The attitude of Hughes on labor was explained in answer to a questioner in the audience who asked about the decision that Justice Hughes has rendered in the Danbury haters' case.

Hughes Helped Labor Bill. The attitude of Mr. Hughes on labor questions was the best illustrated by the fact that, during the term of error of New York, more important labor legislation acts were passed through the legislature than in the entire past 135 years.

WILL H. PARRY, who was connected with a Portland newspaper many years ago, but who now is a member of the Federal Trade Commission, registered at the Benson Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Parry is here to get first-hand information regarding two industries the commission is investigating. They are the lumber industry and the news print paper industry.

The news print paper situation is less acute in this part of the country than in the East," said Mr. Parry yesterday. "It became a real problem along the Atlantic seaboard, and it was found necessary for sale prices of publications to be doubled, subscription prices to be raised and other drastic action to be taken."

Mr. Parry said yesterday that it was possible for reports to be made of the conditions in every detail. A corps of assistants accompanies Mr. Parry and it is probable that several days will be spent in this city.

Two rival political warhorses arrived in Portland yesterday. Coming from Eastern Oregon they registered at the Imperial Hotel. They were R. R. The Toose twins, Leslie and Lamar, who were graduated together from the University of Oregon last Spring, and whose actions have always been coordinated, are not to be separated yet. Both of them came to Portland yesterday from Salem. They are on their way to Harvard. Both will study law. Both were popular students when in the University of Oregon.

A. S. Peck, former examiner with the United States Forest Service, arrived in this city yesterday and registered at the Seward Hotel from Washington, D. C. SIDNEY AYRES, matinee idol, for years a prominent leading man in Pacific Coast theaters, and more recently director of the Universal Film Company of Hollywood, Cal., died Saturday at the Oakland Fifth-avenue Hospital. His death was due directly to a general breakdown.

Mr. Ayres' fame as an actor extended all over the United States—but he was especially well known as a stock leading man in the larger cities of the Pacific Coast and was for one season leading man at the Baker Theater in Portland, Or.

Four years ago he appeared in a stock starring Summer engagement with Catherine Coultas at the Helix Theater in Portland and later went on the Orpheum circuit in a Western sketch written by himself. Mr. Ayres was divorced in 1913 at Oregon City from his first wife, Cecelia Frances Ayres.
