MORE PAY PROPOSED

Multnomah Board Would Get $250 a Month Under Bill.

OTHER INTERESTS FORBID

Measure's Champions Point Out Big Responsibilities Imposed and Great Amounts Expended Each Year in County Business.

A measure is to be introduced in the coming Legislature to increase the salaries of the Multnomah County Commissioners from $150 to $250 a month. It will be among the measures affecting Multnomah County that probably will be discussed at the first meeting of the Multnomah delegation, to be held at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday night. The measure is not likely to name Multnomah County specifically, but will provide that the salaries of Commissioners in counties of 100,000 or more inhabitants shall be $250 a month. This amounts to the same thing. Multnomah being the only county having 100,000 or more inhabitants, and is the favorite method of wording legislation affecting this county. Rufus Holman, Philo Holbrook and

A. A. Muck are the three Commissioners whose salaries would be increased if the bill is passed. Commissioners Holman and Holbrook are now in office and Commissioner Muck will succeed Commissioner W. L. Lightner on January 1.

In behalf of the County Commissioners, it is argued that the office of County Commissioner of Multnomah County is even more important than that of a member of the Portland City Council, who gets $5000 a year, and that a reasonably good salary should be paid. It is pointed out that the County Commissioners each year spend from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 of the county's money, and last year, on account of the Columbia Highway road bond issue, spent more than $4,000,000. With such heavy responsibilities, proponents of the salary increase measure contend, the salary should be made commensurate with the job. It is understood that the measure will provide that under the proposed $250 a month salary, County Commissioners must devote all their time to the county and drop outside business ventures. At present the Commissioners get $150 a month, but may devote as much or as little time as they please to other business.

Turner Campaign Progresses. TURNER, Or., Dec. 18.—(Special).—The campaign for funds for building and equipping of a playshed for the Turner School under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher organization of this place is progressing with satisfactory results. The playshed will be big enough for the boys and girls of the grammar school and the high school. Space for basketball will be made. Mrs. J. E. Waggoner is president of the association. William L. Finley, of Portland, State Game Warden, will give a lecture before the Parent-Teacher Association and school in January.

SOME CHRISTMAS PROBLEMS FIND THEIR WAY INTO PRINT

Addison Bennett Hears Stories of Faults and Foibles Which Sound Amusing to All but the Principals.

BY ADDISON BENNETT.
Fruit of Delivery Company.
"LAST YEAR," said the old bachelor to his married friend, "I raffled my Christmas presents off. Instead of buying certain things for certain persons I figured up how many friends I wished to remember, wrote the names all down and numbered them, from 1 to 27. Then I went shopping and purchased 27 articles at 50 cents each. I wrapped each article up and numbered these packages from 1 to 27. Placing each set of numbers in a separate hat, I blindfolded myself and drew the numbers out, one from each hat, and as I did so I wrote the name and address of the lucky ones on the corresponding packages."
"How did it work out?" asked his friend.
"I don't exactly know," replied the bachelor, for I went East a few days before Christmas and left the packages with a delivery company for delivery the day before Christmas. When I returned a few months ago I tried to find out how the scheme worked out but as not one of the 27 would even recognize me I have an idea the delivery company made a mess of it. Anyhow this Christmas I am going to give the $12.50 to a charitable organization and let it do the giving—and worry-ing."

And Now They Don't Speak.
Edith: "What are you going to give Clarence for a Christmas gift this year?"
Blanche: "Oh, I don't know; maybe a doll picture."
Edith: "Why not eat the pickle and give him one of your sweetest smiles?"
Overheard at the Cafeteria.
Jinks: "This selection of Christmas presents is no infant's job, let me tell you; I got in dutch last year by giving a red-headed girl a pair of gloves that proved to be the exact color of her hair."
Blinks: "That was nothing; I gave my rich aunt, whose half million I hoped to inherit, an elaborate silver hair receiver—and she is bald-headed!"
Christmas and the Colored Folks.
The colored people lay great store upon Christmas. To them it is the big day of the year, which is particularly true of the children of that race. This is shown plainly by the Sunday School attendance, which wanes suddenly in January, fades in the Spring and sinks almost to zero by the late Summer and early Fall. As the holiday season approaches it fattens up, and about the time every year the delinquent and tardy are all on hand.
Last Sunday afternoon an East Side school had been dismissed, two of the boys, each about 12 years old, were out on a vacant lot at play when one of them accidentally hit the other in the face with a stick, causing quite a wound, and one that bled freely. The wounded boy did not lose his presence of mind. He worked away at the gash trying to stop the flow of blood, but he could not do it. Holding his handkerchief up to the gash he said to his companion: "Rastus, you an me is gwine down to my house and we's gwine to tell my mudder that I fell down and cut this. That's wot we'll tell her and everybody, for you see it's only one more Sunday to Christmas and I'll try to believe it myself—ontwill early the day after Christmas, when I'm gwine to give you the cussedest lickin' enny nigger ever got in dis 'ere town, and after that for every word 'you speak to me I'll give you 'two swift kicks in the sjats."

THIRD PROUTY WILL FILED

Instrument Drawn in 1903 Only Presented for Record.

A third will of the late H. H. Prouty bobbed up yesterday, when Attorney Milton W. Smith filed with the County Court a will he drew up May 23, 1903. It was filed merely to be on record, as it is not the last will.
In this will, Mr. Prouty left the major portion of his estate, as he did in the will which is being contested, to the Salvation Army. He left Carl Reginald Prouty, the son who is fighting the validity of the last will, $3000 in trust for the furtherance of his education. His son was about 15 years old then.
Carl Prouty was left $10,000 in trust until he was 35 in the last will, which he is contending was executed under undue influence and when his father's mind was laboring under insane delusions.

MANY CASES NOT SET

ATTORNEYS FAIL TO APPEAR BEFORE PRESIDING JUDGE.

Litigants Not Represented When Call Is Made Thursday Will Lose Standing in Court.
Attorneys for 34 cases being unreasonably tardy for the first setting of cases for 1917 under the new presiding judge system of the Circuit Court, Circuit Judge Gantenbein yesterday fixed the trial dates of only 26 of the 60 cases called. The others will be called again at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, and if the attorneys are not in attendance they will be stricken from the docket.
The announcement of Judge Gantenbein was that the cases would be called at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, but only a handful of lawyers were on hand at that time. There should have been at least 120 attorneys in the courtroom if all the cases were represented. The Jurist postponed the assignment until 9:30, but even at that hour all were not present. The docket was called, however, and those arriving later were told to come back Thursday.
A case passed a second time and stricken from the docket will not be called until a new application is filed with the clerk of the court.
Judge Gantenbein announced yesterday that cases pending from the 1916 assignments by lot will be assigned in 1917 to the judges now hearing them, unless there be some good reason for doing otherwise.

MARK LEFT BY MR. LEONARD

Pioneer of 1850 Leader in City's Industrial Life.

Funeral services for H. C. Leonard, who died late Sunday night, have not been arranged, pending advice from relatives in the East. The Edward Holman Company is in charge.
Mr. Leonard was the last surviving member of the pioneer firm of Leonard & Green, and was instrumental in opening the era of modern improvements for the city. He was one of the owners of the first gas plant and the first waterworks system. He had been a resident of Oregon since 1859, and was nearly 94 years old.
Moose Lodge Formed.
MARSHFIELD, Or., Dec. 18.—(Special).—A Moose lodge with 75 members was instituted Sunday afternoon at Powers, the new logging center in the southern part of the county. The membership is made up of business men, store clerks and logging men. This lodge is the first secret order to be established at Powers.
