Pacific Coast Market Is Climbing Fast.

BREWERS FACE SHORTAGE

Crop Estimates in Oregon, California and Washington Are Being Lowered-Red Spider Causes Damage in This State.

The Pacific Coast crop is not looking good. Until recently it was thought the reduced acreage in Oregon would produce 40,000 bales. Now some of the dealers believe it will not go over 30,000 or 35,000 bales. In addition to the bad effects of More or less damage to gardens by frost the protonged dry spell and the poor culti-vation, due to the labor shortage, the red spider is causing damage around independence and in other sections.

The total United States crop may be under 150,000 bales, while a conservative estimate of the supply needed by brewers is 185,000 baies. Crop conditions in New York state are given by the Waterville Hop Reporter as follows: "During the page four warm pleasant days much work has been accom-plished in the yards. The weather conditions have been, and continue to be, so great a menance to the potato crop. We are startled. In Michigan late blight of the potato desirons one-fourth to one-half of the potato crop whenever the weather of the first balf of the growing season is cool and wet. We have exactly such conditions this year. A severe epidemic of late blight may be expected. What is true of Michigan may easily be true of other potato-producing sections. Already potate vines are showing signs of the trouble ahead. Spots of the early blight are beginning to appear. August will bring the dreaded late blight. July Wheat Price Is Run Up 12 Cents Bushel.

CHICAGO, July 31.—In the last-of-the-month squeeze today shorts had to bid July wheat up 12 cents a bushel and July eats up 11½ cents. An even more acute pinch in settling July corn contracts was averted by recent action of the Board of Trade directors, whereby all fresh dealings in the July delivery were forbidden. Corn clossed nervous, 1%c off to ½c up, with September $1.84% and December $1.17½ @1.17%. Wheat finished unsettled, varying from 7c decline to 12c advance, at $2.74 for July and $2.17 for September. The outcome in oats ranged from %c setback to a gain of 6½c. Provisions showed a rise of 12c to 37c except July pork, which lost 29c. Aside from the flurries which attended the windup of July contracts in wheat and oats, the main interest centered in free selling of new-crop deliveries of corn. The general run of crop reports, except from Kansas and Ohlahoma, were favorable. Besides forecasts pointed to cooler weather, with showers, and there were hopes that this might extend to the Southwest. Demand for corn for immediate use, especially by distillers, remained so urgent that cash corn and the September option rose to new high price records, No. 2 yellow touching $2.33, about quadruple ordinary values before the war.

A jump to the unprecedented price of 90 a bushel was forced in the July delivery of oals before the wants of shorts were saltsfied. Then the market suddenly brok to 82c, but again shot up to 85c just at th close. Most of the trading in wheat consisted of last day evening up of July contracts by scattered shorts. The market opened 2c to 3c higher at $2.64 2.65 for July and clung persistently to the upper level. Subsequently July rose decidedly higher, but rains in the Northwest eased down September.
