"What will be Japan's policy toward China?" the correspondent asked. "As the ministry was organized only yesterday, I have not discussed with any of my associates," he replied. "However, speaking generally, Japan's ambition is to have China benefit, like Japan, from the fruits of world civili-ration and world progress." The Japan

we do not protect American lives and American property abroad? The ade-quote protection of American citizens and their interests abroad according to and their interests abroad according to their right under international law is the cornerstone of a policy to promote American enterprise throughout the world. This protection has been de-liberately and deplorably refused by this Administration." Mr. Hughes then quoted Dr. Ellot. "President Ellot says the Adminis-tration has gone far to establish non-intervention by force of arms for the protection of miners and commercial to change American policy as to the protection of American citizens? Have they had the slightest authority among the American people to withheld and the American people to withhold pro-tection abroad? I do not overlook Mr. Elliot's reference to force of arms. We are desirous—no one more than I—of aiding and maintaining the peace of the world. I believe it to be a mistake to suppose that an adequate policy of protection to the known rights of American citizens is likely to necessi-tate the actual use of force. The sanction of force lies back of the laws and purguits of peace. It is idle to "The first principle is that we will not meddle with things that do not concern us.

"The second is that we will not merely talk about the rights of small states, but we will observe them.
"The third is that it shall be understood that at all events the lives and property of American citizens will be protected throughout the world."
The audience cheered when Mr. Hughes assailed the Administration for the enactment of the Adamson law.
"They told us four years ago, in eloquent phrase," he said, "of the new freedom. But recently, after surredering to the demand of force for legislation before investigation of the facts, they have introduced us to the new slavery."
