STIRRING SPEECHES MADE

Chaplain Gilbert, ex-Adjutant-General Finzer and Colonel J. L. May Among Speakers-Knights of Tower Carry Banner.

The little breeze about the slopes of Mount Tabor caught it caressingly, fold by fold. Hundreds of hands swept with one gesture to a reverent salute,

"I pledge allegiance to my flag, and to the Republic for which it standsone Nation, indivisible, with liberty and one Nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all!"

Above Mount Tabor Presbyterian Church, stirring slightly with a promise of full-flown glory in sterner winds, floated the American flag—gift of the Women's Society, with every stripe, every star, and every seam defily fashioned by their own toil.

Yesterday morning, long before the hour of 10:30, appointed as the official moment of the Mount Tabor Community flag-raising, patriotic parishnunity flag-raising, patriotic parish-oners gathered at the gray stone thurch edifice at East Fifty-fifth and church edifice at East Fifty-fifth and Belmont streets, eager to aid. There were General W. E. Finzer, ex-Adjutant-General of Oregon; Colonel C. E. Dentler, in charge of the Western Military Division; Colonel John L. May, of the Third Oregon Infantry; Major William S. Gilbert, fighting parson, of the Oregon troops; Professor L. A. Wiley, superintendent of Couch School, and former First Lieutenant of Troop A; Rev. Ward W. MacHenry, pastor of the church; a score of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic; children, seniors, striplings, girls-and patriotism.

Knights of Tower Bear Flag.

From the portals of the church, youthful Knights of the Tower—an auxiliary organization of boys and young men—bore the great flag to its halyards. Colonel Dentler, trim and soldierly as the traditions of the server the guides and the ice, tugged gently at the guides and the flag crept to its 22-foot staff above the church tower, while the gathering woke the echoes of the watching hill firs with "The Star-Spangled Banner." A salvo of cheering greeted the colors at their senith.

Colonel John L. May, of the Third Oregon, is blunt of speech and purpose-ful. He nodded to the applause which ful. He nodded to the applause which greeted him, and charged without skirmish into a tribute to the patriots of Oregon. Patriotism? As for Oregon, declared the Colonel, the question lacked emphasis.

"There is no question of the patriotism of Oregon," said Colonel May. "The best answer, if one were needed, is that we have raised the first warstrength regiment in the United States, ready for the field."

Homage to the veterans of the Civil War was paid by the leader of Oregon's troops, who cited the fact that the sons were no less loyal than the fathers, and that, in the Spanish-American war that counted 45 sons of the Grand Army on its roster.

"Even Germany, a great country of magnificent people," he asserted, "is being born anew, and shall be set free from those who have misled her!" Hyphen Is Obliterated.

As for danger at home, from the guests of free America, Major Gilbert declared that the trend of events had obliterated the hyphen and reasserted the loyalty of foreign-born citizens who chose to dwell under the protection of the loyalty.

who chose to dwell under the protection of the flag.

"In the years past, and the months gone, we have heard much of the hyphen in American citizenship," he shouted. "And we were afraid that the German-Americans would become Germans in the trial. But thank God, under the stress of this crisis the German-Americans have become Americans!"

With a fervent avowal of gratitude for the part America is to play in the struggle for freedom, deeming nothing worth while that may be obtained without sacrifice, and no sacrifice too great to pay for the principles of humanity, Major Gilbert closed his ad-
