Authority to Be Forwarded at Once for About 30 Alliances in Oregon.

MEMBERSHIP IS OVER 5000

Organization Is Development of Plan Started in 1908 to Work for Re-election of Governor Respective of Party.

A telegram received yesterday by T. B. Neuhausen, vice chairman of the Oregon Republican State Central Committee, from headquarters of the National Hughes Alliance in New York...

Although Walter L. Toose, Sr., of Salem, and A. Courteney of Portland, organizers for the Alliance in Oregon, have been in the field only a little more than two weeks...

Organizers Are Busy. Southwestern Oregon is being organized this week by Mr. Toose under the following itinerary...

Mr. Courteney, who is working in Eastern Oregon, will form a branch Hughes Alliance today at Baker, with the assistance of Frank B. Mitchell...

Mr. Courteney will return to Portland from Baker in time to attend a meeting of the Oregon Republican Party Tuesday night...

Reception Warm Everywhere. Both Mr. Courteney and Mr. Toose have been enthusiastically received in every one of the towns where they have formed an Alliance.

Though only 25 signers of the charter roll are required to form a branch Hughes Alliance, 302 signed the charter roll in Roseburg...

In most of these towns the organizers worked only one day, and in some cases less than that...

Membership Exceeds 5000. Since the formation of these branch Alliances many more members have joined. The full membership of the Hughes Alliance in Oregon to date is more than 5000...

Contrary to general belief, the Hughes Alliance is by no means a product of the present campaign. It originated eight years ago...

Development Is Rapid. Shortly after Governor Hughes arrived in New York this year, following his nomination for the Presidency...

Move Is Nonpartisan. The Hughes Alliance is a nonpartisan organization and its members come from every party.

The chairman of the women's committee of the National Hughes Alliance is Miss Frances A. Keller...

COLLEGE GIRLS S TOP OF SURVEY

R. Louise Fitch Makes Inquiry to Find Their View of Religion.

OREGON CO-EDS QUIZZED

Students Have Serious Religious Beliefs, She Finds, and All Is Not Fun and Frolic With Them.

Miss R. Louise Fitch, sister of the late George Fitch, author of the famous 'Siwash' stories, has just completed the interesting experience of putting under the X-ray of religio-mental investigation the college girls of Oregon...

Search Is Nation-Wide. Miss Fitch, whose home is at Galesburg, Ill., and who is president of the Delta Delta Delta woman's fraternity...

College life does not cause a girl to lose her religious sense. She broadens from a narrow, orthodox, childish belief to a broader, more liberal, more intelligent in its broadest sense, irrespective of creed or dogma.

Many of the girls who responded are members of my fraternity. The replies are from girls in North, East, South and West. Eighty per cent answered.

In my thesis, I am also trying to establish whether there is a difference in the religious experiences of girls in sectarian schools, where there is compulsory chapel, from those of girls in public schools, where there is no compulsory chapel.

Often the religious experiences of girls of different classes in the same school are very marked, and the influence of such schools is shown in letters from girls of different classes.

In certain schools the influence of some certain professor, with a strong personality, stands out. I find that during the different years, the same influence was exerted over members of various classes.

Miss Fitch included in her investigation girls of all possible religious denominations and those having no church membership.

Sermon Thoughts

REVOLUTIONARY Elements of Christianity was the topic of a novel sermon delivered yesterday morning by Rev. William Graham Moore in his pulpit at the Mount Tabor Presbyterian Church.

The history of the world is the story of revolutions. It is a story of constant opposition and struggle against opposition and wrong. Its pages are here and there illumined with those who have dared to lead against the heavy hand of installed authority," he said.

Rev. Mr. Moore took the stand for the masses, saying that the people had begun to assert themselves, that the classes in Europe and developments of problems in America merely were signs of the people struggling to come into their own heritage.

When the revolution of Christ is established," he said, "there will be a universal brotherhood in which all men will stand in equality. When Jesus Christ came on earth it was thought that religion was only for a few, and the masses were held in servitude and slavery. But the religion of Jesus Christ is the revolution of the world, and the people are coming into just

TOM DOBSON'S RECITAL AT MASONIC TEMPLE SEPTEMBER 18.

Tom Dobson, the prominent New York critic said of Mr. Dobson: "There is only one Tom Dobson, and though many may imitate none can quite reach the captivating heights or attain the real charm of delivery that this young artist is so wonderfully endowed with."

No desirable theater being available, Mr. Dobson's coming recital will be given in the Masonic Temple and will take place next Monday evening, September 18, at 8:30. His programme will be made up of numbers, many of which have been requested, and others that have been among his successes the past season in New York.

There you have it. If you would wear the black evening gown—and surely you can't be out of date striking—leave off your rouge. You must be like a lily in all your glory of black. A florid woman with red cheeks will never be allowed to signify that she has wept for her sweetheart until her cheeks and nose have become quite red.

Face Must Be White. There you have it. If you would wear the black evening gown—and surely you can't be out of date striking—leave off your rouge. You must be like a lily in all your glory of black. A florid woman with red cheeks will never be allowed to signify that she has wept for her sweetheart until her cheeks and nose have become quite red.

Those black evening creations are almost, without an exception, of maline and net, or heavily draped in that soft copied in America, but adds an air of mystery, they say. The gowns are low and sleeveless. But as if to affect modesty some have kimono-like sleeves of sheer fine lace. Here and there in the black gown is a glimmer of gold or silver cloth, and some with a satin body are embroidered in silver or gold. One throws defiance at the initial motif of black and flaunts a whole under dress wide and flaring and shiny, under a drape of Spanish lace. A number of stunning afternoon and tea gowns are shown in black, and one here and there is a tempting creation of old-time black lace with not a suggestion of color.

The announcement that Tom Dobson will give one more public recital here before returning East to fulfill his numerous engagements has been hailed with delight by those who attended his first recital at the Hellig Theater last January. One prominent New York critic said of Mr. Dobson: "There is only one Tom Dobson, and though many may imitate none can quite reach the captivating heights or attain the real charm of delivery that this young artist is so wonderfully endowed with."
