BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

MORE than 200 of the college element made merry last night at the annual formal party given by Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, Beta Chapter, at the Multnomah Hotel. The active members, many of whom are passing the holiday vacation in Portland, were assisted by the Portland Alumnae in making the affair the delightful and notable success. Several charming features added to the interesting affair, among them being the exhibition of dancing by the Misses Isabella and Dorothy McKenney and the group of songs by the Warren sisters, Frieda, Alice, Hilda and Elizabeth. The gowns of the fair sex were most artistic and colorful, their pristine loveliness enhancing the charming and attractive features who have been thoroughly enjoying every moment of their vacation.

Another merry dance was that for which the attractive and lovable Miss Irene Pokorney Stein was honored last night at the Bessie L. Crosby room. The dance was bedecked gaily with roses and greenery, and the fair visitor was greeted by nearly 100 well-known Portland folk. Her dancing partner, L. Pokorney was host for the charming affair, a delicious supper rounding out the festivities. She is a charming girl, and already has become popular with the younger contingent. Several notable parties have been given complimentary to the visitor, and others are planned for the following week.

Miss Peggy Baker, of 8 East Twentieth street North, entertained with a New Year's eve watch party. "The Chicago Diet Squad" succeeded in cutting down the average cost of each meal to 8-1/2 cents in spite of the high cost of foods. And the squad waxed fat and hearty. The most expensive foods are generally the least nutritious. TRAINING THE CHILD

BY WILLIAM BYRON FORBUSH, PH.D.

(Copyright, 1917.)
A YALE professor was trying to find out why it was that his class did not seem more interested.

"The trouble is, professor, that when we get home nobody seems to care about any of the things that you talk about here."

The same professor says that when he rides on the train with the fathers of his students the conversation includes nothing but business, real estate and stories.

"It is the home chloroforming the minds of its children against education."

windows. Father has a foreign letter or has had a business caller that suggests an interesting story. The children have been told something in school that they are almost sure is reminded by them of a delightful reminiscence of her own school days.

Give Your Child a Background.
The Yale professor says that the only persons whom a college can really educate are those who have what he calls "a family background." And every schoolteacher can identify the pupils who have such a background by their superior alertness, their avidity to learn, their store of general information.

Why Are Girls So Uninterested?
"To the Editor.—I am an older, but I am interested in youngsters. Will you tell me why the average high school girl is so uninterested? Of course the boys are not inspired, but they generally have ideas, and, although their immaturity, they are in the main hopeful. But I find the girls are simply vapid."

Billy Sunday and Young People.
"To the Editor.—What do you think of the influence of Billy Sunday upon children? My young people all want to go to hear him, but I am somewhat doubtful about the net impression. I wish we could have gotten at the same thing in a different way. PASTOR."

The Family Grumbling Bee.
"What do you talk about at your house at dinner?" asked one school child of another.

Mealtime Possibilities.
What I am saying just now especially is, that meantime might be more broadening. This does not mean that tired father must give a course of lectures, or that mother must "read up" while she is ordering the groceries. The point simply is that each should bring his bone to the table.

GASOLINE TEST LAW URGED

Let us get back to common-sense natural food

A CENTURY ago a wealthy faddist in old London invited his friends to a "white dinner." Nothing but the old-time whole-grain bread had ever been used before, but a Hungarian miller solved the problem by removing from the dark-colored flour everything but the white starchy parts so that the bread too, at the dinner, might be white. The idea of white foods became a fad and the craze spread all over the world.
