BAKER HAS NEW PLAYS

"THE LAW OF THE LAND" COMING FOR NEXT WEEK.

"Potash and Perlmutter" to Be Given Thanksgiving Week, and Other Successes Are on List.

A prominent theater-goer was heard to remark upon the many entirely new plays (to stock) that the Alcazar Players are offering, and have announced for future offerings at the Baker Theater this season. Not only are they new to stock, but, as far as Portland and the country west of the Rocky Mountains is concerned, they are entirely unfamiliar except through the medium of the press and magazine articles.

One reason for this is the great scarcity of "road companies" the past few years. Result, that after a season in New York, Chicago and a few of the big metropolitan centers, what is to become of a play? If there are no companies going out the play goes either to the storehouse to mold and rust, or is released for stock.

Nearly every big New York success of the past two years has been released for stock, including "The Law of the Land," which will be seen at the Baker next week, this being George Broadhurst's powerful drama which ran all season at the Forty-eighth-Street Theater, New York.

For Thanksgiving week a big production of "Potash and Perlmutter," founded on the famous Montague Glass stories in the Saturday Evening Post, will be given, followed by that tremendous success "The Song of Songs," which ran three weeks at the San Francisco Alcazar last Summer.

Then comes "The Miracle Man." Only one play on the list is a stock repeat this year, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," now announced for Christmas week. It is an unusual record.

The entertainment committee, made up of young men and women from all departments of the street railway company service, consists of Charles Bauer, Odin Evanson, Harry Strugate, Harold Ford, C. H. Ferris, Charles Von Rhein, Nelson Hogue, William Saunders, George Jett and Frank New, and Misses Arlie Olson, Rhea Joslyn, Claire Mann, Ethel Boothby, Helen Hughes and Beatrice Lash.

TUNNEL IDEA REVIVED

New Route to Rich Tualatin Valley Again Proposed.

BACKING IS BEING SOUGHT

Rough Survey Made in Days of Mayor Simon Is Still Held—Cost Is Estimated at $1,500,000. Special Levy Suggested.

Interest in a tunnel through the hill, to tap the rich Tualatin Valley, is being revived by prominent Portland business and professional men.

During the tenure of office of Mayor Simon a commission of five men, among them George W. Joseph, was appointed to look into the feasibility of the construction of such a tunnel, to have prepared an engineer's survey and estimate of the cost of construction, and go over other details incident to the tunnel's construction.

A rough survey of the tunnel was made by Newell, Gossett & Walsh, local engineers, and maps prepared that are still in the possession of Mr. Joseph. The tunnel ended there, however, one of the contributing factors of its failure being the opposition of large East Portland residential property owners.

Legislature May Act.

Mr. Joseph, Julius L. Meier, C. Ben Riesland, and others have done what they are able to to interest some in the construction of the tunnel, and, if possible, some legislator will be approached who will take the proposition to the State Legislature at its next session and have the plan worked out on a business-like basis.

Mr. Joseph suggests that a tunnel-assessment district be created and the land affected taxed so many dollars per acre to insure the beginning at least of the construction. He asserts that there are many people in the Tualatin Valley eager for the construction of the tunnel, and feels that if such were built, the tolls on streetcars, automobiles and other vehicles would aid materially in the liquidation of any debt incurred above that for which the assessments would pay.

It is understood that several of the civic organizations in communities in the Tualatin Valley have considered the matter seriously lately.

Hillsdale Committee Named.

The Hillsdale Community Club has appointed a committee, headed by I. N. Fleischner, that will go into the detail of cost of construction, location of site, etc., shortly.

Samuel C. Lancaster, designer and builder of the Columbia River Highway, has also become interested in the project, and the maps prepared several years ago are now in his possession. He expects to have a conference with Mr. Joseph soon over the situation.

Mr. Joseph suggested to Commissioner Dieck recently that his department prepare plans, so that business men would have something definite upon which to work.

The construction of the tunnel, double-tracked and heavily timbered, Mr. Joseph thought, would not cost more than $1,500,000, although he had forgotten the exact figures named in the engineer's estimate.

'SKIT' AT 'HIP' CLEVER

NEW MOTION PICTURES ALSO ARE REAL ENTERTAINING.

Pretty Girls Perform With Unusual Ability—Comedy and Dancing Appear on Programme.

In the new show which opened yesterday, to run until Sunday, at the Hippodrome, there's entertainment of every variety and new motion pictures, too. An unusually clever little sketch attracts and holds interest in its development. "His Nobs" is its title, and it deals with social economics in a squalid part of a city. A doctor, interested in criminology, has taken a street waif into his home, and she brings along her pet, a rat named "His Nobs." A theft occurs in the doctor's home, and suspicion is directed toward the child, until his ratship proves to be the thief. Celia Rosewood, who is as attractive as her name is odd, plays the slum child with astonishing ability and sustaining interest in the role. Robert H. Bertram is capable as the doctor, and a pretty girl, Alice May, is excellent as the doctor's wife. A real rat appears as "His Nobs."

The Original Four, in "Harmony Galore," are a feature of the bill. Their music is delightful, the four voices blending harmoniously, and they leave happy memories of their act. The four men are smartly attired and are all dashing in appearance, which puts "pep" into their presentation.

A duo of interest is Earl Flynn and a beautiful girl, Nettie McLaughlin, who offer sensational singing, sensational dancing and out-of-the-ordinary exchange of comedy. Miss McLaughlin wears lovely frocks and is especially attractive as an old-fashioned girl, with hoops and poke bonnet.

A novelty act is that of the O'Mar Sisters, whirly girlies. They ride merrily through space suspended by their teeth, and performing various achievements—as playing a bell-xylophone hung in mid-air, while they whirl. They present quick changes of apparel, flying as butterflies and again going through acrobatic adventure.

Puchini Brothers are songsters and instrumentalists, one playing the accordion and the other the guitar.

Hoey and Bellew are a pair of chatter boxes, who make song departures with new stuff.

The photoplay is the seventh thrilling episode in the "Shielding Shadow" series, with a comedy feature entitled "The Bogus Booking Agent," besides the newest in the Pathe News.

REVIEW WRIT GRANTED

HEARING OVER DUNBAR ESTATE SET FOR DECEMBER.

Alleged Sweetheart and Creditor Seeks to Administer Property Left to Boy of 13.

A writ of review of the action of County Judge Cleeton in the appointment of Donald McLeod as administrator of the estate of the late George H. Dunbar was granted by Circuit Judge Gatens yesterday, and a hearing was set for December 4. The writ was granted on the petition of Martha U. Cook, alleged creditor and sweetheart of the deceased.

Mr. Dunbar died in Portland October 7, 1916, leaving an estate valued at $10,000. His sole heir is a son, Robert Dunbar, aged 13, who is living in Maine. On October 17 Miss Cook filed a petition for appointment as administrator, as Mr. Dunbar died intestate, asserting that she was the chief creditor of the estate, having a claim of $1250 against Mr. Dunbar.

Judge Cleeton denied her petition, after listening to her explanation of promises made her by Mr. Dunbar, who, she said, was to have married her later in October, had he lived.

On October 30 B. D. Perkins, a cousin of the deceased, filed a petition for letters testamentary. His petition was also denied, as he is a resident of the state of Washington. The appointment of Mr. McLeod by Judge Cleeton was subject to the approval of relatives, and was satisfactory to those concerned with the son's interests, but not to Miss Cook.

"Why Has My Wife Always Urged Me to Buy a Home?"

In the rush of business life a man all too quickly loses sight of many of the factors which are so vital to a woman's happiness. In many cases, they are seemingly unimportant things, but to a woman they mean far more than man realizes.

As an illustration, how long has it been since you sent your wife a bouquet of flowers or took home a box of chocolates? Do it tonight. She will appreciate it far more than its monetary value.

The same is true with a home, and in proportion to its cost. Man may hope for a home of his own, but never to the extent that woman longs for it.

In this modern day, with so many excellent plans for financing home construction on a monthly installment basis, a man should search for the best proposition available, and immediately arrange to build that home which he and his family so certainly deserve.
