other watchmakers. He worked at his other watchmakers. He worked at his trade in Omaha five years, then he came to Portland 27 years ago; has worked for several of the leading jewelers of this city during that time. His specialty is the repairing of fine watches. When Mr. Simpson learned his trade everything in the watch line was made by hand. He says he has always had an opportunity of getting a good, honorable living by working at his trade, and his advice to young men is to learn some trade, the pro-fessions being too crowded. Mr. Simp-son is in the employ of Staples, the Jeweler, and his old friends as well as new ones will find him happy in his work at the bench.
