MISS CLARA MARSCH yesterday became the bride of Dr. Byron E. Loomis at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Marsch, at 8:30 o'clock, Rev. Edward H. Pence, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, officiated, and the only attendant of the couple was Miss Mary Kern. The bride was attired in a smart tulle dress of dark blue cloth, with which she also wore a blue Milan hat and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Only the families were present at the ceremony and the wedding breakfast which followed.

Dr. and Mrs. Loomis are en route to the South for a fortnight's visit, and upon their return will be at their residence in Irvington, Twentieth and Stanton streets.

The engagement of the young folk was announced during the winter months and they have been entertained extensively since then.

Mrs. William B. Cater entertained at her home, 403 East Eighth street North, with a luncheon at 1:30 on Monday in honor of Mrs. Fred D. Vehrung, who is going away for the Spring and Summer. The rooms were decorated with Spring flowers. Other guests were Mrs. J. Burnham, Mrs. W. E. Mosher, Mrs. A. Harvey, Mrs. H. S. Montgomery, Mrs. William Campbell, Mrs. A. Fletcher, Mrs. J. Small, Mrs. Truhot, Mrs. Anton Gleibisch, Miss Rose Graham, Mrs. T. Turppa, Mrs. O. H. Dupuy. Card honors fell to Mrs. J. Burnham and consolation to Miss Rose Graham.

Mrs. Max H. Houser and sons returned Sunday to pass the Easter vacations in Portland. They have been sojourning in San Francisco during the winter months and plan to return within a fortnight.

The Delta Gamma Alumnae Association of Portland will give a dancing party for the members of the active chapters and their friends who are in town during the Easter vacations. The party will be given at the Portland Heights Club Saturday evening.

On Saturday Delta Gamma Sorority celebrated reunion with a luncheon at the home of Miss L. Grace, 520 East First-second street North. This is an annual celebration and is observed throughout the United States wherever there is an active chapter of alumnae association. Sweet peas and forget-me-nots in the colors of the sorority furnished appropriate decorations. Those seated around the tables were: Mesdames William T. Belcher, George H. Marsh, Arthur McKinlay, Edward H. Pence, Mrs. A. Fletcher, John R. Latourrette, James B. Kerr, Henry Kimball, L. L. McConnell, Earl Fackler, William Campbell, Mrs. A. B. DOMESTIC SCIENCE BY LILLIAN TINGLE.

PORTLAND, Or., March 25.—Dear Miss Tingle: I should appreciate it greatly if you would give us some hints about having an ordinary family dinner. All the books I have consulted seem to take it for granted each meal is a banquet with several maids in attendance. (1) When placing a dish before a person should it be from the right side and then remove it from the left? (2) When a hostess serves the plates where should the first plate stop? (3) Should not the dishes always be passed to the right and then to the left? (4) If a person desires a second helping, should he pass his plate to the one who served or should the viand be passed to him?

Thanking you for your considerate helpfulness, I am, N. G. B. I AGREE with you in thinking that most of the books on table service seem to take for granted well-trained maids in plentiful quantities. But the principles of good table service may be applied just as correctly by the hostess who has no maid as by the possessor of a proud English butler and assorted footmen.

The two main points to remember are (1) that "correctness" is merely another name for "suitability." It is just as "incorrect" for the hostess to engage a maid to attempt strict "Russian service" (where everything is passed from the side, no food being placed on the table, and where plates for some kind must be continually before each guest) as it would be for the hostess with plenty of well-trained maids to set a table and pass the plates from hand to hand, though each method might be "correct" if the conditions were different.

(2) "The Golden Rule" is an excellent basis for judging between various methods as to which would be "most correct" or "best form." Whatever is likely to give discomfort or embarrassment (even if momentary) to a guest should be avoided. Now to answer your definite questions: 1. It is best to set down and remove dishes from the right, as this causes the least disturbance to the end of the table, first on the right side and when all on that side are served, then on the other.

2. Always pass dishes to the left if the guest is to help himself, so that the right hand may be used. 3. The hostess should pass his plate to a "second helping." The minor dishes, such as jelly, olives, bread, sauce, butter, etc., would be passed to the guest. The odd little collars and napkins or a dessert not served in individual portions, would not be passed, but the hostess would pass his plate to the server, after carefully placing his knife and fork closely parallel and somewhat to one side. Knife and fork, placed first on the middle of the plate, would, of course, mean that no more of that course was desired, and the hostess would take it as a signal for removing the plate.

Portland, Or., March 27.—Kindly give recipe for cheese puff or soufflé to caring you. I hope the following may suit you. The amount of cheese will vary with the kind of cheese used and the personal taste of the maker. Soufflés should be set in a pan of hot water which is heated to boiling. Mrs. L. S. Cheese puff—Two tablespoons butter, one-half cup milk, three table-spoons flour, three eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, dash onion, one egg white, cup grated cheese. Blend butter and flour; add salt and pepper and milk and beat well. Add onion and salt. Remove from fire and add cheese and beaten yolks of eggs. Fold in stiffly-beaten white, pour into buttered baking-cup and bake about 30 minutes until firm. Serve immediately. This will serve four people.

STYLE TIPS FROM PORTLAND STORES

ALLURING windows entice shoppers who never intended to buy at all and as one feminine shopper remarked: "They can't resist these lovely things when they are so artistically displayed." "Besides," she added, as she pecked out the garments she admired, "my husband doesn't mind long as he buys sanely." Whether the other women who marvel at the week's displays are as fortunate or not, it is hard to realize the finery of Spring and the appeal is as subtle as that of the Spring flowers. There is a Persian note in some of the gowns and colors, and all sorts of handsome laces and colors. Among the smart afternoon gowns is a charming, caught up at the bottom like Turkish trousers. The skirt and the sleeves and bodice are of black, but a wide front panel of beige charmeuse is like the collar and the piping on the bodice. The skirt is just loose enough at the panel sides to display a gorgeous royal blue lining. The loose gown is of tarnished gold with a heavy tassel at the ends. A charming slate gray malfie is com-

CONNORS IS BROUGHT BACK

Alleged Swindler of Elderly Woman Denies Fraud. James Charles Connors, arrested in Los Angeles for the alleged theft of $200 from Mrs. Mary Obermeier, an aged woman living on the Germantown road, arrived in Portland yesterday in custody of Deputy Sheriff Phillips. He admitted taking the money, says Mrs. Phillips, declaring that he borrowed it on his note and that it was a legitimate transaction. He told the officer that he had the money cashed away. When arrested he had $60 in cash on him and a pawn ticket representing $200 he had secured on a diamond ring, which he had pawned under the name of L. H. Harding.
