on tomorrow's dinner table, supported by thick vegetable scup, carrots, bread and butter and stewed apricots or brown betty. Merchants of the city offer a number of attractive bargains in foodstuffs for the provident housewife that will help make tomorrow's menu a success from the financial standpoint. They also of-fer a number of suggestions to house-wives, which may be heeded with profit. Cash Parments Advised. CAR POORLY DISGUISED

Cash Payments Advised.

They advise that where possible cash should be paid for groceries, as this encourages the merchant to save all his discounts and he is able to have money on hand to buy his goods when the market is low, thus giving better result prices to consumers retail prices to consumers. Unnecessary deliveries should also be sliminated, as this branch of a retail business adds a considerable percentage to the cost of foods.

If Ray D. Gould is guilty of traffick-ing in stolen motor cars, as the au-thorities maintain, he made a careless blunder in the disguise of the car he sold to Captain R. J. Williams, of the fire bureau. This car bore a Wash-ington factory registration number and an Oregon Discuss which had been an to the cost of foods. The housekeeper herself should come to the store and make her selections, it is pointed out, instead of sending a small boy or girl or telephoning. number, Captain Williams found when he sent to Salem for a 1917 number. The engine number was 163502S and the license 10461, whereas the state records showed that the license of that number should have gone to a ma-chine with engine number 1121233, and that engine number 1825023 should have borne license number 11511. They were switched in the sale of the cars. The Washington numbers have been found to be duplications of real Wash-ington engine numbers and to have been stamped on the engines after the actual factory numbers had been scoured off by an emery wheel. Detective Beatty, working with Con-stable Peterson, uncovered his seventh atolen car yesterday, when he found in the possession of J. L. Wall, of 601 Buchanan street, the machine stolen Buy Large Amounts, is Advice. Buying in larger packages should be encouraged. For example, say mer-chants, many of the popular cereal goods cost 50 per cent more when bought in two-pound packages than in 10-pound sacks. Two recipes are given by the better-living committee, of which Mrs. Lee Davenport is chairman, and are as fol-lows:
