STOLEN CAR IN COLLISION. Thief wrecks Two Autos and Makes His Escape.

An hour after it had been taken from the garage by a motor thief, a stolen car came to woe on the Broadway bridge early yesterday morning in collision with a for-hire car. The thief sprang from the seat and fled. At 3 o'clock in the morning the garage of A. L. Fields, 424 Oregon street, was broken into and the car stolen. Mr. Fields heard the noise and investigated, making a report to the police. The car was found on the Broadway bridge at 4:25 was a for-hire car driven by Henry Kunz, of 293 Monroe street. A swiftly driven automobile traveling in the same direction overtook it on the car tracks near the draw and crashed into it from behind. Both cars were badly damaged. The driver of the stolen car ran away.

LIQUOR DEPOT IS BUSY. Wells-Fargo "Stock" Draws Many Covetous Glances.

"The Man With the Thirst" would be an appropriate caption to place beneath a picture taken from real life any day at the liquor distributing depot of the Wells-Fargo Express Company at Sixth and Oak streets. The average man as he asks for his meager monthly shipment of two quarts looks with covetous eyes at the shelves that contain from $60 to 1000 quarts of un-called-for liquor. That it is done with this liquor after the bone-dry law becomes operative" is the self-imposed question.

Taylor-Street Methodist Meet. A large attendance marked the morning service of the Taylor-Street Methodist congregation, which met yesterday in the hall at 123 Fourth street. Dr. M. H. Marvin delivered the sermon, which was followed by old-time songs, readings with singing and personal testimonies. Among those present were Dr. Clarence True, Wilson, Dr. Turner, and a number of other ministers. Rev. W. T. Kerr, Dr. C. E. Clino, Rev. J. J. Walter and other leaders in the work.

CHAMBER DELEGATES GO. O. M. Clark and W. J. Patterson Start to National Meeting.

O. M. Clark, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and W. J. Patterson left yesterday morning for Pittsburg, where they are to be delegates at the meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council January 25 to 27, and later at the meeting of the National Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D. C., January 31 to February 2.

HIGHER PAY FOR GIRLS STARTS "BACK-TO-KITCHEN" MOVEMENT

Better Treatment and Living Conditions Are Demanded and Obtained. Domestic Science Trend Comes From Schools and Colleges.

BY EDITH KNIGHT HOLMES. A BACK-TO-THE-KITCHEN movement, started indirectly when domestic science became popular in schools and colleges, is now in full swing. Girls who receive a home training and who are not content with the pay for the department store are now returning to their former work, where, they say, "it is less nerve-racking and the pay is getting better."

The war cut off the supply of green girls from the old countries, and those who were here realized that they could get good pay, good treatment and suitable positions if they only demanded them. And so, while the men and women of the country are figuring on the high cost of living, they should not overlook this item—the high cost of home cooks, maids and general houseworkers.

In spite of the fact that there are numbers of the local girls going back to the kitchen, there are still many vacancies. Jobs galore are waiting for capable girls. All they need this year are better than they were two years ago. Scores of women who kept no maid last year are now employing one, two and even three girls.

Miss Constance Wheeland, secretary of the free employment bureau of the Young Women's Christian Association, said yesterday in speaking of prevailing conditions: "I think the business world must be making money to be able to pay the bills. Good girls are in demand, and have no trouble in getting from $40 to $50 if they are first-class. Germany pay is small to a good second girl, and about the same for general housework."

"There are good homes in which a girl is treated well housed and well fed, where the wages are often but $20 and $25. But, take it all round, every girl who is paying better home wages are hiring far more help than they once were."

Women who, a short time ago, had a woman in one, went to the cleaning, iron, now pay regular housemaids, and this has added greatly to the cost of keeping the household. There is now, more than ever, a demand for well-trained girls. Those who have studied household economics and are thorough and practical must be added to this, have good dispositions, and no difficulty in getting first-rate positions. The slovenly, dirty or dishonest girl doesn't last long. The mean, unkind and quarrelsome housewife can't keep a good girl. It is all summed down in the end to the two factors—money and disposition. If the mistress and maid are both good-tempered and not antagonistic in disposition, and if the maid is capable and the mistress is reasonable, the two generally get along beautifully. If people can pay for the best they expect to get it.

Some women are now allowing their girls the entire afternoon off and evening, too, and on that day do not expect them to come back to the kitchen. These positions are snapped up with great speed. One woman who lives out from the city's center a 20-minute car ride, can't get a girl, she says, because it takes so long to get to town on the day off, and then one must rush so to get home.

The kind of room set apart for the girl is another question that must be faced today. Some of the families building new homes have set aside bright, attractive apartments for the maids. But there are still those who would expect the girl to sleep in the attic or in a dark, dinky room that is little better than a jail cell. With the advancement of the girls in matters of education has come the demand for better housing, and this adds to the general cost of things, but those who study the subject, efficiency obtained offsets this expense.

For the young girls who want good homes there are still many places that are suitable and where they can be happy and well treated, even if the pay is small. Many girls prefer a home-firm place in Pittsburg is small to a more exacting position. "A girl who has the right mental attitude toward work will be a success," says Miss Wheeland, "but the woman for whom she works should also have a right mental attitude. There is no hard and fast rule for house maids or mistresses. They are all so different."

Meantime, the back-to-the-kitchen movement is being encouraged by the domestic science teachers, the housewives and the girls themselves. The secret of it all is said by some of the maids to be that people are realizing that a home cannot be "Queen Anne in the front and Mary Ann in the back." Every part of the modern home must be clean, well cared for and well equipped.

With the party, was unable to go. H. L. Corbett, O. H. Fithian, M. E. Lee and A. Meier are already in the East and will join Messrs. Clark and Patterson in Pittsburg. P. S. Myers, who is in Washington, will remain and become one of the delegates at the meetings.

FUGITIVE CONVICT TRACED. Residents of Shedd Positive Man Was in That Vicinity.

ALBANY, Or., Jan. 21.—(Special.)—E. J. Clark, who escaped from the State Penitentiary this week, is believed to have been at Shedd, 13 miles south of Albany, yesterday. While at Shedd in a vesting another case, Sheriff Bodine showed pictures of Clark to people there, and they were positive the man was there yesterday. One woman who identified the picture as Clark a meal. He left there last night.

The fact that Clark was near here indicates that he is making his way through the country slowly, avoiding the larger cities.

PIONEER POLITICIAN DEAD. Judge D. L. Watson Passes at His Home at Coos Bay.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Jan. 21.—(Special.)—Judge D. L. Watson, a pioneer politician and rancher of Coos County, died today at the place which had been his home for many years. He had been brilliant and successful in the activities of Coos County, but of late, had retired to his ranch and taken no part in public life. He came to Coos County in the '60s and lived there several years. Judge Watson and Ex-County Clerk Robert B. Watson are his sons. The widow, another son and several daughters survive him.

95 BABIES BORN IN 10 DAYS. Forty-seven Are Boys and One Pair of Twins in Number.

During the first 10 days of 1916 there were 95 babies born in Portland. Forty-seven of them were boys and 48 girls. One pair of twins, both boys, were born January 2, to the wife of J. Volk, 560 Marion street. January 4 showed the greatest number born in one day, the number being 18, equally divided between girls and boys. January 5 but one baby girl was born, and four boys. January 8 and 9 the nine babies were girls.

'WELL, WELL!' SAYS DOG. "NOW," CONTINUES CANINE AND CONCLUDES WITH "MAMMA."

Talking Animal Amazes Strand Audience, Speaking Plain English. Other Acts Entertaining.

It is quite appropriate that "Queen" should speak English in her act at the Strand Theater, in the bill opening yesterday, for "Queen" is an English aristocrat.

She is to be exact, an English bulldog, and she is being presented to the public by her master, La Mar. A dog that talks? Sure!

Have you forgotten the late "Don," who came through Portland and amused the public with a vocabulary of seven words?

"Queen" has a smaller vocabulary, but it has the advantage of being all English, while "Don" spoke only German and made no sense.

"Mamma," she said proudly and correctly, and also "Now," and then, when pressed for further display of her talking talents, she said, "Well, well, well" several times—and so did the audience.

Stove Sets, Gym Afire. Basketball Player Loses Togs and Borrows Coach's Garments.

WASHOUGAL, Wash., Jan. 21.—(Special.)—The town gymnasium, in the business section, narrowly escaped fire Friday night, when the clothes of one of the basketball players caught on fire in the dressing-room.

Paul Clearwater, a member of the gymnasium team, had hung his clothes on a chair near a stove and was soon interestedly engaged in a basket ball game. It was not long until fumes of burning woolen reached the players. They dashed to the dressing-rooms to find their companion's burning apparel in flames, which they hurriedly thrust out the window.

Clearwater was obliged to borrow the coach's overcoat and make a hurried retreat for home in his gym togs in the freezing night air.
