

SOCIETY NEWS BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

ONE of the most important events of the week is the Cinderella dance which will be held this evening in the crystal-room of Hotel Benson.

NEW CHAIRMAN OF SOCIAL COMMITTEE OF IRVINGTON CLUB WHO WILL GIVE BIG FORMAL BALL TOMORROW NIGHT.

Mrs. J. L. Bonham

Now comes the preparation for the big charity ball which is to be held heretofore, for the benefit of the Women's Exchange. It will be given at Multnomah Hotel on the evening of Thursday, January 18, and it is possible that both ballrooms and the entire mezzanine floor will be used for the occasion.

Cecil H. Bauer, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Alice Bernstein, left yesterday for New York to pass the holidays with their sister, Miss Emilie Frances Bauer, at 251 West 95th street.

Delta Kappa will hold an informal dance at the Portland Heights Club on Saturday night.

Prescott Cookinham will be a dinner host tonight preceding the Cinderella dance, the dinner to be given at the University Club. His guests will number 27.

Knights of Columbus will entertain their members tomorrow at a luncheon in the assembly hall of Multnomah Hotel at noon. More than 60 members have reserved places.

The Elks' Ladies Card Club will meet in the Elks' clubrooms this afternoon to play five hundred. Mrs. W. R. Mack will be the hostess. The prizes at the last meeting were won by Mrs. C. D. Kennedy, Mrs. H. Dantel and Mrs. E. N. Crockett.

Among the recent arrivals from this city at Hotel Hollywood, Hollywood, Cal., were Mrs. D. A. Shindler with her daughter, and Mrs. J. N. Page.

Plans are rapidly being formulated for the big dance to be given Thursday, December 28, by the Oregon Mount at Multnomah Hotel. It will be one of the most elaborate and largest of the affairs in which the college fraternity are interested, and as it takes place during the holidays it promises to be a brilliant and delightful affair.

A partial list of the patrons and patronesses includes: Governor Withycombe, Miss Withycombe, President and Mrs. Campbell, Dean and Mrs. John Straub, Hon. Miss Angie McDonald, of Ashland, Or., is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Diggles, 404 San Rafael street, for the holidays.

Dr. R. C. Coffey, of Portland, has been passing a few days at the Green-White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., attending the annual session of the Southern Surgical and Gynecological Society. This session was the largest the society has known, and a feature paper, which was read at the banquet on Monday night, being given by President Thomas S. Cullen, of America's Place in the Surgery of the World.

WHAT YOU CAN MAKE AT HOME BY MRS. GEORGE RAND.

HERE is a bedstead that Mack and I together have made for Midget's dolly house," said Mrs. M., setting out for my inspection a real work of art. "Mack smoothed and planned four small pieces of wood—they were about eight inches long—for the posts. Then he screwed and glued two cross pieces to each pair of the posts, and that made the frames for the head and foot boards. He tacked slats up and down on these two frames and put a square of solid wood in the center of each, on which I pasted paper like that on the chiffonier. Then he fastened the head and foot boards together with side pieces, and that finished our bedstead. Then he made a frame to fit it for the springs. And I bet you couldn't guess what we used for springs. Just see!" And she opened the bed up for me to look.

They had painted a piece of wire tying netting white and tacked it to the frame and it answered the purpose admirably. The little bed was fitted up very nicely. There was a piece of neatly hemmed muslin above this to protect the tiny mattress of striped ticking, a little quilted pad above the mattress, a pair of sheets with a crocheted blanket, and a pair of elderdown bound with an edge of silk and a fancy spread and pillow cover of

STYLE TIPS FROM PORTLAND STORES

NOW, with the many Christmas parties and holiday entertainments, evening gowns and frocks in the shops are having lively sale. There yet remain many that are taking their first trip out of seclusion into the display rooms. Milady should be charmed with a handsome rose model that is displayed in one of the shops. Rosinoids and wee bits of blue bows are tucked in here and there. The skirt is puffed at the hips and the bodice is of silver, very machine made and covered with overskirt of rose mulline that goes just to the front panel are features. A cloud-like affair is a white net and the skirt is one layer after another of mulling, only the very top of blue or two shades of rose. Of course they are just the right ones so that they blend instead of clash. For the young girl there are numerous fluffy, pleated or shirred white chiffon frocks. They have high waists, tiny puffed sleeves with ever so little trimming. Some have several overskirts. Some have rows of ruffles. Dainty blue, pink, apple-green, lavender and yellow chiffon dancing frocks girls are also shown in smart new styles.

Among the other interesting things on display are party cloaks—luxurious evening frocks and gowns. Gay plain satins and tulle and silks are used to line many of the best of the season's wraps.

WOMEN'S CLUBS BY EDITH KNIGHT HOLMES

THE social service department of the Portland Parent-Teacher Association will be Santa Claus to the poor children of the city. Today and tomorrow the committees representing every district of Portland will be busy at the headquarters at Fourteenth and Johnson streets. They will supply dolls, toys and other gifts for the children, otherwise would have no Christmas.

There are some families in which the father is out of work—not many, but some; there are others in which there has been misfortune, death or some other great sorrow. There are some little ones whose fathers are in jail. To some of these the committees will go with their gifts and their words of good cheer. Each child in the hospital wards will be remembered. If anyone wishes to assist in this work, he may apply at the headquarters in the free employment bureau, Fourteenth and Johnson, Mrs. W. I. Swank is chairman of the Christmas committee. Mrs. C. J. Devereaux is general chairman of social service work. About 50 women are assisting. The toys were collected in the various schools through the courtesy of the School Board. The boys in the manual training department mended the toys and the girls of the sewing classes dressed the dolls. Any person who knows of a destitute family may report the case to the social service committee.

Fulton Park Parent-Teacher Association met on Tuesday and made plans for an afternoon to be held on Friday in the home of Mrs. Edward Gulick. Miss Schmitt, of the Girls' Trade School, and Miss Alice Joyce, the principal of Fulton Park School, will be the honored guests.

After the business meeting on Tuesday tea was served. A benefit dance will be held by the association on December 30 for the fund from which prizes will be awarded for children who cultivate the best gardens and exhibit the best chickens. The children will enter the contest planned by the Oregon Agricultural College.

The following course of lectures upon the Renaissance of Drama will be given by Professor H. C. Merriam, of Reed College, at the Laurelhurst Club Wednesday at 8 P. M.: (1) "The Many Ideas of Today: Experiment and Experience," January 2; (2) "The Rediscovery of Art in Drama: The Visual Appeal," January 9; (3) "The 19th Century and the 20th Century: The Discovery of Secularity," January 17; (4) "The People in Plays: Research versus Imagination," January 24. All lectures open to the public.

Miss Virginia Drake, of the Seaside Woman's Club, who has written several sonnets, has composed a holiday greeting which she has sent, neatly engraved, to some of the friends of the Yuletide greeting. Following is the message:

Had I some dew-kissed violets I'd send them with best wishes To you this Christmas day. But I am sending love thoughts Across the space to you; I'm wishing "Merry Christmas," too. —Virginia Drake.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D.D.

DR. KIRTLEY'S DISCUSSIONS. The Oregonian has arranged to print each Thursday a discussion of the Sunday school lesson for the following Sunday. The lessons are uniform for Sunday schools of practically all Protestant denominations. The author of this series is Dr. J. S. Kirtley, of Chicago, a prominent lecturer and writer. Dr. Kirtley is now in Portland and preached two Sundays this month at the White Temple. His discussions should be widely read by Sunday school teachers and students.

would bring. These blessings were very much needed when Isaiah spoke; were needed still more at the time that Christ came; are needed most of all right now. The very announcement of them by the prophet began to bring them on; the coming of Christ brought them to the version in their fullness; the subsequent work of Christ through the holy spirit, the Holy Disciple and the Holy Word, has been distributing them generously ever since. Light is the first of these blessings.

Turning a vassal to Tiglath-Pileser, it was politically dark over the land. They were idolaters, worshipping the gods of other nations; they were superstitious in consulting necromancers and wizards; they were impure in their lives; they were densely ignorant and they were sorrowful. So it was mentally and morally and emotionally dark, and that darkness was the prelude to death and decay. The light promised was from the Messiah, the real light of the world, that lighteth every man coming into the world. It comes from his person and is planted in the soul which is the "candle of the Lord," each enlightened soul being the center for the production and radiation of the light.

The joy of prosperity, for the nation, instead of being decimated by war, shall multiply. The joy of fraternal aspiration of two kinds. In the East the farmer had to give so much care to his crops in planting and cultivating and protecting them against so many kinds of enemies, animal and human, that when at last his hopes for bread were realized by the gathering in of a good harvest, he and his family made the hills echo with their songs and shouts. That was the joy of harvest. The other joy was that of the victor in war when he proudly exhibits the spoils he has won in the face of a deadly enemy. For such joy Christ endured the cross and that joy he imparts.

Deliverance—The "yoke" by which the ox draws his burden, the "staff" with which the galling yoke is made secure and the "rod" with which the overburdened beast is beaten are all symbols of Assyria's bondage and sin's bondage which are to be broken—not to be broken by men but through him, as when routed the Midianites with his small army. God did it then; he does it still. Christ is the deliverer.

Peace—The aim of war was not more war but peace. Christ's victories are to be as wide as life. The armor or military boots of the warrior and their garments soaked with blood are to be destroyed. In spite of our present war, the worst in the history of wars, we still say confidently that Christ intends to bring peace to the world and he will do it. When we are at "peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" we shall be at peace with each other. War will be superfluous, to say the least that can be said, and the weapons of war shall be useless, except as they may be made to serve a useful purpose, as for fuel or agricultural implements. Let us hope that all the munitions plants in our country will manufacture something to sell rather than to slay mankind when this war is over. We shall make war on sin only and slay it with the victor's joy.

The Prince With Four Names. 6-7. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and the righteousness of Jehovah of hosts will perform this."

Character—His names indicate his nature and mission. They are wonderful names, for he who can bring the four great blessings to each individual man to the whole world, the most wonderful of all beings the world has ever seen. They describe character, the oneness and achievements. Beginning as a child, he was to be the son of a family but of a nation, the "Son of Man," as he calls himself, the child of the aged "given" as a special act of love by Father, the birth of a virgin. Here is something to wonder at. He is also ruler, with the government of the Jews and of mankind engraved to some of the world's most famous shoulders. A social man was in the mind of Isaiah and he was a prophecy and a forerunner of Christ. He would put the government of their souls on his shoulders. No one is able to rule himself. Christ is needed by everyone. Some day he will get everything completely under his sway.

The four names are "Wonderful Counsellor," ready with resources of wisdom for his task of ruling; "Mighty God," for he was more than man; "Everlasting Father," with the wisdom and care of a father; "Prince of Peace," the ruler who creates peace within the soul, between the soul and God, and between souls whom he rules. It will be a stable reign based on judgment and righteousness.

It grows out of the nature of God himself. That nature flames out against all who oppose Christ. His sway will increase, will be stable, will be supported by the earnestness of God himself and the zeal which Christ inspires in men toward God.

What the Masters Say. A man recently died, leaving in his will several fields in which the boys had been accustomed to play, as public playgrounds. A pond which had been the boys' "swimming hole" he left as a public bath, and the boys had boys had been wont to coast, he gave to the village as a public coasting place. The thoughtfulness which he displayed toward his children was only a part of the programme which the advent of Christ into the world as a child has instituted for the world.

It was enough for the ancient hebraeans if they found in Isaiah's prophecy of a deliverer—as they did find—that satisfied their own religious needs, without convincing them to what volumes it would swell. But this does not mean that in using these Old Testament prophecies, we Christians should limit our enjoyment to them to the measure of the generation to whom they were addressed. To have known Christ must make the predictions of Messiah different to a man. You cannot bring so infinite an ocean of blessing into historic connection with these generous, expansive intimations of the Old Testament without its passing into them.—G. A. Smith.

Pertinent Questions. 1. What did the word prophecy mean at first? 2. How far did the prophet usually look beyond his own time? 3. How much of Isaiah's predictions is yet to be fulfilled? 4. How far is righteousness increasing in our treatment of children? 5. How much of Christ's ultimate triumph depends on you?

VOTES COST 35 CENTS

Clarke County Figures Expenses of Recent Election.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 20.—(Special.)—The cost of each vote cast at the recent city election was approximately 35 cents. The 18 election boards were paid for a day and a half, and each election official received $4.50. There was but one contest, that of City Clerk, which was won by Robery E. Brady, incumbent. There are nearly 4000 voters in Vancouver, but only 1500 voted. As a result, those who did not vote will be required to register again under a new law in this state.

In some of the precincts all officials were women and they utilized the time not required for their duties by doing fancy work, crocheting and similar pastimes.
