

ALLIES STAY FIRM IN MAIL DISPUTE

Promise to Minimize Delay Renewed, but Certain Rights Still Contended.

LAWLESS PRACTICE DENIED

No Concession of Principle of Diverting Ships to Give Censor Jurisdiction Is Indicated in British-French Note.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Identical memoranda from the British and French governments replying to the American protest against seizure of neutral mails were delivered today to the State Department by the embassies here.

The text was not made public, but the allies are understood to give renewed promises that every effort will be made to minimize delay and annoyance caused by examination, but to insist on certain legal rights in regard to mails which the United States has denied.

The principal complaint of the American government has been based on the contention that many vessels have been diverted from the high seas into British ports in order to give the British jurisdiction. There is no indication that the new memorandum makes any concession of principle on that point.

Reply is made in the memorandum to the American note of May 24 characterizing the allies' treatment of mails as a "lawless practice" and saying that "the allies are not prepared to give up their jurisdiction." There is no indication that the new memorandum makes any concession of principle on that point.

Objection Not Right, In View. The allies say that as the United States admits the right of censorship for purely postal purposes, it cannot rightly object to reasonable delays inevitable to that censorship.

The new communication is the second to come from the allies in the mails controversy which began January 4, with the United States entering a protest against the allies' interference with "inviolable mail," which was regarded as "excessively unjust."

The allies replied February 15, citing numerous cases where contraband had been shipped to Germany by parcel post and stating that parcel post should be treated as ordinary merchandise. It was promised, however, that the allies would "refrain on the high seas from seizing letter mail."

On May 24 the United States replied by complaining vigorously against the allies' method of applying the principle and by declaring the allied governments had proceeded "to deprive neutral governments of the benefits of these assurances," by forcing vessels off their course into British ports to gain "illegal jurisdiction."

Further Complaint Prepared. Officials of the State Department had become impatient at the long delay of the allies in answering the note of May 24. While awaiting the reply the allies had been gathering information from American business men and diplomatic agents and it is understood to be in a position to make further complaint. Unofficial explanations of the delay have attributed it largely to the desire that certain changes in censorship methods, such as the placing of shipping papers in special marked packages in order to expedite them through the censors' office, be adopted. The allies are believed to have agreed to these changes.

The new memorandum, American officials have carefully refrained from expressing any opinion as to what effect these measures would have on the attitude of the American government. It is expected that the allies' communication will be made public later by agreement between the governments concerned.

The State Department has been advised that the British reply to the American blacklist protest soon will be published here. There has been no indication as to its contents.

Thursday's War Moves

ANOTHER step forward in their quest of Trieste has been made by Italians south of Gorizia, additional points of vantage having been captured and 171 men made prisoner.

In this region, which is about 16 miles northwest of Trieste, and in the Julian Alps, to the east, the Italians report that they have captured 30,881 Austrians. On the Carso Plateau heavy Austrian attacks have been repulsed.

Along the entire Eastern Transylvanian front the Rumanians are in retreat, and in the north also are beginning to fall back before the troops of the Teutonic allies, according to Berlin. Bucharest says, however, that attacks at various points on their northern and northwestern fronts have been repulsed.

British troops have reached the outskirts of Seres in Greek Macedonia, having driven in their opponents from the outlying districts.

London reports the town is strongly held by the Teutons. Westward the village of Brod, which lies in Serbia southeast of Monastir, has been captured by the British. Both British and Sofia report the repulse of attacks along the Cerna River and on both sides of the Vardar.

That the British have gained some additional ground north of Thiepval, south of the Ancre River in France, and on the Sars-Guedecourt line is announced in the Berlin official communication, which says the British attacks here failed "for the most part" before the German curtain of fire. West of the Sars-Guedecourt line the French have made another advance.

South of the Somme violent artillery duels are in progress, especially between Gernemont and Chaulnes. "In the town of Ablaincourt the Germans and French are engaged in hand-to-hand fighting."

General Maurice was surrounded by maps showing in minute detail the topography of the country and positions of the troops at the different stages of the advance since the beginning of July.

"As we got on our difficulties grew less and less," he remarked, pointing out that the country thus far gained was really an enormous one. He said that the British had now reached the lower rolling lands. Whereas the positions captured were intricate systems of defenses, he said, the British now confront a single line of trenches.

"They (the Germans) are hard at work making another line here," he went on, indicating a line drawn on the map behind the present battle front. "When we get there they will be working on a line back here. Our work is to get ahead of their digging."

"We have never proceeded faster than we could with safety. Proof of that is that we have never been pushed back. We do not expect to maintain our recent rate of progress uniformly. From time to time we strike harder ground."

Accounting is asked

WINTERS ESTATE SAID TO HAVE BEEN MISMANAGED.

Agnes Butts Hecker, Administratrix.

Accused of Maladministration of Property.

Gross maladministration of the $100,000 estate of the late H. D. Winters is charged against Agnes Butts Hecker in a petition for an accounting and the surrender of real property, filed today in the Superior Court by Judge Cleeton set the hearing for November 20.

Willful negligence in the supervision of the estate and the appropriation of estate moneys for her own use are accusations against Mrs. Hecker made by Thomas J. Winters, Polly Forbes, Pauline A. Jennings, Anna M. Dillon and others, who are named in the petition.

The estate is that to which a deed, later branded a forgery, was presented by Will A. Purdy in a suit for possession, which was thrown out of court by Circuit Judge McGinn.

Mr. Winters died June 20, 1911. The following day Mrs. Hecker, then Agnes Butts, was appointed administratrix. Though she has not yet filed her final report and accounting, she is charged with the estate, so the petition alleges, because of the loss of revenue to herself.

A vigorous protest is made in the petition against the allowance to the administratrix of $100 a month extra compensation for her services, and of $15,000 for attorney's fees, as asked in a recent petition filed by Mrs. Hecker.

In asking for the return of the real property, the petitioners allege that the possession of this property by Mrs. Hecker was never really necessary for the administration of the estate, and that the estate should have been sold at once and the proceeds distributed to the heirs.

The petitioners also ask for the return of the real property, and for the payment of the debts of the deceased. The debts totaled $247,255, and the personal property of Mr. Winters was more than $250,000, it is asserted.

GERMANS ON SUBMARINE USE

Budget Committee Reports to Reichstag and Predicts Victory for Teutons.

PEACE PROPOSALS HINTED

Members of Government Told That Suffering Is Greater in Enemy's Countries and Retention of Captured Territory Urged.

BERLIN, Oct. 11, via London, Oct. 12.—The most notable incident at the opening of the day's Reichstag session was supplied by Major Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National Liberals, in his report from the budget committee, that, although it had been unable to reach a decision on the submarine question, it had voted, 24 to 4, against a discussion of the subject in open session.

Herr Bassermann ran through a short report of the general international situation, emphasizing particularly the entente's pressure on neutral powers and its efforts to force Greece into the war. In his report from the budget committee, he then read the committee's recommendations:

"I base this attitude upon a thorough discussion of the question of submarine warfare," the report read, "the members of all parties and the representatives of the government participating. All the naval, technical, military, economical and political aspects were thoroughly investigated and weighed. The government was conducted under the impression of the high importance of the question, strictly upon the merits of the case and with a general desire to serve the interests of the fatherland."

Committee Unable to Decide. "An agreement could not be reached in the committee, which therefore, refrained from making a decision. The committee recommends that the Reichstag in its deliberations abstain from a discussion of submarine warfare."

"I base this attitude upon a thorough discussion of the question of submarine warfare," the report read, "the members of all parties and the representatives of the government participating. All the naval, technical, military, economical and political aspects were thoroughly investigated and weighed. The government was conducted under the impression of the high importance of the question, strictly upon the merits of the case and with a general desire to serve the interests of the fatherland."

Major Bassermann expressed his confidence that the firm will of the German nation would bring about a victorious end and "subdue the hostile spirit of the British government and the British people."

Russia Blamed for War. Herr Naumann, the Radical leader, alluded to the causes of the war, insisting that the only means of averting war had been to maintain direct communication between Vienna and St. Petersburg, which was rendered impossible by the continuation of the Russian mobilization. Great Britain had been able to prevent this, as she recognized the dangers underlying this mobilization, which would have led to a world war.

General Zembrakolis Is Appointed Minister of War of Provisional Government and Takes His Oath of Allegiance.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Exchange Telegraph Company's Athens correspondent quotes ex-Premier Venizelos as declaring in a speech at Saloniki that he had placed himself at the head of a movement which was bound to succeed.

"The islands have all adhered to the movement and are prepared to accept the mobilization which will be declared shortly," said Mr. Venizelos. "The constitution must be reversed, even if we have to march without Athens and old Greece. We intend to march against Ferdinand and his treacherous son."

General Zembrakolis has been appointed minister of war in the Greek provisional government, organization of which is being completed at Saloniki, says a Reuter dispatch from Saloniki under date of October 10. General Zembrakolis took the oath of allegiance on that day.

The seat of the government, it is said, is undecided, but it is believed it will be Mytilene.

DELEGATES AGREE SEASIDE CONVENTION BEST EVER HELD.

Medford and Prineville Ask for Next Year's Meeting—Latter Offer Creates Ripple.

SEASIDE, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—Promptly at 1:30 o'clock President Castner adjourned the convention of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, to meet next year at a time and place to be designated later.

By common consent the annual convention of the federation was the most successful, imposing, instructive and useful convention, ever held by the federation. Delegates were profuse in their expressions of appreciation for the setting, spirit and varied programme, which did not permit of an idle moment from the time the convention of more than 200 delegates was first called to order.

After adjournment yesterday afternoon about 100 delegates awaited the arrival of a plunge in the natorium swimming tank, others viewed the sunset or went automobile driving over the Columbia Highway. The evening session was president's night. Many and varied were the reports presented by each delegation and not until 11 o'clock did the delegates adjourn to meet again Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock for completion of their labors.

The Prineville and Medford delegations requested the honor of entertaining the convention in 1917. A ripple of excitement was created when Prineville guaranteed that members of the Prineville Commercial Club would receive the delegates with open arms. The delegates were referred to the executive committee.

Following the failure of his two sons to pass the rigorous medical examination and suit with the colors, Capt. Chatham, Ontario, joined and was accepted. He has since joined the battalion.
