SAN FRANCISCANS ARRIVE AT EUGENE

Trade Excursionists Escorted to Chamber and Welcomed in Address by Mayor.

WHOLE CITY TURNS OUT

Business Men Meet Visitors and "Talk Shop"—Special Train Will Go to Coos Bay for Railway Jubilee.

EUGENE, Or., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—San Francisco invaded Eugene tonight. The Chamber of Commerce trade extension special train of 11 coaches arrived in the city at 8:30 o'clock with 79 representatives of the business interests of the California city aboard. Eugene business men and citizens in general turned out en masse to welcome the visitors to Oregon.

A procession was formed at the Southern Pacific depot and the visiting business men and their hosts marched to the Chamber of Commerce, where a formal welcome was extended.

The special train left Oakland last night at 7 o'clock. Today religious services were held while traveling in Northern California. Robert Newton Lynch, vice-president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, formerly was a minister. He conducted the services.

The excursion is being conducted purely as a business proposition. The fun will be after leaving the state of Oregon on the way home. After the returning train has passed through Ashland, new members of the trade excursion party will be initiated.

Mayor Extends Welcome.

Mayor A. W. Bell and Joseph H. Koke, president of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, delivered the addresses of welcome at an informal reception held in the chamber. The business men of the city in general attended to meet the visitors and "talk shop."

Other addresses were delivered by Judge Helmus Thompson, on "Highway Transportation," and by E. J. Adams, on "Freight Rates."

Responses for the excursionists were made by Robert Newton Lynch, for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce; F. Dohrmann, Jr., of the Nathan Dohrman Company, and G. W. Luce, freight traffic manager of the Southern Pacific Company.

Mr. Luce said: "We would like to see a good, strong port at Florence, and we will do all we can to assist it. We had that in view when we established the rate to Cuchman."

Cushman is the nearest point to Florence on the Siuslaw River.

The special train is parked in the Southern Pacific yards, and will leave for Coos Bay tomorrow afternoon.

MISS ECHO ZAHL IS WRITER

Portland Co-Ed Author of Lane-Coos-Bay Missives.

EUGENE, Or., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Another announcement is made following the election of Miss Gladys Roddy, of Marshfield, as bride for the wedding ceremony of Eugene Lane and Miss Coos Bay at North Bend August 24, as a part of the celebration of the completion of the Willamette-Pacific line of the Southern Pacific system. The final love letters of Eugene Lane and Miss Coos Bay were made public today, together with the name of the author of the love missives, who coined the phrase "Blessed be the ties that bind, whether rail or other kind."

She is Miss Echo Zahl, of 827 Borthwick street, Portland, a senior in the University of Oregon. When the ides of the wedding ceremony was suggested it was decided that love letters must be provided, and she volunteered to undertake the task of carrying on both sides of the correspondence.

The letter of Eugene Lane and the answer, made public today, are as follows:

Dear Miss Coos Bay—Whoopee!!! There's nothing now can stop me—'cause I'm coming—and I'm coming hard. I'm bringing five groomsmen to prop me, and a diamond, as a calling card.

Talk about your weddings. Honey, we're going to put 'em all to shame. We'll make the "beat ones" feel as rummy as checkers at a poker game.

"Tisn't going to be this "near relation only" gag. We want all the friends we've made for miles around. And the music? Believe me, dearie, we'll see how she can drag and syncopate that "honor-obey sound."

Get out those orange blossoms and twine 'em in your hair. And put that pearly dress on. I've heard that all brides wear. Lord, I can't keep from humming old Mendelsohn's air—"Land of the Free—twee—dee—de—dee" Oh! I can't recall the words, but it's there, dear, it's there.

Guess I'd better say revoir, now, and sound the bugle call to marshal in my bridal crew.

Yours 'till the heavens fall.

EUGENE LANE.

My Dear Eugene—In your mad and awful hurry you forgot to state something rather relevant, to-wit; our wedding date. So I'm going to set it for you, and you will agree perforce, that the only date for wedlock is August 24th.

Everything down here is ready. All is burnished up like new. But there's one big thing that's lacking. Can you guess, dear—that means you.

COOS BAY.

In the San Francisco excursion party are:

EXCURSION BERTHS ASSIGNED

Final Arrangements Are Made for Coos Bay Trip.

While Mark Woodruff, of the publicity bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, is visiting cities in the Coos Bay country which are to be reached by the excursion to leave here Wednesday, the committee at the Chamber is checking up finally on the reservations and assigning the various members of the party to their berths on the train.

Mr. Woodruff left here Saturday night and will join the excursion at its first stop in the Coos Bay country and remain with it until its return to Portland.

The specials from Portland will arrive back in this city on August 27. Portland is not alone in sending an excursion to the railroad jubilee in the Coos Bay country. San Francisco and other California cities have made up excursions and there will be several excursions run from cities in the Willamette Valley between here and the Southern Oregon line.

The Royal Rosarians will go with the Portland excursion in force and will take their band and drill team along. Prominent citizens in the places to be visited will be initiated into the Rosarian organization.

OUSTED OFFICIAL BITTER

NED JENNESS ATTACKS SECRETARY OF STATE BARKER IN IDAHO.

Extravagance in Administration of Office and Bad Faith in Acts as Board Member Alleged.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—A controversy between Secretary of State Barker and Ned Jenness, ousted register of the state land department, now engaged in the newspaper business at Nampa, has attracted not a little interest here. Mr. Jenness charges Mr. Barker with causing unnecessary expense to the state through the employment of W. L. Gifford, ex-Secretary of State, and Robert Huston, brother of the State Auditor, in the land department when the land securities were transferred to the treasury department and with bad faith in calling for the dismissal of Heber O. Hale as register of the land department. Mr. Jenness has been attacking Mr. Barker bitterly in his paper.

In reply Mr Barker called Mr. Jenness a "coward." He branded as a canard the statement of Mr. Jenness that prior to Mr. Barker's electon he had made a deal with ex-Secretary of State Gifford over the appointment of register in place of Mr. Jennes, following the ousting of the latter.

Mr. Jennes asserted that the $1200 paid to Mr. Gifford and Mr. Huston was wasted. In reply to this charge Mr. Barker declares that if that could be true, it was also true that the state had wasted some several thousands of dollars in salary paid Mr. Jenness as receiver, for after he was ousted, Mr. Hale, chief clerk, succeeded and for some time did the work of both the clerk and receiver for the clerk's salary.

FUSION EFFORTS FAIL

WASHINGTON DRYS AND PROGRESSIVES CAN'T AGREE.

Parties Decide to Conduct Separate Campaigns Before Primary Election.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—Representatives of the Prohibition party of Washington assembled in conference with state Progressive party leaders Saturday rejected the Progressive plan for a fusion ticket, and both parties will conduct separate campaigns before the primary.

A committee of Prohibitionists consisting of A. B. L. Gellerman, Mrs. Nettie Hollenbeck and Harold King Rockhill, of Tacoma, and N. O. Knox, of Seattle, was named to confer with the Progressives after the primary election, September 12. The committee will then have power to act in the matter of joint indorsement of candidates and on campaign affairs.

After the conference the Prohibitionists voted to recommend candidates to the Prohibition state convention as follows: Governor, A. B. L. Gellerman, Tacoma; Lieutenant-Governor; Mrs. Nettie Hollenbeck, Tacoma; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. W. J. Warren, Seattle; Treasurer, Mary M. Wade, Seattle; Insurance Commissioner, H. H. Flanders, Spokane; Land Commissioner, J. W. Landon, Sumner; Secretary of State, W. E. Van Tine, Chehalis; United States Senator, Joseph A. Campbell, Seattle.

INDIAN RIGHTS GUARDED

FEDERAL AGENT TO PREVENT LOOT OF FISHING GROUNDS.

Temporary Injunction Issued Against Seattle Concern to Bar It from Annette Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—The United States Marshal at Juneau, Alaska, will be on his way tomorrow to the Annette Islands, the abiding place of the Metlakahtla Indians, to prevent encroachments on their fishing grounds by commercial salmon fishermen, if he obeys orders telegraphed to him today from Frank Monckton, Clerk of the United States Court of Appeals, in this city.

The Indians subsist almost entirely on the salmon they catch in the waters surrounding the Annette Islands and a telegraphic temporary injunction against the Alaska Pacific Fisheries, of Seattle, Wash., from invading their fishing territory will go with the Juneau Marshal on his 1000-mile water journey.

In a suit now pending against the Alaska Pacific Fisheries, whose officers have declared they would lose $50,000 in labor contracts by the injunction, the Government, which gave the islands to the Metlakahtla Indians, contends that all the fish in the adjacent waters belong also to them.

SNOW FAILS TO DAUNT MAZAMAS

Party Revels in "Beautiful," Which Blankets Entire Mountain Camp.

THREE SISTERS SCALED

Thirty Persons Climb South Sister and Return to Camp Again Bathed in Fog—Moving Picture Men Are Kept Busy.

BY R. LOUISE FITCH.

CAMP RILEY, at foot of Three Sisters, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Today has been an energetic day in camp. The leftovers and the late arrivals who have finally acquired their mountain legs tried the Middle Sister with great success and speedy records. The Middle Sister is becoming easy to ascend, so that one can almost run up and slide down as an appetizer before breakfast.

The hardy aspiring ones chose this day for visiting the South Sister. The bivouac at Yoran camp was a new and exciting experience to most of them. Of course, old-timers like Prexy Riley and Jeremiah Bronaugh knew all about it and offered advice freely.

At 6:20 the party divided itself, five returning to camp. The other 30 had a "perfectly wonderful" trip. The fog lay low in the valley all day. Sunlight above, intermingled with clouds and sudden little openings, showed the tips of far-off peaks and beautiful valleys. The band of 30 marched right up, turned around and marched right down again, stopping only long enough to peer into the icy depths of a crevasse or two and to have a personal introduction to a glacier.

As they picked up their packs and started again for camp the fog pounced upon them; it crawled into their collars, down their necks and into their blankets. It hung around all evening and climbed into the dinner plates. It went on through clothing, skin and flesh and sat upon the marrow of the innermost bones, and there was no such thing as warmth in the whole camp.

No Fire Is Built.

On this particular evening a long and stainless record of the camp was broken. There was no campfire. Prexy Riley had had all he wanted with his 40-pound pack and long and foggy climb, and as moment after moment went by and there was no yell for "campfire," he snuggled down farther into his blankets and was soon beyond the reach of yells. His satisfaction was no less keen than that of every one else, for almost every one had been climbing that day and there seemed not the slightest desire to repeat the process of drying out so soon again.

No mention has yet been made of the "speeders' crowd." The half dozen who seem to have some motor attachment to their feet considered bivouacking to South Sister a foolish waste of perfectly good time, so they left Camp Riley at 3 A. M., went up the South Sister and got back to camp a full hour ahead of those who had bivouacked. These "speeders" can't find mountains enough to keep them busy. Crushing a full-grown mountain beneath their heels is as easy as stepping on an angle worm, and the mountain does the squirming—not they. They are the wonder and the envy of the camp.

Thursday morning the camp was awakened by cries of "Merry Christmas! Is my present hanging on the tree?" Another new experience had been pulled off for Camp Riley. Never in the history of the Mazamas had it snowed on their Summer outing, but here was the camp buried under six inches of snow. The trees were white, the tents were white, the places where the bonfires should be were white, shoes which had been left beside the fires to dry were full. For about three minutes gloom was settled at least three feet deep on top of the snow; then out rang Prexy Riley's voice, assisted by three others, in the following inspiring song:

Come young folks, come old folks, everybody come,
Come to Camp Riley and make yourselves to hum,
Please check your overcoat and rubbers at Eugene,
And see the damdest weather that you ever, ever seen!

The movie men were the happiest in camp. They took their machine over to Blue Bird Camp, and with a shovel rescued three girls who were sleeping beneath the snow. It made a corking picture.

Breakfast was an unusual meal. Rescue parties were organized every few moments. One party dug down for the salt and pepper cellars on the table. Another tried to rescue the sugar bowls, but without success. They were not found. The tables were covered six inches deep, and so were the seats, so breakfast was eaten under a fly at the edge of the cook tent.

Monument Is Erected.

After breakfast a general exodus was planned and various members of the party left by foot, by wagon and by auto. Some walked as far as McKenzie Bridge, to find every bed occupied and hay in the barn at a premium. The hardy ones gathered in what will be a lake if it ever thaws out enough to make one and erected a snow mounument to Camp Riley. The icy shaft extended, cold and silent, some 10 feet into the heavens and a funeral service to Summer was held at its base, Prexy Riley doing the chief mourner act. The movie men were almost too convulsed to grind their machine. All kinds of childhood games were played, for most every one originally came from Iowa and Illinois, where snow abounds.

During the day "Doc," the cook, was the most popular person in camp. His cook tent was nice and warm and dry, the only such spot to be found this side of Eugene. He finally was obliged to resort to strategy in order to get lunch ready. He fell over Prexy Riley behind the stove and stepped on Professor De Cou when he reached for the flour barrel, and had to remove Jerry forcibly when he wanted hot water. He exacted toll for the use of his tent. Any one who wished to pass any time around his fire was obliged to work out the time.

Camp Riley will certainly go down in Mazama history as the "most unusual" camp ever held.

PRUNE CROP TO BE LARGE

Approximately 200 Tons Will Be Obtained Near Forest Grove.

FOREST GROVE, Or., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—One of the biggest prune crops harvested in this section in many years is now maturing. Several new dryers have been built. Prices are good. Approximately 200 tons will be harvested in the prune district adjacent to this city.

The grape crop, however, will not be large, because of late frosts which damaged the early blooms. All other fruit yields will be excellent.

WORDS WITHOUT EFFECT

SENATOR LODGE CRITICISES WILSON'S FOREIGN POLICY.

"Strict Accountability" Proved Meaningless Both in Lusitania Case and That of Mexico.

NANTASKET, Mass., Aug. 20.—Asserting that the present Government at Washington has been an "unadministration of words," Senator Henry Cabot Lodge made his opening speech of the Presidential campaign at an outing of the Republican Club of Dorchester here yesterday. Mr. Lodge said in part:

"Behind a great barrier of words the President has sheltered himself, surrounded by a cloud of phrases; big words with no meaning.

"After the awful disaster of the Lusitania the President used the memorable phrase 'too proud to fight.' The country responded the next morning. It was not a friendly response.

"So he changed and we had a great note on 'strict accountability.' It remains a phrase. There never has been a reparation or even an apology for the Americans drowned or killed on the Lusitania.

"The same phrase was posted on the consulate of Mexico not long ago, that if any injury came to Americans Mexico would be held strictly accountable. Americans have been killed and every outrage committed, and 'strict accountability' still remains the false and empty phrase.

"Another cry, 'kept us out of war.' It is not easy to get into war when nobody wants to go to war with you."

Senator Lodge predicted that Massachusetts would give Hughes a larger plurality than the plurality of the combined Taft and Roosevelt vots in 1912.
