

MRS. JOSEPH HEADS WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Mrs. Charles Scadding Relinquishes Helm of Episcopal Body After 10 Years.

NOTED SPEAKERS HEARD

Annual Session Held at Trinity, With Dr. Morrison, Dean McCollister and Bishop Sumner Present—Missions Topic.

Mrs. S. E. Josephi was elected president of the Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church at the state convention of the organization held yesterday in Trinity Church. Mrs. Josephi succeeded Mrs. Charles Scadding, who held the office for 10 years.

Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Mrs. H. F. Kendall, of Grace Memorial; second vice-president, Mrs. B. Van Dusen, Astoria; recording secretary, Mrs. E. H. McCollister, St. Stephen's; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Walter Bliss, Grace Memorial; treasurer, Mrs. H. Hallam, St. David's; treasurer of united offering, Mrs. W. J. Burns, Trinity; educational secretary, Mrs. W. R. Powell, Trinity; press committee, Mrs. F. P. Stauffer, St. David's. The nominating committee was Mrs. G. Maynor, Mrs. W. A. M. Breck and Mrs. W. M. Barker.

Dean McCollister speaks. Missionary themes formed the topics of the addresses and discussions of the day. The morning service included an impressive celebration of the holy communion, with Dr. A. A. Morrison officiating. An inspirational address was given by the Very Rev. Dean McCollister, dean of St. Stephen's Cathedral. He said that church services should promote a knowledge of what the church is doing; a consciousness, ever present, of religious life and all it means; real spirituality, not to be lost by the mechanical of the church, and a loyalty to church.

In the address of venerable Archbishop Emery, of California, members were urged to keep up their church dues and the interest in the work, notwithstanding the extra strain of war times. "The war between good and evil is going on all the time," said the archdeacon, "and it is our duty to be ever ready to fight for the right. Missionary zeal must be maintained."

Junior Auxiliaries Proposed. Valuable suggestions for carrying on the work and for making the meetings of missionary auxiliaries interesting were made by Bishop Sumner, who addressed the women at the meeting in the parish-house. The bishop urged the promotion of junior auxiliaries. Deaconess Hodgkins, principal of the Deaconess' Training School at Berkeley, Cal., told of the work of her school, which offers a two years' course for educational work or to be a clergyman's assistant, and varied courses of training for general church service. She made a plea for more young women in this department.

The diocese pledged a donation of $100 to the girls' school, St. Agnes, of Tokio, Japan.

An invitation was received from St. David's Parish for the convention of next year, which the auxiliaries accepted.

Bishop Sumner advised a firmer business plan, and as a result of his suggestions Mrs. Josephi will appoint a budget committee. A letter of appreciation for her devotion to the cause was sent to Mrs. Scadding in appreciation of her 10 years of leadership.

SCHOOL PLAY IS SUCCESS

Clatskanie Class Exercises Are Being Held.

CLATSKANIE, Or., May 22.—(Special.)—Class work began here Saturday evening when the senior class play, "Farm Folks," was successfully staged before a large and appreciative audience. The play was one of the best ever given by the school. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. H. F. Gelven at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

COOS READY FOR BANKERS

Marshfield Committee Prepares for June Convention.

MARSHFIELD, Or., May 22.—(Special.)—Plans for the entertainment of the Oregon delegates to the Bankers' association convention here June 8 and 9 are completed. Between 175 and 225 will attend.

The entertainment will consist of a banquet on the first night, a dance at the Millcreek club on Saturday evening, with a shore dinner and outing Saturday afternoon at Sunset Bay and Charleston. The bankers will come in a private train and on Sunday they will be shown the Coquille Valley, leaving that evening for their homes.

Pathe Contest With Serial.

THERE is one problem that is older than war; that affects more of the earth's inhabitants than even so great an armed clash as the one now in progress. That problem is domestic happiness. Marital happiness and marital fidelity shape the welfare of the Nation in time of war as in time of peace.

It is to help towards a solution of this greatest of all problems that Pathe announces a picture contest, open to all, for the best solution of a drama that is played in millions of homes. It has been estimated that the tragedy of domestic despair casts its shadow over one in every five homes; in other words, every fifth house on your street is a black house, where a man and woman have tangled their destiny into a knot that cannot be unwound.

How would you unravel that knot? A prize of $1000 will be paid for the best answer. The person submitting the next best solution will receive $500, and $100 will be paid to each of the five whose answers rank third.

Literary merit will not be considered. The genuine applicability of your solution to everyday life will be a prime essential. A committee of men of the National standing will act as judges.

The same problem has been put into a new kind of motion picture serial under the title, "The Neglected Wife," by Pathe. This serial is adapted from novels by Mabel Herbert Usher, the widely-read author on domestic subjects. It gives the dramatic and sometimes tragic history of a husband, his wife and the other woman, and how they straightened out the triangle that threatened their happiness.

Contestants' answers need not correspond to the ending in Pathe's picture. They should be limited to 200 words and be written on one side of the paper only. No replies will be considered after August 1. Answers should be sent to local Pathe Exchange.

Mary Still Likes Dolls.

Mary Pickford is still fond of dolls, and the mere fact that her entire company was made idle for practically an entire day while she played with dolls was of no importance whatever.

During the filming of the scenes in "A Romance of the Redwoods," the Artercraft picture, this fondness displayed itself. In several of the scenes taken high in the California mountains it was necessary for Miss Pickford to use a doll dressed in the style of the days of '49. When it came time to begin work upon those incidents it was found that, although the doll had been dressed for the scene, it had been left behind. A boy was about to be dispatched to a neighboring small town to secure another doll, when Miss Pickford said: "I'll go get it myself— you are in a hurry and I will run in and come right back." This was agreeable to Mr. De Mille, and Miss Pickford vanished in an automobile.

An hour passed by, and then another. The company sat around and talked, amusing themselves as best they could, until Miss Pickford had returned several hours passed and the day gradually was beginning to fade. Mr. De Mille ordered the company back to town, and upon reaching the village they stopped at a small country store, and there, behind one of the counters with the small daughter of the storekeeper, sat the favorite and highest-salaried photodramatic artist of the world, playing with a varied assortment of dolls, utterly oblivious to the flight of time.

patch-pocket, one-button navy blue serge suit; E. K. Lincoln has one of dark gray with silver and dark maroon thread stripe; Montagu Love has a two-button royal blue with white pencil stripes; Harry Morey one of bronze brown, single-breasted, with Peopoles—Douglas Fairbanks, "In Again, Out Again"; Star—Mary Miles Minter, "Annie for Spite"; Charlie Chaplin, "The Circus"; Majestic—William Farnum, "American Methods"; Globe—Virginia Pearson, "The War Bride's Secret"; Circle—Marin Sais, "The Secret of Lost Valley."

Lord, I hope you'll go on playin' them for you any time, all the time, my sweet heart of the screen, 'Cause sometimes you make me laf, and sometimes you make me sigh, And then again, I guess you, 'fore actin' makes me cry.

How Evelyn "Broke In."

Some girls are born movie actresses, some achieve movie acting, and some have movie acting thrust upon them. In the case of the exceptionally attractive and gifted Miss Evelyn Greely it happened like this: She chose the movies as a topic for an essay in boarding school and visited a studio to get facts. The director thought she was an actress looking for a job and hustled her into a scene in spite of her protests. The girl began to cry, and the director made her keep right on while he took a dozen tearful scenes and gave her a contract to continue as his star weeper.

Then the World Pictures people caught sight of her and she became a leading lady at their Fort Lea studio, where she has turned out to be a highly-valued acquisition. But you cannot convince Miss Greely that it is hard work to get into the picture game. She knows better than that.

Mollie King War Godmother.

Mollie King, who is starring in Pathe's serial, "Mystery of the Double Cross," is this country's first war godmother. Miss King has adopted three youths who have volunteered to fight for Uncle Sam, after the fashion set by the women of France and England.

One of them was the sole support of his mother and four young sisters. Learning that his duty to them kept him from enlisting, Miss King offered to pay all their expenses during his service and he hastened away to the recruiting office.

Another who wished to enter the Navy was deterred by the thought of what would become of his crippled father. Miss King assumed the obligation to care for the invalid. In the third case the popular star is providing for the small daughter of a young widower.

As European war godmothers do, Miss King will write to her proteges when they are on active service and furnish them with comforts not included in the Government supplies.

"I'm trying to do my bit," the actress said. "We women who can't fight are under an obligation to do all we can to encourage our men to fight and to care for them when they come home. Behind every man on the firing line is some woman for whom he feels that he is fighting and who has helped him to build up the ideals of sacrifice and patriotism that led him to enlist. We can't prove our devotion on the battlefield, but we can prove it here at home in no other way than through our pocketbooks."

Only Their Husbands.

Mr. Blanche Ring (Charles Winninger), the well-known trombone player and actor, was given three rousing cheers by the Only Their Husbands Club when he appeared at the regular monthly meeting, held last Monday in the Blue room at the Alexandria Hotel, Los Angeles.

He brought with him the greetings of the club's president, Mr. Mary Pickford (Owen Moore). Mr. Fannie Ward (Jack Dean) delivered a stirring speech and urged that the motto of the club be from now on "Remember Russia." Mr. Marie Doro (Elliott Dexter), a rabid revolutionary, threw all reason to the wind and made a motion that the club meet twice a month.

Citizens generally will be asked to cease business while one of the most patriotic duties in the history of the country is being performed.

Oakville to Have Cheese Factory.

ABERDEEN, Wash., May 22.—(Special.)—The building of a cheese factory at Oakville, the second to be erected in this county, has been assured by the subscribing of $1500 for stock for such a plant by farmers of that section. The building for the new plant will be up in 60 days. The Oakville district is one of the richest dairying sections of the county and this plant probably will soon become larger than that at Satsop. The Satsop plant last year sold nearly $50,000 worth of cheese.
