OLYMPIA MILITARY BILL UP TO VOTE

Measure Is Passed to Second Reading by 61 to 33; No Change on Final Likely.

TRAINING'S VALUE CITED

Woman Member Again Relates All Committee Secrets to House, and Deals Between Cities Are Frequently Charged.

STATE CAPITOL, Olympia, Wash., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—In spite of a long fight and numerous attempts to amend H. B. 5, the Zednick bill to establish compulsory military training in high schools, passed second reading unchanged in the House today, by a vote of 61 to 33.

The deciding vote was taken on a motion by Christensen to strike military reference from the bill and leave it simply a physical training requirement. As sponsor for the bill, Zednick believes the final ballot will not be greatly different when the bill comes up on third reading. An effort to pass it under suspension of the rules failed for lack of the two-thirds majority necessary to suspend the rules.

Representative E. E. Shields, of Skamania, made a compelling argument in favor of the bill, speaking from ten years' experience in the National Guard of Washington, Oregon and California. He told of quieting a roomful of unruly boys while teaching school in Centralia 25 years ago by organizing them into a military company, calling on J. E. Lease, ex-Superintendent of Lewis County, and now Representative, to prove what was accomplished.

Woman Again Tells Secrets.

From the strain of military bill meneuvers the House passed into the unusual diversion of listening to the woman member, Mrs. Ina P. Williams, of Yakima, tell committee room secrets upon the floor. She was trying to get a reconsideration of the vote by which her own bill, H. B. 23, was amended on motion of Gordon C. Moores, of Benton, to locate an irrigation experiment station at Kennewick.

The bill originally placed the station in the Yakima Valley, and actually meant the city of North Yakima, Moores charged, in Mrs. Williams plan of procedure. With the aid of the King County delegation he organized enough support to place the station, if it is ever established, at Kennewick.

He also charged that A. A. Kelly, of the Spokane delegation, was trying to make a trade whereby Spokane would support Yakima for the experiment station if Yakima would passively regard a Spokane effort to transfer the State Fair from North Yakima to Spokane.

Moore's Veracity Questioned.

Whereupon the woman member from Yakima stood up on the floor today and with Moores dramatically demanding the documents, told of having seen written evidence that Moores had bargained with the King County delegation to support the university against the State College in return for support for the experiment station.

She also explained that she had been too much surprised at Moore's previous attack to tell him that he lied at that time when he accused her of playing pork-barrel politics and then demonstrated that she was not at all surprised at the present time.

In detail she then related what everybody had to say in committee deliberation on experiment station and other subjects, with the House and galleries thoroughly enjoying the recital. Unable to reply in the manner he obviously desired to, Moores then gave his version of the same occurrences, calling on various members of the committee at times to bear witness to his veracity.

Kennewick Gets Station.

After voting down reconsideration the House then passed the bill designating Kennewick or immediate vicinity as the station site. Representative Siler of Lewis supported Representative Williams in an effort to have the bill re-committed.

In its final action today the House passed the Zednick and Hastings bill, which gives first-class city and county employes half holidays from June to September and half holidays on Saturday for the major portion of public office forces during the Winter and Spring.

Among bills passed by the Senate today are S. B. 63, framed by the State Board of Forestry, to provide for state control of forest fire hazards at owner's expense, when timber holders fail to observe necessary precautions, and S. B. 16, which admits abandoned mothers with children to the mothers' pension act.

S. B. 27, providing for the erection of a state powder factory to sell its output at 5 per cent above cost of manufacture as an aid in clearing stump land, is made a special order in the Senate for 2:30 P. M. Tuesday.

Lincoln Memorial Arranged.

On recommendation of the judiciary committee the House killed by indefinite postponement H. B. 37 to legalize sale of surplus municipal public utility products other than water; H. B. 46 to place legislative employes under civil service and H. B. 125 to extend the delinquency limitation of 10 years.

H. B. 294, introduced today by the committee on revenue and taxation, classes registered water craft as personal property for assessment purposes.

Both houses will memorialize Lincoln with a special programme Monday afternoon. Edmund S. Meany will deliver the formal address.

Woman's Reformatory Proposed.

Establishment of a woman's reformatory is projected in S. B. 189, introduced this morning by the state institutions committee. The plan contemplates purchase of 160 acres as a site and erection of cottages, for which an appropriation of $75,000 is provided. Two women are to be named on the board of managers if the institution is authorized.

Palmer introduced S. B. 192, appropriating $300,000 for the construction of a home for the feeble-minded in either Pierce or King County.

If S. B. 193, by the judiciary committee, becomes a law, Superior Court judges will have authority to suspend sentences on first conviction for felony, except in murder, first degree burglary, robbery or criminal assault cases.

CORPORAL FLUKER KILLED

Canadian Soldier, Formerly of Portland, Dies in France.

Word was received yesterday that J. Kenneth Fluker, for five years a resident of Portland, was killed recently while on duty with the Canadian troops in France. Mr. Fluker was a corporal in the medical corps of the Eightieth Battalion.

When in Portland Mr. Fluker was employed in drafting and sketching and as a salesman for Archer & Wiggins Company. He was a nephew of Mrs. N. K. Clarke and made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Clarke.

Mr. Fluker's parents live in Brockville, Ontario, and it was there that the young man enlisted, leaving for Europe last May. He was 30 years old. B. W. Pulhinjer, chaplain of Mr. Fluker's command, sent word of his death.

"He was killed while performing his duty in the front line," wrote Chaplain Pulhinjer. "A small cross marks his grave. He never shirked and he earned a great name among us."

LEGISLATORS GET THEIRS

ASTORIA'S MAYOR DINES THEM AND TELLS WHERE TO "HEAD IN."

"Plain Speaking" on Bone-Dry Law Sends Two Guests From Table During Soup Course.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—F. C. Harley, Astoria's justly celebrated Mayor, gave members of the Legislature some fatherly advice about running the state at a dinner given by him in their honor tonight.

He prefaced his remarks by saying he didn't have any political ambitions, so would speak plainly. He did. He expressed such decided views relative to bone-dry prohibition and the like that Dr. J. E. Anderson and Senator Eddy, joint authors of the bone-dry law, got up and left the table before they had finished their consomme.

"It's a fine thing to invite the people from all over the world to come to the great state of Oregon as we are doing and put before them the adverse legislation you are trying to put over," remarked Mayor Harley, by way of introduction.

Then he plunged right into the situation by sarcastically referring to some of the well-known political ambitions with which this Legislature is favored.

"Remember, boys," he warmed to his subject, "only a few can be Congressmen, only a few can be United States Senators, only a few can be Governors, and they can only become so one at a time."

"I'll say this," he explained further, "that with the representation we now have in the United States Senate we'd better have none."

There was great applause as Mayor Harley added that he really did not mean anything personal.

"If you put through this bill to hold up an automobile because it has a little liquor in it, and to shoot a man if he smokes a cigarette," continued the Mayor, "why, that's not the kind of legislation that is going to bring tourists to Oregon.

"I'd rather hit over the desert and take a chance of strangling to death."

It was at this exact point that Dr. Anderson and Senator Eddy left the table.

Mayor Harley spoke of the importance of a military highway in time of war, and warned the legislators that if this country gets into war the war will be on the Pacific and not the Atlantic Coast.

"You'll wake up some morning and find your country swarming with Japs," he declared.

Then he wound up with this right-from-the-shoulder advice:

"There is only one thing I have to say to you. Get down to business. Throw this petty legislation and pettifogging into the waste basket and do something that will build up your state instead of tearing it down."

Rev. Father Waters, of Astoria, spoke on the importance of the Columbia River Highway as a military highway in time of war, and urged that steps be taken to make the highway ready for any such contingency.

Nearly all the members of both houses partook of Mayor Harley's hospitality. The dinner was held at the Marion Hotel.

TEACHER BILLS KILLED

ALLEGED ACTIVITY OF STATE SUPERINTENDENT CRITICISED.

Representatives Declare Measures Must Be Approved by School Head to Get by Committee.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—Undue domination of school legislation by the state department of education was charged on the floor of the House just before the close of the afternoon session today by two of the members whose bills came in with adverse reports.

Representative Lunger engaged in a good-natured tirade against the methods of the educational department and the educational committees when his bill, which would permit graduates of standard colleges to teach in the grade schools, was started down the skids. He insisted on the privilege of withdrawing his bill, but the House beat him to it and indefinitely postponed it.

But Jones, of Lane, was more successful. His bill providing for a classification of teachers' certificates also came in with an unfavorable report. He was much agitated and delivered an impassioned speech criticising the committee and State Superintendent Churchill.

"It is about as easy for a charcoal dog to chase an asbestos cat through hades as it is to get a bill through the educational committees with Churchill's opposition," said Jones.

On his motion the bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

STATE LAND BOARD CREDITS BILL WINS

Senate Unanimous in Passing Measure; Grange and Farmers in on Victory.

WILLAMETTE IS CLOSED

Dimick Loses Hard Fight for Oregon City Fishermen — Women's Labor Law Changed---National Guard Gets $155,000.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—The fight over the rural credits bill is ended, so far as the Senate is concerned, and the State Land Board, the farmers' union and the State Grange are the victors.

Without debate, the merits of the State Land Board plan and of the opposing Shanks and Barrett plans having been pretty thoroughly threshed out a couple of days ago, the Senate this afternoon passed Senate bill 126. This is the bill prepared by the State Land Board to carry into effect the rural credits amendment initiated last November. It leaves administration of the $18,000,000 rural credits fund entirely in the hands of the State Land Board. The Shanks and Barrett plans called for appointment of a land appraiser and of an examiner of titles.

The bill, as slightly amended by the Senate judiciary committee, was passed unanimously by the Senate. The amendments permit the state to bid in the rural credit bonds itself at more than par if necessary, straighten up a legal tangle that would have barred adjudicated water rights in Eastern and Southern Oregon from rural credits benefits, and make a half-way compromise with adherents of the Shanks-Barrett plan by authorizing the State Land Board to appoint assistants to aid in land appraisals if the board finds this necessary.

The Senate disposed of 24 bills today. Twenty were passed and four killed.

Oregon City Fishing Stopped.

One of the important bills passed was Senate bill 96, by Gill, closing the Willamette River to commercial fishing from the falls at Oregon City to a point just above Oswego.

This bill was passed despite the vigorous efforts of Senator Dimick, of Clackamas County. Dimick made a strong plea for the commercial fishermen living at Oregon City. He spoke for nearly half an hour and took defeat hard.

Senator Gill declared that closing the river to commercial fishing is absolutely necessary to protect the salmon industry, as the Willamette River is now the principal salmon spawning stream in the state.

Those Senators voting for the bill were: Baldwin, Barrett, Bishop, Cusick, Eddy, Garland, Gill, Handley, Hawley, Hurley, Huston, La Follett, Lewis, Olson, Orton, Shanks, Smith of Coos, Steiwer, Vinton, Von Der Hellen, Wilbur and Moser.

Those voting no were Senators Dimick, Leinenweber, Pierce, Smith, of Josephine, and Strayer. Farrell was absent.

Women's Labor Law Changed.

La Follett's bill to exempt women employed in harvesting and fruit or vegetable drying, canning or packing from the provisions of the 10-hour-day law carried unanimously. Senator Olson, however, seconded by Senator Garland, first obtained an amendment providing that women employed in canning, drying and packing plants must be paid time and one-half over 10 hours.

There was a little flurry over Senate bill 264, authorizing payment of $200 to H. H. Fisher for services as Town Marshal of Copperfield. He had been employed by Governor West to maintain order there when the Governor closed Copperfield.

Senators E. Pierce and Bishop, of the committee on claims, returned a majority report favorable to the bill. Senator Orton returned a minority report recommending that it be killed. Orton maintained there had not been any need of Fisher's services, but the majority report was adopted after a few old political issues had been rehashed.

Guard Gets $155,000.

Another big appropriation measure was passed by the Senate after having previously gone through the House. It appropriated $155,000 for the Oregon National Guard during the next two years. This is the same amount appropriated for the National Guard by the 1915 Legislature.

Total appropriations to pass both houses now equal $1,181,000. The Senate judiciary committee, on whose recommendation La Follett's bill to eliminate state aid from the industrial accident funds was killed yesterday, tonight reported out a joint resolution calling for appointment of a committee of seven to work out a plan during the next two years whereby state aid may be eliminated.

The resolution also recommends that coming under the workmen's compensation act, which is administered by the Industrial Accident Commission, be made compulsory.

TEACHERS AT CAPITAL

SPECIAL TRAIN CARRIES PORTLAND EDUCATORS TO URGE BILLS.

Sentiment Divided Three Ways, for Orton Bill, Callan Bill or for No Bill at All.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—A special trainload of Portland school teachers invaded the Statehouse tonight, and talked for two or three hours before the House committee on education on the merits of the various tenure of offices bills now pending.

Two bills are under consideration—one introduced in the Senate by Orton and the other in the House by Callan.

The teachers seem to be divided three ways on the subject. Many want the Orton bill and many others want no bill at all. Very few, if any, in the group tonight wanted the Callan bill. This Callan bill was supposed to represent the views of the School Board, but Director Plummer, who was here tonight, entirely disowned it.

Both bills propose to take the trial of teachers out of the hands of the School Board and place it into hands of a commission appointed by a Circuit Judge. The Callan bill places all teachers in the same class, and gives the School Board power to transfer from one class to another indiscriminately. The Orton bill proposes eight classes of teachers, and limits the powers of transfer between the respective classes nearest related to one another.

Supporters of the Orton bill wore big badges proclaiming their sympathies.

E. H. Whitney, principal of the Ockley Green School, opened the argument for the Orton bill; Miss Grace De Graff urged the Legislature not to change the law. Many others spoke.

The last year has been devoted to evangelistic work into which Dr. Hinson was urged to enter. He has traveled to various points in the Western district and has made hundreds of addresses. Many Remedies Tried in Vain. Well and Strong After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Spartanburg, S. C.—"For nine years I suffered from backache, weakness, and irregularities so I could hardly do my work. I tried many remedies but found no permanent relief. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great change for the better and am now well and strong so I have no trouble in doing my work. I hope every user of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will get as great relief as I did from its use."—Mrs. S. D. McABEE, 122 Dewey Ave., Spartanburg, S. C.

The reason women write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved. This is a praiseworthy thing to do and such women should be highly commended.
