SPORT STARS TAKE

Williams and Pinelli, Beavers, and "Doc" Wells Drafted.

DIAMOND BIG CONTRIBUTOR

Noted Men of Professional and Amateur Fields Called to Colors—McLoughlin, Tennis Wizard, and Oulmet, Golf Hero, Included.

Two star players of the Portland Coast League baseball club and the club trainer, Doc Merritt Wells, were caught in the Army draft, and several others are still awaiting word from their respective cities. The club already have heard from Kenneth Williams, outfielder, and Ralph Pinelli, young infielder.

Williams was recently sold to the St. Louis Browns, but the big outfielder may never get there. He registered at Grant's Hotel, Cleveland, and was gone until the second call, which may or may not come along about the first of the next year. Pinelli, though, had been shipped, but later investigation when the team went south, revealed his number in the printed lists. Byron Hootch escaped, but the Beavers are still awaiting word from their folks. "Doc" Wells is married and probably will be exempted.

When the great draft Army is marshaled on foreign soil, some of the regiments will be distinguished by having the names of prominent athletes on their rosters. Six members of the Chicago Cubs have been drafted. They are: Cliff Schaller, Justin Fitzgerald, San Francisco; Babe Evans, Olin Kirmeyer, St. Louis; Steve Searles, Chicago; Demaree, Vernon; Terry, Tom Seaton, Los Angeles; Harry Kraus, Hack Miller, Oakland; and Ed Egan, Portland. Ray Fisher, Elmer Miller, New York; Hank Hendrix, pitcher, Mike Frensdorff, pitcher; Charlie Deal, third baseman, all of the Chicago Cubs.

Both Thorne and Alexander were members of the old Owl Tennis Club here years ago, but, since the club has been taken up with big business deals, they have left their tennis flunk. It was a bet that brings them together once more, and they will endeavor to show the young bloods some new kinks of sport.

Senator Day Is in Washington. OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 29.—Senator I. N. Day, of Oregon, is in Washington to confer with the Shipping Board regarding prospective contracts for wooden steamers and barges.

The University of Southern California offered the university campus to Los Angeles to be planted with vegetables.

Lewis fell for the offer. It sounded like a dream for the promoters to offer his guaranty for Morris to box an unheard-of man such as Kid Norfolk. Nate figured it would just be a good work for Carl before the important Labor day battle with Fred Fulton.

Nate afterwards thought it best to inquire among his friends who he should box. He learned in a hurry that Norfolk was a bearcat and held the championship of the world in the light weight class.

Lewis then sat down and wired to the Rochester promoters that he never allowed any of his boxers to fight colts. But he may be fined or suspended for the offense, if he cannot give a good reason why he refused.

A few nights ago Morris took on Tom McMahon in a six-round battle in Pittsburgh and McMahon got the news-paper decision. It was the same McMahon who holds a decision over Jess Willard in Youngstown, Ohio, on March 26, 1915. Just a little over a year before Willard won the heavyweight title, McMahon has also stopped Joe Bonds, who is well-known here.

Who's before his Labor Day mill with Fred Fulton, Jack Dempsey, the Salt Lake heavyweight, who is at present in San Francisco, may box Morris in Kansas City. Dempsey won from Willie Meehan in Emeryville, Cal., last Wednesday night.

The winner of the Morris-Fulton bout may be matched with Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship of the world. Jack Doyle, a California cafe owner, appeared before that body on a charge that he refused to follow out his contract and fight Kid Norfolk in Rochester, N. Y. He may be fined or suspended for the offense, if he cannot give a good reason why he refused.
