Mr. Wilson Says Whoever Does
So Is Unworthy of Na-

lives, to draw neighborhoods together, to create community of feeling, to create those arteries which must be shared to the arteries of the human body. The blood of the Nation will not flow in harmonious concord unless it can flow in intimate sympathy.

"And so the argument, the material argument, the argument about markets and crops and the products of the mines sink into relative unimportance when you consider the spiritual thing that you are doing in making roads. You know there is an old saying that the lines between sections are obliterated only by the feet that cross them. There is a very genial saying of a great English writer that he never could hate a man he knew. And sectionalism is based upon the radical danger of every nation, namely, ignorance. The only thing that really blinds is not knowing what we are talking about. The only thing that binds a nation together is the knowledge of its several parts of each other.

Sectional Issue Revival Deplored.

"My fellow citizens, I need not tell you that I did not come here to talk politics, but there is one thing that is pertinent in this connection, which I cannot deny myself the privilege of saying. Any man who revives the issue of sectionalism in this country is unworthy of the confidence of the Nation. He shows himself a provincial, he shows that he himself does not know the various sections of his own country, he shows that he has shut his own heart up in a little province and that those who did not seek the special interests of that province are to him sectional, while he alone is National. That is the depth of anti-patriotic feeling.

"And that is my interest in good roads, for, my fellow citizens, my present interest is chiefly in the nationalization of America. We have created a great people. At least, if I may put it so, we have brought together all the elements, all the component parts, all the necessary characters and industries and material resources of a great Nation. And we suddenly find that we are face to face with the problem of assembling these elements in the sense in which the mechanic assembles the parts of a machine. And having assembled those elements, we have to put them together for the purpose of one unquenchable force, to which the world shall hereafter look for most of its ideal principles, for most of its example in the practice of liberty. And therefore, the thing that I am more interested in than anything else in these days is the forces that make for drawing America together into a great spiritual unit.

Unity of Purpose Desired.

"Now, my fellow-citizens, I have had time, and opportunity, until the present to do pretty much what we wanted in America and to do different things in different parts of America. But just so soon as this great European war is over, America has got to stand for one thing and only one thing in the world and she must be ready with united force. We can't play with the elements of our life any more.

"America came into existence, my fellow-citizens, not in order to show the world the most notable example it had ever had of the accumulation and use of material wealth, but in order to show the way to mankind in every part of the world to justice and freedom and liberty. So the words I want you to carry in your mind in connection with this good roads cause are these: First, nationalization, getting all the fibres of this great vital people united in a single organism; second, mobilization, getting them all related to each other, so co-ordinated, so organized, so united that when they move they move as a single great irresistible conquering force.

"And the third word that I want you to consider is the word that I suppose affords the best doing the things. That word is the word co-operation. I wish that each one of us could fix in his mind the difference between the way we have been trying to do things and the way we ought to do things. We have been trying to do things by combination, by setting off one powerful group against another, by setting up groups in particular industries or spheres of our life which try to exclude all other groups by the power or by the method of their destroying competition. That is not the way to build a nation together. That is the way to build it up into warring elements.

Co-Operation Held Essential.

"Instead of exclusive combinations, I want to see universal co-operation. There are good signs in the air. Have you not noticed how almost every great industry, every great profession, every year holds a congress of some sort. Why, even the advertising men, who we thought were the sharpest competitors in America, have a National association in which they co-operate. For what purpose? For the purpose of getting ahead of each other? No. For the purpose of guiding one another and setting up standards, and the chief standard they have adopted is the word 'truth.' And so in profession after profession men are getting together by way of co-operation instead of by way of mutual destruction. I hold this to

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Father Tells How Boy Was Restored to Health and Strength.

We have always told the people of Portland that Vinol is a wonderful body builder for ailing children. Here is more proof of the fact—

J. L. Albany, of Miami, Fla., says: "Our little boy was puny and cross from the time he was born, and we hardly knew how to handle him. When he was three years old he was weak and so cross we could hardly live with him and we could not get him to eat anything. A friend asked us to try Vinol. We did so and you should see the change it has made in him. He is now a good-natured, healthy youngster, ready to eat at any time, and we cannot praise Vinol enough."

Vinol is especially efficient in building up iron, weak, ailing children, because of the beef and cod liver phosphates, iron and manganese phosphates and glycerophosphates which it contains, and as it is without oil or grease, children love to take it. be a happy omen. I see the growth in America of this conception of solidarity; of the interest of each being the interest of all and the interest of each growing out of the interest of all.

"There is one field in which we are particularly sluggish in respect of this. I mean the relations between capital and labor. Nothing can be for the interest of capital that is not in the interest of labor; and nothing can be in the interest of labor which is not in the interest of capital. If men want to get rich, they must have human relationships with those who help them to get rich. That is a lesson that men have been exceedingly slow to learn, slower than any other lesson of co-operation in America. I pray God that their eyes may be opened, and that they may see that the future of this country lies in their co-operation, open, candid, cordial and not in their antagonism, and that if they will once get together and plan in the same spirit the same things, the industry of America will go forward by leaps and bounds such as we have never yet conceived.

Forces of Society Corrective.

"Sometimes it is necessary in order to arrest attention to pull men up with a round turn and say, 'stop, look, listen,' because presently if you don't, the great forces of society will correct the things that have gone wrong. Society is the jury. The parties are not going to settle. The nation is going to settle, and I am counsel for the nation.

"And so, my fellow citizens, you see how this little plant of the cause of good roads spreads into a great tree bearing upon its boughs the fruits of the savior of life. We have got to know each other. We have got to co-operate with each other. We have got to stand together. That is all that politics is for. As a contest for office, it is contemptible, but as a combination of thoughtful men to accomplish something for the Nation, it is honorable. If I could not be associated with a Congress that did something I would quit. If I didn't think that making speeches contributed a little to the common thought, that it had nothing to do with selfish purpose, but had everything to do with combined purpose, I wouldn't make any speeches. Speeches are not interesting because of the man who makes them or the words he uses. They are interesting in proportion as the people who hear believe what he says.

"Now, talking through the hat ought to be a dead industry. It ought to be discouraged by silence and empty halls; and every man ought to have as a motto over the stage from which he speaks, 'Put up or shut up.' I am ready to take my own medicine; if I don't put up I am ready to shut up.

League for Peace Proposed.

"I want to leave a very solemn thought in your minds. America is now about to experience her re-birth. We are making America in pieces for the sake of the pieces. Now we have got to construct her entire, for the sake of the whole and for the sake of the world because, ladies and gentlemen, there is a task ahead for us for which we must be very soberly prepared. I have said, and shall say again, that when the great present war is over it will be the duty of America to join with the other nations of the world in some kind of league for the maintenance of peace. Now, America was not a party to this war, and the only terms upon which we will be admitted to the league, almost all the other powerful members of which were engaged in the war and have made incalculable sacrifices, which we apparently made none, are the only terms we desire, namely, that America shall not stand for national aggression, but shall stand for the just conception and bases of peace, for the competitions of merit alone, and for the generous rivalry of liberty.

"Are we ready always to be the friends of justice, of fairness, of liberty, of peace and of those accommodations which rest upon justice and peace? In these two trying years that have just gone by we have forborne, we have not allowed provocation to disturb our judgments, we have seen to it that America kept her peace when all the rest of the world seemed to have lost its peace. Only upon the terms of retaining that peace and justice, and the splendid force which always comes with peace can we hope to play the beneficent part in the history of the world of which we are justly proud. So, my fellow countrymen, build upon these new roads, in the construction of which the Federal Government is now to play a large part, the spirit of nationality, the spirit of co-operation, the spirit of liberty, the power which will free people know how to exercise.

National Training Advised.

In his second speech before a gathering of farmers here, President Wilson said in part:

"It is clearly the legitimate function, if it be not clear duty, of the Federal Government to see that instruction in scientific agriculture is widespread as it is possible to make it, but obviously it is also its duty to see that men are trained in other vocations, in the mechanical, in the domestic, in the great multiforms of industry which have made this country rich and by reaction have tended to make the farmer himself rich.

"In proportion as this country grows in population, we can supply the rest of the world's food in smaller and smaller quantities unless we increase our production per acre and we ought to continue to feed the world, not merely in order that our farmers may get rich, but in order that we might acquire ourselves like men of knowledge and men of efficiency.

"But not only does the Agricultural Department conduct demonstrations on the farms, but it has lately, within the last three years, undertaken to do what it never did before, acquaint the farmer in detail with his markets, their whereabouts, their prices, the means of access to them, the methods of co-operation which ought to make access easier than it is if there is no co-operation, and has undertaken in a great bureau of markets to guide the businesslike farmer in selling his crops at the greatest advantage and where they are most needed.

"And along with that has gone the very interesting development of the parcels post, whereby the more perishable kind of farm products can be rapidly shipped and distributed in moderately small quantities.

The President then spoke of the Federal reserve act, of the rural credits act, the warehouse act and the grain standards act, saying all have been of immense benefit to the farmers.

"Don't you think that this is an interesting story? That is the story I came to tell you, and I am going to say in your private ear that I am personally proud to tell it, because I was personally privileged to have a great deal to do with it. Do not misunderstand me. I am not claiming the credit for this; I am simply wanting to tell you how proud I am to have had a part in it.

"I do not apparently do much more than sign bills, but I always know what is in them before I sign them, and it will be all the rest of my life a matter of pride that I was privileged to play a part in services to the farmers to be better farmers and to be real business men. They were at a fatal disadvantage in the field of credit; they were at a fatal disadvantage in the field of distribution of their products; they were at a disadvantage as compared with farmers in other countries in respect to the scientific methods of farming. Now most of these things have been corrected. At any rate we have made the beginning, and it only depends upon our energy and intelligence how much we make of it.

"For my part I look forward to an unprecedented increase in the efficiency of American farming and an unprecedented increase in the efficiency and happiness of the American farmer.

Politics for Talk Disparaged.

"A man happy, I take it, in proportion as he accomplishes something. Some people think they are happy in proportion as they do nothing. Some people, as a witty acquaintance of mine said, devote themselves to expense regardless of pleasure. They do not know what pleasure is. The supreme human pleasure, it seems to me, is to do something worth doing the way it ought to be done.

"That is the only reason I am interested in politics. I do not regard politics as an opportunity to talk, but as an opportunity to unite with other men in accomplishing something. If I did not, I would talk about something else, because I know a good many subjects about which you can talk and the average audience will not know whether you are talking sense or not. But politics is the method of organizing the National life in the way that will do the Nation the most good, and whenever it gets off of that conception it becomes uninteresting, because it is futile, and I am not interested in futile things.

"But I am interested, my fellow citizens, in the politics which is going to organize this country for unparalleled efficiency in the years to come. This country has a role to play in the world which does not merely consist of feeding it, does not merely consist in furnishing it with better manufactured goods than you can get anywhere else. It is merely consisting in furnishing it with coal and gold and iron and all the other priceless deposits of our wonderful continent; but it consists in supplying it with the conception of justice and liberty, which will put breath into the lungs of every free man. I am interested in the farmer because I want people well enough fed to do the job to the queen's taste."

HISTORIC CHURCH BURNS

Tramp's Pipe Starts Blaze in Building at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—A spark from a tramp's pipe started a blaze today which partially destroyed St. Dominic's Hall here, said to be the oldest church of the Order of the Holy Ghost in California.

In the early '50s and vigilante days a tiny congregation gathered in the church. After the destruction of its pretentious successor in the 1906 earthquake its walls again echoed the priests' "Dominus Vobiscum," but shortly after it again settled into the role of "a deserted old church."

LAND BILL ASSAILED

Pomona Grange of Clackamas County Takes Action.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

C. Schuebel, Former Associate of W.
S. U'Ren, Chief Advocate of Measure, Explains Provisions, Urges Opposition.

OREGON CITY, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—Clackamas County Pomona Grange has taken a definite stand on the so-called land and loan bill, which will be on the ballot November 7. After C. Schuebel, ex-legislator and city attorney of Oregon City, had explained the measure and several of the grangers had expressed their views a resolution of condemnation was adopted yesterday at the meeting at Parkplace.

Mr. Schuebel, who is leading the campaign against the bill, is a former law partner of W. S. U'Ren, its greatest advocate. The two attorneys, who worked together for years and whose ideas were much the same along the lines of radical legislation, have widely divergent views of the land and loan bill.

The resolution adopted by the grange follows:

"Whereas, The so-called people's land and loan bill, if adopted by the popular vote in November, would become a part of the constitution of Oregon; and

"Whereas, It would make the farm owners and home owners mere tenants of the state, possessed of empty titles and burdened with obligation of paying each year the full rental value of their homes and land into the public treasury; and

"Whereas, By each provision for loaning $1500 cash without interest for five years to anyone who with his family has failed to accumulate property of the total value of $2250, it would penalize thrift and thrust a premium upon shiftlessness and extravagance at the taxpayers' expense; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we urge all members and all other intelligent persons to vote 'no' on the revolutionary proposals of this radical measure, so it may be voted down by so large a majority that the promoters of this single tax legislation may be brought to realize the futility of encumbering the ballot with visionary and dangerous schemes at every general election."

Yamhill Registration Is 8435.

MINNIVILLE, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—The total 1916 registration for Yamhill County, as tabulated by the County Clerk, is 8435, which is 372 short of the registration for 1914. This year's registration is classified as follows: Republican, 4814; Democratic, 2257; Prohibition, 948; Socialist, 157; Independent, 352. There is a gain from the registration of two years ago of 431 for the Republicans, 157 for the Democrats, with a loss of 681 for the Prohibitionists.
