

DEATH NEARS JUDGE AS HE SITS ON BENCH

William L. Bradshaw Adjourns Court and Passes Away in Chambers Hour Later.

COURTHOUSE FEELS PALL

Jurist Long Resident of Oregon, Having Come With Parents 52 Years Ago—Fifth Elective Term on Bench Just Begun.

After being overcome by a sudden attack of heart failure, William L. Bradshaw, Circuit Judge of the Seventh Judicial District, died shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his chambers on the fifth floor of the courthouse, where he had been holding court for Circuit Judge Morrow, Dr. R. C. Yonney, who had been called immediately after Judge Bradshaw had complained of feeling ill, and E. V. Littlefield, a brother-in-law of the deceased jurist, were at his side when the end came.

Judge Bradshaw was presiding at the trial of Casper Hepp versus C. A. Foster, when at 10 minutes to 12, he suddenly announced that court would adjourn until 2 o'clock. He repaired at once to his chambers and lay on a couch and complained to Bullitt Mousse that his heart was bothering him. O. H. McPherson, Clerk of the Court, at once telephoned for Dr. Yonney, who arrived a few moments later.

After medicine had been administered Judge Bradshaw said that he felt much better and for a time it was believed he would survive the attack. Upon the arrival of Mr. Littlefield Judge Bradshaw talked for several moments, but suddenly complained of an intense pain in his chest and arms. His head then fell back on the cot and within a few minutes had breathed his last.

Death Due to Angina Pectoris. Shortly before his death Judge Bradshaw had told Mr. Littlefield that he had suffered several minor attacks during the morning as he sat on the bench, but thought it was nothing more than indigestion. He had never before yesterday been troubled with his heart. Judge Bradshaw was a big, heavily built man, and Dr. Yonney said that the heart attack was due directly to angina pectoris.

The body was removed at once to the Finley undertaking rooms, where it will be held pending funeral arrangements. Judge Bradshaw is survived by his widow, and by one son, a former marriage, Robert C. Bradshaw, of The Dalles, where the family has lived for many years. They were notified immediately, and started at once for Portland.

The deceased was 69 years of age and had lived in Oregon for the past 52 years, having come to this state with his parents from Missouri when seven years old. The family first lived in Yamhill County, but later moved to The Dalles.

He had been on the Circuit Bench for the past 26 years, having first been appointed by Governor Penneyer in 1891. He had entered upon his fifth consecutive elective term on the Circuit bench, as he was re-elected last November.

Courthouse Feels Pall. The sudden and unexpected death of Judge Bradshaw threw a pall of sorrow about the courthouse, which was respected by all attorneys and court attendants with whom he came in contact. Circuit Judge Phelps, of Pendleton, who is here temporarily, was deeply affected. Judge Phelps had tried his first law suit before Judge Bradshaw and had known him intimately for many years.

Out of respect to the memory of the deceased jurist, presiding Judge Kavanaugh yesterday adjourned all courts for the afternoon. It was later necessary for Judge Kavanaugh to direct the trial in the case which Judge Bradshaw had been hearing. The jury was dismissed by Judge Kavanaugh, who announced that the case would be reset and a new jury drawn.

Judge Bradshaw was prominent in the councils of the Knights of Pythias of Oregon and had served one term as grand chancellor. He had likewise represented the Oregon body in the grand conventions of the order. He was likewise a member of the B. P. O. E., having been affiliated with lodge No. 203, The Dalles. Politically, he was a life-long Democrat.

SUCCESSOR NOT YET NAMED Governor Withycombe Declines to Discuss Vacant Judgeship. SALEM, Or., June 20.—(Special.)—Governor Withycombe declined to comment this afternoon on a possible successor to Judge W. L. Bradshaw, of the Seventh Judicial District, who has just died.

However, the name of W. H. Wilson, of The Dalles, was mentioned here a number of times as a very probable successor. It is understood that the name of one other has been mentioned to the Governor, but the executive also declined to state who the candidates are. "I have barely heard of Judge Bradshaw's death and consequently have had no time to give the matter consideration. The death of Judge Bradshaw pains me deeply," the Governor added.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, June 20.—(Special.)—J. W. Brewer, district agent for the territory covering Sherman, Morrow and Gilliam counties, states that the harvest labor problem in these counties is not particularly alarming, due to the fact that a number of two-man, eight-hour combine harvesters have been bought for use in harvesting this season's crop.

Piano Points for Consideration

So important is the purchase of a piano that it should never be undertaken unless one has a vivid conception of the qualities that make for piano value.

Primarily, the piano is a musical instrument; incidentally, of course, it is an ornament. Its main function, therefore, is to give music.

In comparing the merits of various pianos, the purchaser should first determine which piano gives the very finest music. Without the proper tone, a piano is little more than a piece of furniture; but with a quality of tone that is pure, clear and pleasing to the ear, it becomes the greatest aid in the development of musical talent in the young, and of the appreciation of the best in music in every member of the family.

The purchaser should next consider the durability of the piano. He should be well aware of the construction of the pianos offered for his use.

Unless a piano can maintain its tone, stand up under hard usage for years after the newness has worn off, it is unworthy of consideration.

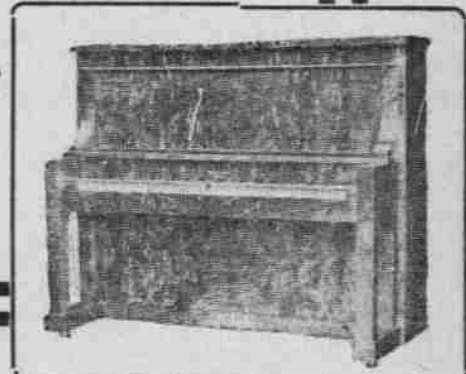

The design and finish of a piano should make a strong appeal to the eye. Tastes differ as to what is the most beautiful in piano case designs, so the line offered should have sufficient variety to permit a satisfactory choice.

A selection based on the points given: musical quality, durability of construction, the utmost beauty of design, will result in—satisfaction.
