GOLDSBOROUGH HITS UNDINE ON DOCKING

Torpedoboat Does Only Slight Damage and Sustains None in Mishap in Harbor.

ROUGH WEATHER IS MET

Lifeboats Wrecked and Wireless Disabled Off Coast-Warship to Be Used as Training Vessel for Oregon Naval Militia.

The torpedo-boat Goldsborough, in command of Lieutenant Edward E. Scranton, United States Navy, retired, arrived at the docking provided for her in Portland yesterday afternoon at about 5:10 o'clock.

about 5:10 o'clock.

Through a misunderstanding of the signals sent to the engine-room, the warship was sent ahead full speed instead of to the rear just as she was about to dock alongside of the Swan, and tore head on into the steamer Undine, that was docked directly ahead. The damage to the steamer was slight, a bucket of the wheel and part of the shield being wrecked. The warship sustained no damage from the impact.

The Goldsborough, which originally was reported as having left the Bremetron Navy-yard, on Puget Sound, last Friday, did not sall until Saturday morning, and arrived off the mouth of the Columbia River early Sunday, only to cruise about for more than a day in

Effects of Gale Shown.

The Goldsborough showed signs of rough treatment upon her arrival in Portland, with the wreckage of the two Portland, with the wreckage of the two lifeboats that were destroyed in the gale still littered about the decks. Lieutenant Scranton said that while the little craft was tossed about outside waiting for a tug that falled to appear its whreless was disabled by the seas that swept fore and aft. Three deck chests and quite a quantity of provisions were lost as the waves buffeted the craft.

Because the fuel was running low and there did not appear to be enough for another day. Commander Scranton decided to bring the ship into the har-bor at Astoria Monday afternoon. No trouble was experienced in crossing in,

LEWISTON SERVICE STARTS Steamer J. N. Teal to Make First Trip Today.

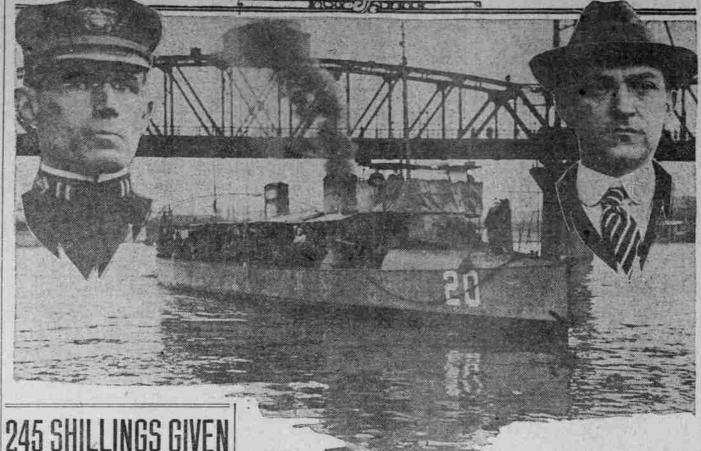

LEWISTON, Idaho, March 6 .- (Sp. cial.)—Charles Steelsmith, superintendent of The Dalles-Columbia line, operating between Portland and Lewis-ton, has announced that the steamer J. N. Teal will leave Portland the morning of March 7, inaugurating the sea-son's run. The Twin Cities left Port-land March 5 for Kennewick, so both boats will be in steady service. The J. N. Teal is the largest boat of the mpany's fleet plying on the Columthat a large quantity of merchandise was stored in warehouses in Portland and Lewiston, awaiting the inauguration of steamer service on the Columbla and Snake rivers.

the yard of the Albina Engine & Machine Works, on the East Side, between the two Albina ferry landings, gangs of men are placing heavy timbers and another crowd is engaged in cutting framework, so immediately on the foundation being ready the structure will rise. It is to be 250 feet long and extend east and west alongside the Lower Albina ferry landing.

The main machine shop, on River street, covers two blocks and the width of one street, so it is more than 550 feet long. In it an overhead electric crane is being installed and, while some of the power tools have arrived, other machinery is on the way and should be delivered soon. Two locomotive cranes are set up in the yard, other machinery is on the way and should be delivered soon. Two locomotive cranes are set up in the yard, ready for use, and masts and cable are complete for handling steel parts of the new ships on the ways. More steel is reaching the yard and it is unloaded so as to be handy to the shops. The first keel is to be laid when the special steel sections are unloaded.

ASTORIA, Or., March Commission of the Port of Astoria Commission this morning was devoted to a discussion with Collector of Customs Burke of the Lane bill to amend the customs regulations for the Columbia River.

Judge Burke said he is not fighting any port on the Columbia, but is anxious to obtain the co-operation of all in building up the commerce of the river. He asserted that changes which he had made since he has been Collector have saved the department $20,006 annually and that the proposed law is in the line of economy.

Judge Burke said the object of the Lane bill is not to injure the prestige of Astoria but to remove some dead statutes, adding that foreign vessels would still be compelled to enter at Astoria.
