company C, of the Ninth U. S. Infantry, and was sent to the Philippines. At the end of three years he won promotion to the rank of Commissary-Sergeant in his company, and as such was stationed at a camp on the Bandang River, island of Samar, when his troubles began. Seated at breakfast one morning with his company, several hundred feet from the stack of rifles, his company was attacked by a band of insurgents under the leadership of Aronido Shelvio.

All but One Killed. Unable to get to their weapons, the entire company, with the exception of Rhodes, was killed, and Rhodes himself was so severely slashed he holds that he was ten months in the hospital. When he recovered he was assigned to duty with Company F, of the Fifteenth Infantry. In the meantime Shelvio had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States and had been assigned to duty with the native constabulary. One day, Rhodes says, while he was walking near the hospital he saw two Filipinos quarreling in the roadway. While he watched, Shelvio stepped out and struck one of the natives. Not knowing of the Filipino's change of heart and recalling only the massacre of his former companions, Rhodes snatched a rifle from a nearby sentry and beat the Filipino to death. For this he was arrested, court-martialed, and sentenced to the 50-year term. Thirteenth Letter Wins. For 12 years, Rhodes declares, he wrote to the War Department, seeking a pardon, sending one letter each year; but not until his 13th letter had been dispatched did he receive favorable action. He was at that time incarcerated on Governor's Island, New York, he will apply to the Government for restoration to citizenship. He will also seek re-instatement in the Regular Army, he says, and should he secure this, expects to receive his back pay as Commissary-Sergeant for the past 13 years. Neighbor Woman Accused. ROSEBURG, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—Mrs. O. W. Vanbeber caused the arrest of Mrs. Ollie Ketchum on a warrant issued out of the Recorder's Court charging that she pulled her children's ears and caused trouble for other members of the family. Widow Intervenes for Prisoner. MARSHFIELD, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—Arnold McLay, who was held in jail pending trial on indictment for intimacy with a young girl of Beaver Hill, was released today on $1000 bond. Dr. J. B. Hamilton, of Myrtle Point, and Cyrus Ferreri, of South Inlet, went his bond. Mr. McLay's attorney said he would remain in the county until the September term of court. A widow, Mrs. Philbrick, from California, from whom McLay was returned, is now in the county and intervened on his behalf. London covers 700 square miles.

says, and it was there that he received his pardon. He then worked his way across the continent to Seattle, on his way home. In Seattle he was "kidnaped" and sent to Tacoma as a strike-breaker in the waterfront troubles, but managed to get away and worked south to Oregon City. From here he will continue his way south to California as soon as able, and when he reaches his home town will apply to the Government for restoration to citizenship. He will also seek re-instatement in the Regular Army, he says, and should he secure this, expects to receive his back pay as Commissary-Sergeant for the past 13 years. Neighbor Woman Accused. Advertisement for LADD ESTATE COMPANY PRINCIPALS. We Wish We Could Feel Reasonably Sure That Every Good Citizen of Portland Would Read This Message of Ours. Rather than display it in spectacular space and glaring type, we shall take the chance of its being read by the class of people for whom the message is intended. The interstate convention of realty men from Oregon, Washington and Idaho has just come to its close. It was an excellent meeting of men of the right type—men with sincere purpose to serve their respective communities honestly and fairly. Had they not been men of that character they never would have been here, for this was a meeting of members and possible members of the National Association of Realty Exchanges, whose ethics are as strict as those of any group of bankers or merchants in the country. The benefits which we personally derived from this convention must surely bespeak those which other organizations experienced. But we are so enthusiastic over its results that we desire to carry its message on to the people of Portland, who are just as much concerned, though they may not realize it, as any man who attended the convention in person. First of all, these men who took part in this convention are responsible, serious-minded, capable men. They have to be, for they represent the Land—that branch of business which comprises over 80 per cent of the wealth of these Pacific Northwest states. All the bankers, the manufacturers, the railroad magnates, the merchants and the professional men in this same area represent but the other 20 per cent. It is because of this responsibility that these men gathered together on the eve of what they believe to be a new era of greater development in this particular section of the country. Every fact points to the logic of that prediction. In the East millionaires have been created by the unequalled prosperity of the past year or two. The greater part of this money is a surplus in this country, for much of it has come from foreign sources. These men now find themselves with amounts of money to invest which run into figures still unfamiliar to us. A survey of the markets of the East reveals that the same prosperity which has created their new wealth has correspondingly effected an inflation of values on all commodities, all stocks and all real property. Financiers are reluctant to buy on a top market, so these men began scanning this country to find that section of the United States which has benefited the least by the recent prosperity and where, therefore, values would be at, or below, par. Here, in the Pacific Northwest, they found it—a yet undeveloped empire as large as all of the New England states—a land into which Germany or France could easily be placed, still leaving enough productive area to supply sufficient food for the needs of any South American republic. Here they found a country needing—and only needing—the very capital which they themselves had to invest, in order to come into its own and thereby create for them and its people a still greater and almost inconceivable wealth. It would be simply a case of supplying a much-needed demand at the right time—the basis of all prosperity. Here they found a nation within a nation, which up to the present had been forced to "mark time" in the march of progress, awaiting only the day when, through adequate transportation facilities, she could release to the world the products of her versatile soil. These men were forced to realize that if they put their capital to work in this Pacific Northwest country the transportation problem could be solved and that, with its solution, still greater fields would be opened for their investment. They could not deny the fact that when Oregon, Washington and Idaho can dispose of all the products they now produce new agricultural projects, new industries, will begin to tap the vast natural resources and up-to-now untilled regions of this domain. That these great capitalists of the East are looking toward this land of ours as their next step, is the talk in the financial circles of New York. How soon this will transpire cannot be foreseen. It may be three months. It may be six months, but it must come and it cannot be far distant, for buying just previous to an advancing market is the handiwork of foresight—"that something" which has placed so many men in the foremost rank of their chosen field to the wonderment of those about them. Have we, of the Pacific Northwest, that foresight? If we have, it is now our chance to show it. Our first step is confidence, which under present rapidly improving conditions, every man should possess. It is now up to US. Let us all get in and work—work hard—then we'll be ready when it comes.
