EFFECT OF WAR ON PROSPERITY SHOWN

Mr. Bourne Analyzes Figures of Trade Under Payne and Underwood Tariffs.

WAR MATERIAL SEPARATED

Trade Balance Due Almost Wholl; to Necessities of Belligerents. Which Comprise Large Proportion of Exports.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washton, Aug. 12.—That the war in Europe is responsible for such prosperity as exists in the United States is strikingby Jopathes. Bureau today by Jopathes. cxists in the United States is striking by Shown in a statement issued today by Jonathan Bourne, of Oregon, head of the Republican Publicity Association. Mr. Bourne, who has been in the South for several months, is again in active charge of the press bureau. He intends to remain in Washington through the campaign. In his statement today Mr. Bourne says:

"Sixty per cent of our export trade during the first 10 months of the European war, August, 1914, to May, 1915, inclusive, consisted of 47 classes of products absolutely essential to conduct modern warfare. Our exports for this period totaled $2,346,00,000, our conduct which these 47 classes made up $1.

"The Underwood tariff law became effective October 4, 1913, and it ran amuck for 10 months before the European war was declared. During this period business was batted into the lee ecuppers and the word 'dividend' was stricken from corporate lexicons. Our exports totaled $1,852,000,000, of which the 47 classes under consideration made up 22.4 per cent.

"During a similar 10 months under the Republican tariff law, October, 1912, to July, 1913, inclusive, labor was everywhere employed, the stockholder at the end of every quarter opened his morning mail with a smile, and exports for this period totaled $2,110,500,000, of which 35 per cent were made up of these 47 classes. Under the Democratic law we were falling behind in our export trade at the rate of $10,000,000 a month, and at the rate of $10,000,000 a month, and at the rate of $10,000,000 a month on these 47 classes alone, for which there was then no war demand.

"Our balance of trade had been turning steadily against us before the war broke out. But the stimulus which war orders gave to business gave us a favorable trade balance of $388,000,000 for the first 10 months of the war, 72 per cent of which was accounted for by the $720,000,000 increase in the exportation of these 47 classes.

War Trade Accounts for Balance.

"Our favorable balance of trade for the 10 months of war August, 1915, to May, 1916, was $1,792,090,000, white the increase in exportation of these $1 classes for this period over the 10 months immediately preceding the war was $1,752,000,000, or practically equal to our entire favorable trade balance for the period named.

"This is the cause of the prosperity for which the Democratic Administration takes credit. During the two war periods, the 47 classes considered were used by the warring powers to feed, clothe, transport, doctor and elay the soldlery of Europe. Eighty per cent of our entire export trade was with belligerents. The huge increases in our exports of the 47 classes establish beyond a doubt that they are properly characterized as munitions of war. Where increases have been marked in our export trade with other countries during the war periods, such increases thave been the sole base of supply of those countries, or, as in the case of Denmark, Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands, they have been supplying the central powers with goods bought from us.

War Sole Basis of Prosperity. "The Republican party contends that the war alone, directly or indirectly, is the war alone, directly or indirectly, is the cause of our present prosperity, that had there been no war exports would have continued to decrease and imports to increase as they were doing before the war, under the Democratic tariff policy; that no country can find a firm basis for lasting prosperity on a foreign war; that the Democratic party has made the European war the goat for all its failures, while its prosperity chorus is accompanied by the roar of European cannon and the wall of the dying. The following tabwall of the dying. The following tab-ulation is offered to show the effect of war orders on our tremendous ex-port trade:

son Charles while in action somewhere in Europe. The message was from an officer in charge of the record office and stated: "Deeply regret to inform you that 66,508, Private John Charles Potter, infantry, officially reported killed in action, August 2."

Charles was well known here. He was 22 years old and had enlisted in the Canadian army a year ago under an assumed name so that his mother might not know and worry about him. This is the first word they have had of him for a year. His parents and three brothers live here, and his sister, Mrs. George Walker, lives in Boise.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 13.—(Spe-dal.)—So far as his neighbors, his em-cial.)—So far as his neighbors, his employers and the police know, the conduct of Earl J. Clark, who escaped and was recaptured and sent back to the Oregon Penitentiary, was all that it should be in Spokane.

He arrived here about four years ago and applied for a room at the home of Mrs. E. Briggs, 3993 North Heiena street. Her son, who works in a downtown florlet shop, said the man explained his lack of personal belongings by a tale that he had been at the Y. M. C. A. for several days and his room there had been robbed of his clothing. A little latter he was joined by his wife and they began house-keeping, having rented another room of Mrs. Briggs.

He was good-natured, devoted to his wife and courteous to his landlady, and seemed to enjoy doing the small chores, such as splitting the kindling and helping with other work around the house.

Good Position Obtained.

Clark and his wife lived with the Briggs family for six months, being known to Mrs. Briggs as the Beinharts, the name he gave when he first came to Spokane. He obtained employment in the Arlington Hotel as playerer and made and as perhapsers and made. plasterer and paperhanger and made good pay renovating the rooms of that hostelry. He was later employed as janitor and engineer, so well did he

A. S. de Riemer, proprietor of the hotel, says that Reinhart was always sober, industrious and tractable. He never had trouble with him and found him unusually handy wherever he was put to perform the many tasks falling to the lot of a janitor.

"He went to work for me in the Spring of 1913," said Mr. De Reimer, "and was with me for a year. He left to seek employment in the far South, and upon his return this Spring, when he came back to the hotel and did a little plastering and paperhanging for me, said he had been doing similar work in hotels in Florida, Georgia, Missouri and states along his route to the West.

"For a while this Spring he was employed in drilling the outer surfaces of iron doors in sidewalks, an ordinance compelling owners of blocks to roughen the doors to prevent pedegrians slipping on icy surfaces. Reinhart was never afraid of work and was scrupulously honest with trademen, paying his bills promptly. The family lived simply and dressed neatly, surech and, of course, was unobstrusive." family lived simply and dressed neatly, and, of course, was unobstrusive."
Detective Chester Edwards, of the Spokane police department, who, with Detective Uirich, made the capture in Spokane, said Reinhart, as he was known to them, was living at 214 South Washington street in an apartment-house at the time of his arrest. He had just returned from St. Maries, idaho, about 70 miles from Spokane, where he had been working at his trade. So far as the police know, watere he had been working at his trade. So far as the police know, nothing of Reinhart's habits would lead one to suppose he was other than the best type of citizen. His habits were without flaw and he was most industrious.

He was compelled to resort to lying, He was compelled to resort to lying, of course, to cover up his tracks, and this habit of deceit cropped out after his capture, when his wife concocted a story that she was guilty of the crime for which he was sent to the penitentiary. The tale of his trip to Fiorida may or may not be true. It cannot be verified here.

E. J. Clark, alias Rhinehart, eacaped from the Oregon State Prison in 1913 while working as a trusty at the State Insane Hospital. He was arrested in Spokane Friday, July 28, after having lived in and about Spokane for the next four transfer of the last for the last of the last for the last

Clark decided not to fight extradition. His attorney amounced he would make no attempt to prevent his return to the Oregon prison, and he was accordingly brought back within a few days, his wife and child remain-a few days, his wife and child remaining in Spokane. It was announced then that his case would be presented to the parole board in the hope of a pardon being given him.

Clark relied upon his record since leaving the prison for this pardon. He maintained he had led an exemplary life and that he is entitled to go free, since he has shown he is no longer a menace to society.

From Spokane the board will go to Oregon and California and return across the central part of the consinent. Later a trip will be taken through the South.

The hearings will be made public and farmers and farmers' organisations will be invited to submit information, which they think will assist the board in solving the important problem of determining the boundaries of the districts and locating the Federal land banks.

SELLWOOD PEOPLE HAVE EYES ON ADJOINING PROPERTY.

Residents Meet and Name Committee With View to Taking Matter Up With City Council.

Sellwood people have launched campaign for securing additional land adjoining the present park on Johnson Creek. A meeting was held there last Friday night and tentative steps taken to bring the matter to the attention of the city authorities. A committee was named to view the adjoining property and make recommendations as to the amount of ground needed to make this one of the city's parks.

The location is declared to be ideal.
