GERMANY'S THREAT

Zimmermann, in Passion, Declares Half-Million Germans Available Here.

willingness to furnish Germany as well.

Lusitania Is Sunk.
To this note Secretary Bryan, in a note, replied that it was impossible in view of the indisputable doctrines of accepted international law to make any change in our own laws of neutrality which meant unequally affecting during the progress of the war the relations of the United States with the various nations at war, and that the placing of embargoes on the trade in arms which constituted such a change would be a direct violation of the neutrality of the United States.

But all these negotiations, reproaches and recriminations were put to an end by the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the killing of American women and civilians who were passengers on that vessel.

War Believed Imminent.

I myself believed that we would immediately break diplomatic relations, and prepared to leave Germany. On May 11 I delivered to the German ambassador the Lusitania note, which, after calling attention to the cases of the sinking of American boats, ending with the Lusitania, contained the statement:

The imperial German government will not expect the Government of the United States to permit any word or any act necessary to the sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercises and enjoyments.

During this period I had constant conversations with the German ambassador, and it was during the period of conversations about this submarine warfare that Zimmermann on one occasion said to me: "The United States does not dare to do anything against Germany, because we have 500,000 German reservists in America who will rise in arms against your Government if your Government should dare to take any action against Germany." As he said this he had worked himself up and repeatedly struck the table with his fist.

Lamp Posts Exceed Reservists.

I told him that we had 501,000 lamp posts in America, and that was where the German reservists would find themselves if they ever arising.

I also called his attention to the fact that no German-Americans making use of the American passports, which they could easily obtain, were sailing for Germany by way of Scandinavian countries in order to enlist in the German army. I told him if he could show me one person with an American passport who had come to fight in the German army, that I might more readily believe what he said about the Germans in America rising in revolution.

No American Germans Join Kaiser's Army.

As a matter of fact, during the whole course of the war I knew of only one man with American citizenship who enlisted in the German army. This was a red-headed Yale student named Llewellyn, who enlisted in a German regiment.

His father, a business man in New York, called, asking me to have his son released from the German army. Aid so I procured the discharge of the young man, who immediately wrote to me and informed me that he was over 21 and that he could not conduct business his father had to interfere with his military ambitions. I thereupon withdrew my request with reference to him, but he had already been discharged from the army. When his regiment went to the west front he slipped away on his own, and was present at the attack on Ypres and was shot through the body. He recovered in a German hospital, received the Iron Cross, was discharged and returned to America. What has since become of him I do not know.

2 INDIAN AGITATORS HELD

Ringleaders in Arizona Uprising to Be Tried as Disturbers.

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 9.—With the arrest of two ringleaders among the Apache Indian strikers at the asbestos mines in the Sierra Anchas Mountains, fears of a spread of the uprising have been allayed. Officers are bringing the two arrested men, known as "Montana" and Johnny Cook, to Globe on charges of disturbing the peace.

Rains of the last two nights and efforts of the forest rangers have checked the forest fires, which were said to have been caused by the Apache strikers at the mine. None of the white miners have been injured. All have returned to the asbestos workings.

FIVE I. W. W. GO TO JAIL AS VAGRANTS

William Ford, Organizer, Is Sentenced to Six Months' Imprisonment.

REAL NAME IS KOSLOWSKI

Trial of John McDonald, Said to Be Leading Agitator of Order on Pacific Coast, Is Set for Hearing Today.

Five members of the I. W. W. were sentenced in Municipal Court yesterday by Judge Rossman to imprisonment.

The heaviest sentence was in the case of William Ford, organizer, arrested Wednesday on a vagrancy charge. Ford was sentenced to six months in the County Jail.

Testimony was introduced during his trial showing that he had been convicted of a larceny charge in February, 1916, and paroled to former Public Defender David Robinson. Ford's true name is William Koslowski, it developed yesterday. During the past few months he has been organizing the I. W. W. throughout the Northwest.

William Carson was sentenced to 45 days in the City Jail, together with Carl Koch, who was sentenced to 20 days, and Tom Watson, 20 days. Koch and Watson had been employed on the steamer "Hassalo," but went out on strike last Monday. Neither man had been employed on the boat longer than five days.

Joe Hall, also a member of the I. W. W., was committed to the County Jail for 90 days on a vagrancy charge. When he was arrested he had a large quantity of morphine sulphate in his possession.

Much interest is being manifested in the trial of John McDonald, scheduled for today. McDonald was arrested Sunday after taking part in a mass meeting on the Plaza blocks. He is said to be the leading agitator of the order on the Pacific Coast and has been active in the work in Seattle during the past few months.

H. E. King, attorney for the I. W. W., gave notice of appeal in all the cases yesterday. Ford's bail was fixed at $2000, that of Koch, Watson, Carson and Hall was fixed at the rate of $100 for every ten days of the sentence imposed on each man respectively.

AN EPIDEMIC CAN START IN YOUR HOME

A garbage can (covered or uncovered) will breed millions of disease germs in one day right in your kitchen.

So will an unwashed milk bottle, a clogged sink, a little old water in your refrigerator, or faulty plumbing in your toilet or kitchen sink.

These germs can infect your family and your neighborhood, and thus cause epidemic to spread over city, state, and country. All big epidemics have small beginnings, and most of them could be prevented by proper disinfection of homes.

You can disinfect your home thoroughly, easily, and cheaply with Lysol because it surely kills germs and keeps flies away. Use Lysol often in garbage cans, sinks, toilets, cesspools, and drains.

Use Lysol in scrubbing water and for cleaning milk bottles, for soap and water will not kill all germs. Take these simple precautions and you will make a better fight against disease than it can make against you and yours.

Supplemental Petitions Must Be Considered.

Supreme Court of Washington Revises Ruling of Secretary of State on Referendum Signatures.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Suspension of the bone-dry law passed by the late Legislature is considered assured by a Supreme Court decision issued today directing the Secretary of State to count and certify legal signatures carried by supplemental petitions. The original referendum petitions lacked less than 100 signatures of the required legal number, and the supplemental petitions still to be counted bear 250 signatures.

Suit to compel canvass of the latter was brought by E. M. Williams, of Seattle, who filed a mass of referendum petitions several days before the 90-day limitation period expired, and just previous to its expiration presented additional petitions which the Secretary refused to accept, on a theory
