Evidence Satisfies Council. He said ample evidence to warrant his assertions had been obtained by the council.

Several Lutheran churchmen here said the council should have confined its denunciations to "German Lutherans" and asserted there was no cause to question their loyalty.

When complaint was made to Chancellor Avery in connection with some conferences with professors at which the chancellor, who was then urging the students to enlist, let it be known in confidential language...

Half of Students Enlist. Half the male students at the university of Nebraska have either enlisted in some branch of the service or have volunteered and been accepted for work on farms in the Central West.

Perhaps never in history has it been deemed necessary by a public body to single out by name a great church or organization and appeal to the patriotism of its members...

"Dependent upon the American patriotism of the men and women who comprise the Lutheran church membership, the council makes its appeal to them to put a check upon the American activities of some of their conspicuous and influential representatives.

"Confident that it is useless to make further appeal to the conspicuous representatives of that church, the council addresses its appeal to the rank and file of the church membership...

A report says of one community: "Many of the business men seem to be afraid for their money, their business if they engage in patriotic activities."

"The majority of bankers and other business men ever in business communities, let it be known emphatically they would not be influenced by threats, the statement says."

Business Called to War. (Continued From First Page.) Development of industry are necessary for the great task we have in hand.
