DRAFT PLAN GIVEN

Every Registered Man Will Get Number Showing Liability for Army Service.

ONE CARD CALLS 4550 MEN

All Numbers Higher Than Registrations in Small Districts Will Operate as Blanks in Those Districts.

WASHINGTON, July 12 .- Drawing of lots for the selective draft not only will determine what men are to be called to the colors in the first war the first war army will retain their positions on the list, and these positions will determine the order of their liability when they are needed.

The drawing will be public, and each number will be announced as it is drawn. At the offices of most local exemption boards the red ink numbers of emption boards the red ink numbers of the registrants already are posted, so that registrants may inform themselves beforehand of their respective numbers.

Small Districts Will Have Blanks. Obviously there will be high numbers drawn for which there are no corresponding registrants in small districts. The smallest district in the country is understood to have but 187 registrants and the largest about 7000. Whenever a number beyond the total in any given district comes out it will be a supported by the country in any given district comes out it. in any given district comes out it will operate as a blank for that district. Thus if the theory works out evenly the larger districts will be constantly assessed in excess of the smaller on a pro rata basis corresponding to their

Only 24 states have completed the organization of their exemption boards and the posting of red ink numbers.

The drawing cannot be held until all states are complete, so that no juggling of numbers will be possible.

The drawing probably will be held during the week of July 23 in the big reception room of the War Department adjoining Secretary Baker's offices.

Officials are unwilling to disclose the details, but the suggestion which seems to have the most support is that the present arrangement, 7000 num-the present arrangement, 7000 num-tion so far available indicated that the drawing will work out in this way: There are 4550 exemption districts. When the first number is drawn—say No. 10—it will be recorded as number one with the serial number (12) follow-ing. The record would show that the man whose card bears the serial number 10 in each of the 4550 exemption districts would be first to appear before the exemption boards. Presumably the announcement made at the drawing would be No. 1, serial No. 10.

Exemptions May Not Be Permanent. The law specifies that exemptions the are not permanent unless the cause for wat which they are granted is permanent. For instance, if a man should be exempted on the first call because of a dependent relative and that relative should die or become self-supporting before the second call, the registrant would be liable for service under the second call. It will be the duty of the exemption boards to keep watch of such cases and recall men who have been passed over once but whose status. have changed before the second Arabian nights has been taken one little episode and made into a delight in a comedy sketch to topline the new bill at the Hippodrome, and to serve as a vehicle for the artistry of Fremont Benton and Elchard Carroll and company.

The story of "Handkerchief Number Fifteen" is taken from the "Caliph of Bagdad." The hero in the sketch read the accounting of all the exciting incidents that happened to the Caliph, who lost the hanky on an adventure, and so he performed a modern version. The adventure happened, but the lost handkerchief had his name on it, and the lady, a dancehall artist, looked up his address and made things highly exciting for all concerned.

The sketch is nicely presented and the comedy is kept at fever heat through the antics of Mr. Carroll, the cleverness of Miss Benton, and the ability of Con Roddy and Emma Hayner, who assist in the fun.
