Lannin, of the Boston Americans explained, because of the late date upon which the American League race was decided. By this system, successful applicants were assigned a number calling for tickets of a certain class, without a definite designation of the seats as in other years. Those first in line obtained the better seats as they were distributed by the ticket sellers, and it was to obby the ficket sellers, and it was to ob-tain this advantage that applicants sought the leading places in the lines. In all probability, club officials agree, more persons have been disap-pointed through failure to receive tickets this year than ever before. Hundreds of requests have been re-

This season Carrigan dispelled the last vestige of doubt in the minds of those inclined to hold him lightly. He has won another pennant without the services of Tris Speaker and Joe Wood, who a year ago were considered indis-pensable to the Red Stockings. When the refusal of Pitcher Joe Wood to report was followed by the sale of Center Fielder Tris Speaker to Cleveland, fan-dom not only began to weep for Carri-gan and his champions, but Boston faniom got out its hammers and began to make the coffin for their hopes.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT. Portland defeated Oakland yesterlay in a weird, free-hitting game that mounted to the voluminous score of 18 to 13, and was played in the remarkably fast time of something short of three weeks, at least so it seemed to the 600 apathetic fans. Nearly everybody's bat average profited by the fence-splitting soirce. "Chick" Cunningham, of the Oaks, bagged four hits, and five of the Beavers annexed three swats apiece off the Oak pitching quartet.

Young White started the twirling for Young White started the twirling for the Oaks; Kinney replaced him in the third, and then, with the acore 12 to 2, Del Howard in disgust took to the mound himself and for a couple of innings Howard had everything, including the waist line, that some witty bleacherite passed badinage over.

Even Del finally caught the fever, however, and after the Beavers hopped on him for six runs in the seventh inning, the manager of the Omega club of the league beckoned Boyd into the fracas and Boyd finished the travesty. Meanwhile some of the Beaver pitchers were getting theirs. Byron Houck, Meanwhile some of the Beaver pitchers were getting theirs. Byron Houck, as long as he was in the box, had the Oaks at his mercy, but Walter McCredie figured there was little use in wasting Houck on that sort of comic opera. Finally Mac yanked Byron in the seventh and gave Lyle Bigbee a chance to show his wares.

The score at this juncture stood 12 to 3 in Portland's favor. Within five minutes the Oaks had six runs over the old home plate, however, and McCredle made haste to get Bigbee out of the line of action.
