Defense Made in Parliament for Financing Other Nations on Theory That Cause Is Common and Unselfishness Shown.

LONDON, July 24.—Moving in the House of Commons today a vote of credit for 1550,000,000, the largest war credit yet asked and bringing Great Britain's expenditure to the colossal total of £5,292,000,000, Andrew Bonar Law Chancellar of the Eveneuer ave Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave startling figures of the amazing growth of Great Britain's financial burden in the world war and emphasized from the financial viewpoint alone the great importance of the United States enter-fing the war as insuring that the allies would not be deprived of victory through lack of money.

The House was astonished to learn that Great Britain's advances to the allies and dominions had already reached the huge total of more than those ages and the control of the cont reached the huge total of more than ff.000,000,000. The dally war expenditure, although it shows a substantial improvement over the figures given on May 9, when Mr. Bonar Law asked for the previous war credit, still approached f7,000,000 daily and exceeds the budget estimate by f1,000,000 dally, but, comparing the last 77 days with the first 35 days of the financial year, the expenditure showed a reduction of a million daily.

America Slow, Rightly So. Expressing his disappointment at the necessity of such large advances to the allies, the Chancellor referred to the British standpoint of unselfish generosity in regarding the whole entente allied cause as one, and explained that the cost of all the supplies for the allies produced in Great Britain during the war had been defrayed by England and that previous to the entry of America into the war much of the supplies to the allies produced abroad also had been paid for by England.

In an interesting reference to the United States, Mr. Bonar Law said:
