TWO CLUBS FAIL TO SHOOT FIRST DAY

Tourney for The Oregonian Trophies May Be Opened Next Sunday Instead.

FORFEITS ARE CONSIDERED

Board of Governors of Columbia Willamette Trapshooters' Association Will Decide Action That Is to Be Taken.

Through some misunderstanding, two of the clubs in Columbia - Willamette Trapshooters' Association failed to shoot yesterday, although the opening of the tournament for The Oregonian trophles was originally scheduled for yesterday. Both the Canemah Gun Club, of Oregon City, and the Capital City Gun Club, of Salem, did not con-

The Round-up Gun Club of Pendleton shot and scored 111 out of a possible 125, and the Woodburn Gun Club smashed 114 out of 125, the same number credited to the La Grande Gun Club. Astoria was not billed to shoot because there are only seven clubs in the cir-cuit. But for all that the nimrods at the Columbia metropolis got out and broke 100 bluerocks.

broke 100 bluerocks.

La Grande was scheduled to meet Salem, Woodburn was slated to shoot against Oregon City, and Pendleton battled the Albany club. Albany went out in a high wind and smeared 107 of the clusive clay rocks, while Pendleton scored 111. Just what will be done as to whether or not the matches should be forfeited or the opening date set until next Sunday will be decided by the board of governors of the Columbia-Willamette Trapshooters' Association.

It may be that the schedule which was printed in last Sunday's Oregonian will be started next Sunday, that is, yesterday's contests will be placed at the end of the season and next Sunday's schedule will be used as the opening. The final decisions will be made by Thursday.

wanted to make a grand splash next Sunday.

The Canemah Gun Club shoots every other Sunday during the Winter, but now that the tournament season has opened, every Sunday morning will be consumed in shooting for the cups. The day was far from being anything like fair trapshooting weather here.

The wild wind blew across from the Pacific Ocean, making it rather difficult to judge the birds, but at that they broke 100 out of 125. Next Sunday Astoria will get into the race for The Oregonian trophies by shooting against the Pendleton Round-ups. The scores made in practice today follow: Dick Fulton, 24; Allen Metcalfe, 21; Oscar Wirkkala, 19; E. W. Burlingame, 12, and Charles Arnet, 17. Total 100.

In the playoff of the tie for the cock.

Last midnight there was a different note in the chanting, the church was brilliantly lighted and the gloomy sepulcher of the night before was decorated with flowers. The chant still held its note of sadness, but the despair was no longer present, even the eyes of the worshipers held a new light the light of joyous anticipation. Every-one held in his hand the brown twisted taper that was to be his offering to the arisen savior.

Simeon Emanuel, the priest, busied himself making ready for his part in the service. J. C. Sourapas, the presi-dent of the congregation, was here, dent of the congregation, was here, there and everywhere, seeing that all was in order.

Suddenly the music was hushed, the voices were stilled, the lights went out with startling suddenness. In the minds of the worshipers this was the hour before the dawn just when the new life of Christ was about to begin. Voice More Exultant.

Veice More Exultant.

The silence was broken by the deep, bell-toned voice of the priest, and, clad in full regalla, his widespread, black beard sweeping down over the white vestments, he stepped through the curtains at the rear and raised his great voice in an exultant chant.

He carried a three-branched candelabra in either hand, and there was an orderly rush to light the offertory tapers from the burning candles.

The lights were turned on again, the voices rose higher and higher. The

Gradually the irregular group of wor-shipers took on a definite form and a long line mounted the altar, each a long line mounted the altar, each as he passed kissing the wounded hands and feet of Christ, as represented on a picture held up by the priest. First the men and then the women with their bevies of children.

The big room was thick with the smoke of the incense and the strong odor of the burning tapers. As the procession wound on its reverential way the crowd gradually thinned out. Originally there was more to the ceremony, but the ordinances of the city fathers have barred the pyretechnic display and with it has died the custom of egg-rolling. Soon there were only a few of the 500 or so left. The choristers left their places and only the droning voice of the priest was heard. The services of the Holy Pasch were ended.

This quaint church, which supports itself by the sale of offertory tapers and occasional donations from its members, was erected in 1908, and its congregations have followed within its stone walls the old, old, orthodox ritual as far as the laws of the com-
