

PINCHOT, AS HOSE, ARGUES FOR HUGHES

Record as Governor Cited as Most Progressive—Effect of Tariff Mentioned.

BROKEN PLEDGES COUNTED

Ex-Chief Forester Appeals for Election of Man Whose Word Can Be Trusted and Who Can Win Respect of World.

(Continued From First Page.) ord as an exponent of progressive policies, Mr. Pinchot read excerpts from a number of laudatory editorials appearing in the New York World, leading Democratic paper of the United States during and following Hughes' incumbency as Governor of New York.

"His own words of a few years back, before Mr. Hughes was opposing its candidacy for the Presidency, sum up the situation better than I could tell it. What more convincing evidence could you want?"

"I regret to have to say," went on Mr. Pinchot, "that after having been in office three and one-half years I have learned that the larger capacity than any other man in public life to say one thing and do another—and get away with it—is the chief defect of our political leadership."

"What we want in the man we put into the White House is exactly the kind of man you want for a friend, for a banker, the man with whom you have business dealings."

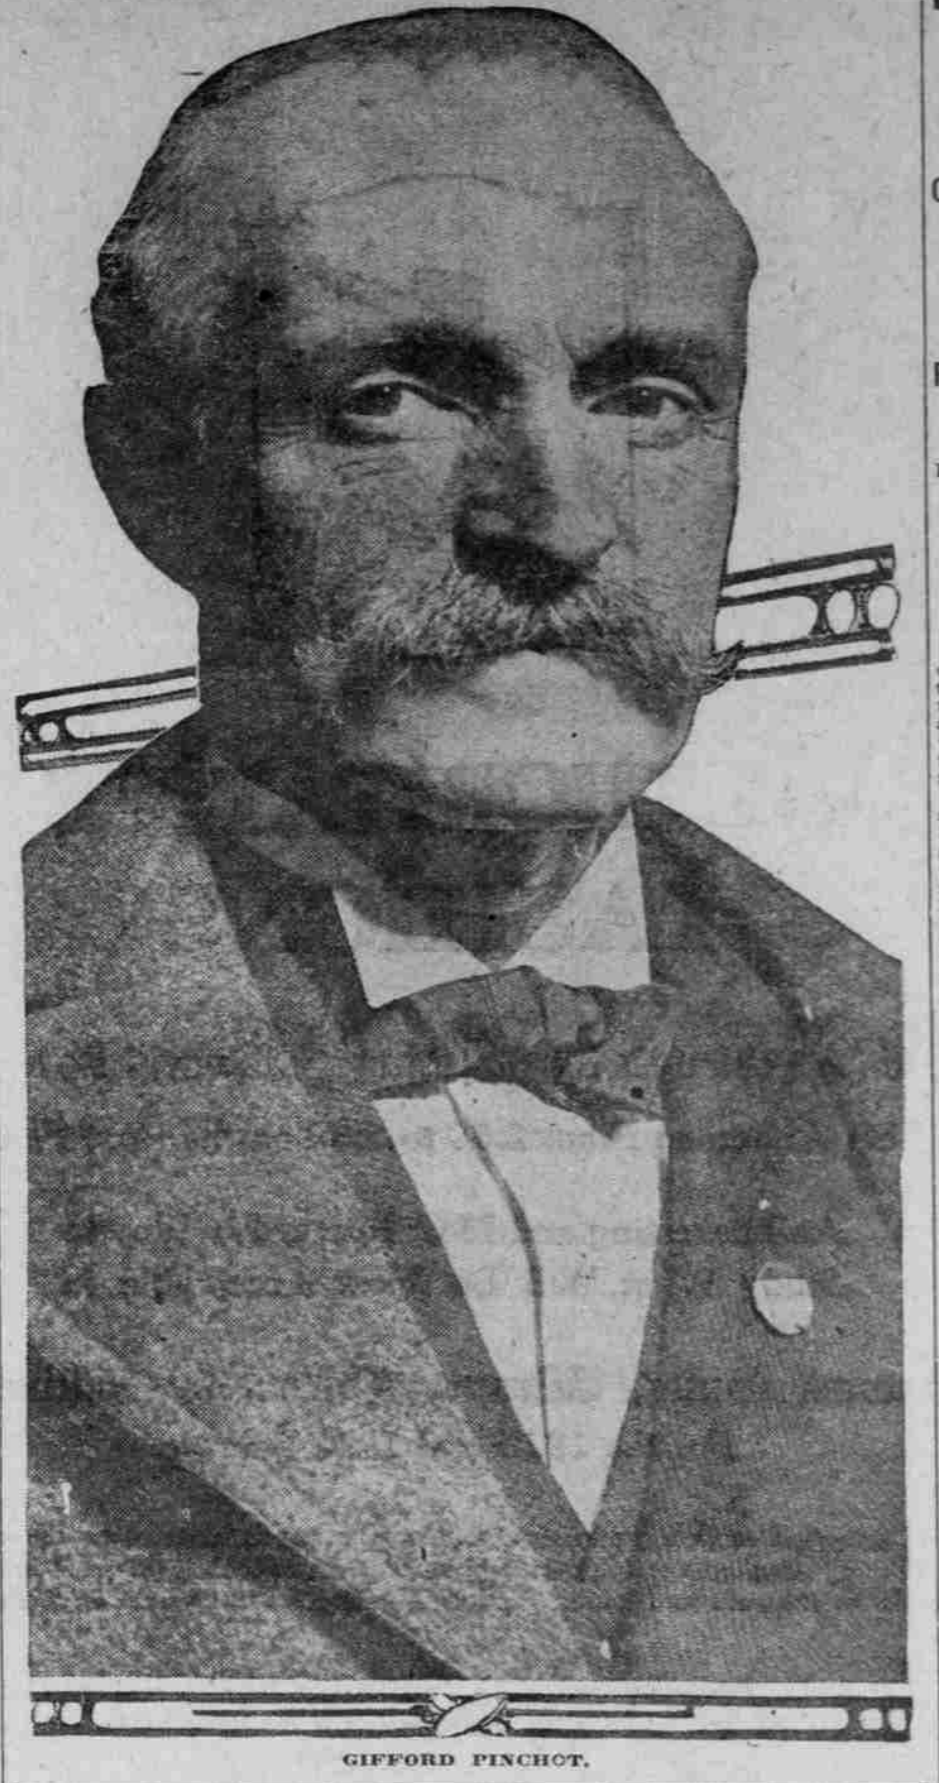

"I know I admired him very much and hoped to see him succeed," Mr. Pinchot said. "And to make campaign pledges and not live up to them is just another way of getting something for nothing."

"I have known Washington for the better part of six Presidents' Administrations," he said earnestly, "and I have never known an Administration as secretive, one in which the people know as little of the public business as that of President Wilson. And I shall ask you to consider that, in connection with his declaration that his Administration would be characterized by 'bitless publicity.'"

"It is true that we have spent between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 in warring expeditions into Mexico; that more of our citizens have been killed in Mexico than were killed during the Spanish War, and that during Wilson's term in the White House we have been always on the verge of trouble and have skirted from one war scare or crisis into the next."

"I want to say here that I have promised nobody a job, nor shall I do so. I expect to be free to select those who will work with me in the administration of the office. The people are entitled to the best service and I shall try to see that they get it in every department of the court."

to be kept," said Mr. Pinchot. "And to make campaign pledges and not live up to them is just another way of getting something for nothing."

"The chief argument for Wilson's reelection," he asserted, "appears to be that we have not been at war during his Administration."

BIG CAMPAIGN GETS FARE IN OREGON

Only Outside Speakers Left on List Are W. L. Jones, E. G. Mills and Senator Gore.

PLEA FOR BORAH DENIED

List of Notables Who Have Been Heard in State Is Long, Ending with Gifford Pinchot—Women Play Prominent Part.

Most of the heavy artillery of the campaign in Oregon, so far as important outside speakers are concerned, has now been fired by both Republicans and Democrats. For the remaining two weeks until election the major part of the work will be done by volunteers from the state.

Gifford Pinchot, the noted Progressive, who spoke at the Baker Theater last night for Hughes in the campaign for National prominence scheduled to speak in Portland, Wesley L. Jones, United States Senator from Washington, will speak in Salem tonight and Edgar G. Mills, of Seattle, will speak through the week. They are the only outside speakers now listed to talk in the state, however.

It had been hoped by Ralph E. Williams, Republican National Committeeman, and Judge Charles L. McNary, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, to bring Senator Gifford Pinchot to Portland to speak this week. Senator Borah is so greatly in demand, however, for speeches elsewhere, that he has been called to Portland to this effect was received at Republican headquarters yesterday.

The Democrats have only one nationally prominent speaker yet to be heard in Oregon. Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, "the blind Senator," as he is known, is to make two speeches in the state this week, but will not speak at Portland unless his itinerary is changed at the last moment.

Both Republican and Democratic National Committees have sent some of their trump cards to Oregon for campaign speeches, and Portland has been fortunate enough to hear most of them. Among the Republicans and Progressives who have spoken here for Hughes are Albert J. Beveridge, Charles Warren, Theodore Roosevelt, Estabrook, Gifford Pinchot, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who spoke at Pendleton, and ex-Senator W. L. Jones, of Ohio, who made a notable Hughes address at Dallas.

The Democrats have had such successful campaigns during the campaign in Oregon. The Republicans have uncovered a remarkable and not effective campaign in Oregon. The Republicans have uncovered a remarkable and not effective campaign in Oregon.

MRS. KENT APPEALS Failure of President to Aid Suffrage Is Basis.

Views of Two Compared Wilson Inconsistencies and Steadfast Refusal to Favor Federal Amendment Are Cited as Proof Hope Is Useless.

Many Excuses Are Recalled. "When we first went to see Mr. Wilson," said Mrs. Kent, "he told us that he was not an individual, but the spokesman for his party."

Vote by States Impossible. "As another argument against us he said that National suffrage should be gained by the states. He thinks that all the state constitutions can be amended to include equal suffrage."

Case, Not Party, Represented. Before attacking Wilson's position on suffrage, Mrs. Kent said that she represented a cause and not any particular candidate. "We are idealists," she said.
