50 MEN ARE NEEDED

Third Oregon Anxious to Make Full War Strength.

NO REGIMENT IS BETTER

Twice Already Has Full War Strength Been Attained, but Exemptions of Married Men and Others Reduce Number.

The Third Oregon Infantry needs about 50 men to bring it up to full war strength. Colonel John L. May, commanding the regiment, and Adjutant-General George A. White, of the Oregon National Guard, are particularly anxious to get them before the draft goes into effect. All advices from Washington indicate that the drawings for the first quota will be made within the next few days. Therefore, it behooves any young men who prefer enlisting as volunteers rather than as conscripts to join the colors at once. They can go a long way and hunt a long time before finding as desirable an outfit to go to the front with as the Third Oregon. Besides being composed of Oregon boys, which means congenial company, all high officers of the regiment are veterans of actual war service. That is the most important point for the recruit to consider, for it means they have already been tried and have won their spurs under fire. Quick Action to Be Had Here. Again, the Third Oregon is pretty sure to be sent to the front in the near future. The young man who wants action quickly can get it in this regiment. It will be considerably later before the new drafted regiments can be drilled, equipped and sent overseas. Two of the crack sergeants of the Third Oregon are in Portland on recruiting duty and will be particularly pleased to talk it over with any prospective recruit. They are Sergeant Robert DeV. Morse, of Company C, and Sergeant J. A. Bannister, of Company F. They are on duty during the day at the National Guard recruiting headquarters, 105 Fifth street. The telephone number at these headquarters is Main 1214.

Incidentally, in justice to the Third Oregon, it should be said that the regiment has twice been up to full war strength already. Each time it was brought down in strength by the discharge of married soldiers and those with other dependents, under orders from the War Department.

Recruits Will Be Accepted Now. Recruits for the Third Oregon will also be accepted at the regular Army recruiting station in the Worcester building, Third and Oak streets. The Third Oregon is not the only outfit that is accepting recruits just now preparatory to the draft. Another good organization is Battery B, the new field artillery unit, recruiting for which began only a week ago. Already it has nearly 70 good men. Fifteen recruits were accepted yesterday by First Lieutenant Charles L. Johnson, of Battery A, at the recruiting station at 104 Fifth street. While several of the noncommissioned officers for the new battery will be taken from Battery A, Lieutenant Johnson emphasized yesterday that there will be plenty of opportunity for advancement to other noncommissioned positions to bright recruits who show adaptability to artillery work. Three companies of combat engineers are being organized for the National Guard also, and a few recruits are still needed for the cavalry outfits. Macedonia was the first part of Europe which received the gospel direct from St. Paul. The account of this journey through Macedonia (Acts xviii, xvi) is marked by copious detail and well-defined incidents. Only a few will be on the list for the Public Naturalization Hearing Is Convention Feature.

WORKINGS TO BE SHOWN

Candidates for Citizenship Have Been Prepared in Portland Night Schools—Idea Is Fostered by Bureau of Government.

For the benefit and information of National Education Convention delegates a public naturalization hearing, at which the regular court proceedings will be carried out in detail, will be held at the Auditorium Thursday night. Circuit Judge Kavanaugh will preside and a good-sized class of applicants will be examined. The regular court officials will be on hand, including County Clerk Beveridge, John B. Easter, deputy clerk; Samuel W. Poole, bailiff; John Speed Smith, chief naturalization examiner for the Seattle district, and Henry B. Hazard, naturalization examiner stationed at Portland. Petitioners for naturalization and their witnesses will be sworn in as usual by the Clerk, questioned by Examiner Hazard and passed upon by Judge Kavanaugh, who will admit to citizenship before the whole convention. Those applicants who are found qualified. The petitioners are students of the Portland Night Schools, in which they have taken a special course in citizenship under the supervision of John C. Veatch, supervisor of night schools. Only a few will be on the list for the

WIFE'S FAITH UNSHAKEN

M. L. MARKS LEAVES TO FACE EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

Spouse Accompanies Prisoner to Spokane Despite Allegation That He is Bigamist. Deputy Sheriff Bradeen, of Spokane, arrived in Portland yesterday and will return M. L. Marks, who was arrested by City Detective Vaughn Sunday, to that city today to answer a charge of embezzling $5800 from his employer Ben Franklin, extensive buyer of war horses, of Sioux City, Ia. Mr. Marks still avers he is innocent of the charge and says that it is "frame-up" on the part of Arthur Cohn, representative of Mr. Franklin, who caused his arrest. Mr. Marks has waived extradition papers and says he will be able to clear himself of the charge on his arrival in Spokane. Mr. Cohn returned to Spokane last night after he learned that the officer was on his way for Mr. Marks. In spite of the fact that Mr. Cohn told the police that Mr. Marks had another wife and children in Council Bluffs, Ia., which was later told to Mrs. Marks here, she refuses to believe the story and stated yesterday that she intended to sift the case to the bottom, and that she would return to Spokane tonight with Mr. Marks and the officer.

CAPTAIN GRENFELL CHOSEN
