

PROMINENT COUPLE VICTIMS OF CURIO

Mrs. David Campbell Marries William Lord, Son of Late ex-Governor.

MARRIAGE IS SURPRISE

Widow of Portland's Fire Chief Hero and Well-Known Attorney Seal Away to Stevenson, Wash., and Have Knot Tied.

Mrs. David Campbell, widow of David Campbell, late chief of the Portland Fire Department, and William P. Lord, prominent attorney and son of the late Governor William P. Lord, were quietly married last Thursday at Stevenson, Wash.

Although the happy event was not unexpected among their numerous friends, they managed to keep their secret until yesterday when the news leaked out. On account of the prominence and popularity of both the report created more or less of a sensation.

Accompanied by Mrs. W. D. Allard, sister of Mrs. Campbell, the couple motored to Stevenson last Thursday afternoon, where they obtained the license and were married by a minister of that place, Dr. Mort, a boyhood friend of Mr. Lord, and Mrs. Allard were the only witnesses.

They returned to Portland the same evening and have been keeping knowledge of this marriage to themselves ever since. Last night Mr. and Mrs. Lord were entertained at a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Moulton on East Burnside street.

Mrs. Lord is well known here being a member of one of Portland's oldest families. Her first husband, David Campbell, was killed while fighting a spectacular oil tank fire in East Portland seven years ago in June. Since then she has given much of her time to charitable and philanthropic work.

Three years ago she chaperoned a party of Portland girls, who had been chosen queen and maids of the Rose Festival on a tour of the Pacific Coast. Her cheerful disposition and radiant good nature have served constantly to enlarge her circle of friends.

Mr. Lord is a native of Oregon. His father served as Governor of the state from 1893 to 1899. As a youth he accompanied his parents on a trip to Europe and later to Argentina, his father serving for a time as United States ambassador to the South American country.

He studied law at Willamette University and attended Morgan Park Academy in Chicago. After being admitted to the bar he assisted his father in codifying the laws of the state, their product being incorporated in three volumes known as Lord's Oregon Laws.

At present he is practicing law in Portland with offices in the Lewis building. His mother resides at Salem.

MAJOR LAFFERTY IS HOME

Race for Congress Is Considered After Training Camp.

Major A. W. Lafferty, ex-Representative in Congress, returned last night from the Officers' Reserve Training camp at the Presidio.

Major Lafferty has been commissioned, but placed on the inactive list. He is subject to call into active service at any time during the life of his commission which has three years to run. Meanwhile he expects to run for Congress.

"I don't know yet whether I'll run for the House or Senate," he said last night. "It doesn't make much difference which."

"While I am ready to go back into the Army at any time they call me, I believe I can be of greater service to my country in the National Legislature than in the trenches."

Major Lafferty commented in laudatory terms of life at the training camp, and declared that the experience, the physical training and the lesson in patriotism are well worth the time even if the men never are fortunate enough to see active service.

In addressing the convention John L. fallen from the roof of the Boring Schoolhouse, which he was painting. The coroner's jury tonight found that death was due to an unavoidable accident, the direct cause being a puncture at the base of the brain. Mr. Hickey fell 30 feet, his right leg being broken and a shoulder badly bruised.

According to information gathered by Sheriff Wilson and Justice of the Peace Slevens, acting for Coroner Hempstead, Mrs. Hickey and William Elkins, who was a regular visitor at the house and a friend of Mr. Hickey's, visited the husband where he was at work on the schoolhouse just before 5 o'clock Saturday. Mrs. Hickey and Mr. Elkins left for Battleground, Wash., immediately after holding their conversation with Hickey, officials are informed.

Mrs. Hickey today refused to tell Sheriff Wilson of Elkins' whereabouts, during a telephone conversation, in which she said she was at Battleground, Wash., reported the Sheriff. He says he afterward found that she was in Portland.

William Elkins was a promoter of logging schemes, it is said here. Mr. Hickey had a brother in Eastern Oregon who is on his way to Boring. Mr. Hickey was a member of the Odd-fellows' lodge and of the United Artists.

When questioned as to the delay in finding her father, the 15-year-old wife of Hobart Beers, who himself is under 21, said that she thought her father was fighting forest fires. The fires have been under control for three days.

THIRD OREGON WILL LEARN WRINKLES IN TRENCH FIGHTING

Bayonet Drill Will Be Given This Week and Rear-Guard Problems Will Be Worked Out—Men Need Lumber for Mess Tables.

BY WILL G. MAC RAE WITH THE Third Regiment, Oregon Infantry, Aug. 6.—(Special.)—This week's schedule will largely be devoted to trench-digging instructions, trench fighting and bayonet drill. While some of the organizations are trench-making after the latest proved methods, other companies will be hitting the grit, working out advance and rear guard problems and getting wisdom on outpost duty.

Colonel John L. May and his staff has worked a combination schedule that will take them for eight hours a day, is so divided that the interest of the soldiers is kept keenly alive all the time, and yet they will not be on the galley. Lieutenant-Colonel Carl Abrams, who has been a student at Fort Sill, will, as soon as he has taken his examination, be free to give to the regiment some of the valuable pointers learned. Colonel Vernon A. Caldwell and Captain Francis Endicott, who conducted the examination of the officers of the Third Oregon, will conduct that of Colonel Abrams.

On telegraphic instructions received yesterday from the War Department, the officers of the Third Oregon who were examined, recently sent in their acceptance of their commissions as officers in the National Army by telegraph to the War Department.

Captain B. V. Clayton, Battery A, and Captain Clever F. Hogan, Troop A, are up against it for lumber with which to build mess tables. The men now eat their meals sitting on the ground. This will not bother while the weather is fine, but once the rains come, unless kind friends in Portland get together and send out about 1000 feet of two-by-fours, the men will be eating off the mud.

The troop and battery have just little the best and most willing set of carpenters in the business. They will take special delight in constructing mess tables if someone would furnish the lumber. Because the camp here has not been made a cantonment, the War Department has decided not to spend any more money on the camp than is absolutely necessary.

The Y. M. C. A. is keeping step with the growth of the camp. It has not only increased the size of the Y. M. C. A. tent, but has increased the working force. There is a general secretary, W. F. Poockner; a tent secretary, Henry Miles; an assistant secretary, Henry Richter, and a physical director, Charles Rathways. In the big tent now there is a circulating library.

Private Ralph E. Duxan and Private John E. Springer, of Company H, has been appointed corporals.

Lieutenant Colonel I. Chenoweth and Sergeant Homer Robb, of Company L, who have had charge of the recruit company, have been relieved of that duty. Now that it is the National Army, recruits for the Third Oregon will come from the draft.

Privates Emmet More, John Plummer, Company K, and William Dennis, Company L, who have been ill in the regimental hospital, have been discharged and will report back to their commanding officers.

Trooper Dudley Campbell, Troop A, is the first man in the troop to find lodgment in the regimental hospital. He is only slightly indisposed.

Private Lou W. Eker, Company F, received his discharge today because of dependency in his family.

Ray J. Minnear, of 1130 Sixtieth avenue, Portland, whose name was included in a list of reservists ordered by the Adjutant-General to report at the Portland Armory on the same date as the National Guard troops who mobilized July 23, is a Sergeant in Company H, Third Oregon Infantry. He has been on the job all the time since the call for troops first was issued, and feels that there is nothing of the deserter about himself.

SYDNEY, N. E. W., Aug. 6.—A strike of railway and street railway employees, which has been in progress for some days, now affects 20,000 men and is seriously hampering the coal mines and other industries. The origin of the strike was a dispute over the customs of trades unions. The government has promised an investigation of their grievances three months hence.

All the negotiations have proved abortive. The dispute represents a struggle between the government and the organized unions. The New South Wales manufacturers are talking of shutting down all industries to assist the government.
