

SOCIETY NEWS BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

PLANS for the wedding of Miss Claire Wilcox and Cameron Squires are being formulated rapidly and the attendants are announced. Miss Wilcox has chosen for her maid of honor Miss Isabella Tyson, of Knoxville, Tenn., who was a schoolmate of Miss Wilcox at Miss Spencer's School, New York. Miss Tyson has been here on a visit and is well known to the younger members of society. She is a lovely and charming Southern girl. Another classmate, Miss Eleanor Anderson, of Colorado Springs, will be a bridesmaid. Portland girls in the bridal party as attendants will be Miss Evelyn Carey, Miss Polly Young and Miss Ruth Teal. Theodore B. Wilcox, Jr., will be best man and the ushers will be Gerald SooySmith, Charles S. Holbrook, Philip Fry and Prescott Cookingham.

POPULAR GIRL WHOSE ENGAGEMENT TO CALIFORNIA BUSINESS MAN IS ANNOUNCED.

Miss Philippine Schmidt

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and son, of Chicago, are in Portland and are at the Multnomah Hotel.

Miss Elizabeth Matthews, who opened Anne Davenport's school near Council Crest, passed the last few months at Berkeley as a member of the faculty of the University of California Summer school. She has been called to Honolulu to fill a position in the College of Hawaii, but she expects to return to Portland later on and in the meantime her sister is at the clubhouse near Council Crest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and son, of Chicago, are in Portland and are at the Multnomah Hotel.

Miss Edith L. Catherwood and Dr. Ralph C. Virgil were married last night at the attractive country residence of the George F. Honey family at Gresham. Miss Catherwood is a Portland girl and Dr. Virgil's home is in Dallas, but the home of the bride's uncle was chosen as the setting for the wedding. There were present as witnesses to the ceremony a number of guests from various parts of the state, many of whom were relatives and close friends of the couple, and a dozen girls, sorority sisters of the bride, were among those attending.

The Rev. Mr. Thomas Jenkins, rector of St. David's Episcopal Church, read the impressive ceremony. Miss Catherine Honey, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor; Miss Marie Griffin, bridesmaid; Margaret Biers, ring bearer; Lieutenant Robert Kearson, best man; and John K. Honey, usher. The bride wore a white Georgette crepe gown trimmed with tulle lace. She carried white roses. The veil was caught in place with a bandeau. The maid of honor was attired in green tulle and carried white asters. The bridesmaid was gowned in pale yellow tulle and the little ring bearer wore a fluffy frock of white tulle. The bride and bridesmaid were decorated in yellow and white flowers and greenery. The wedding cake, in a place of honor on the attractive silver stand, was placed on the same silver stand that was used at the marriage of the bride's parents. About 65 guests attended and remained for the wedding supper. The bride wore a going-away gown of dark blue, smartly tailored and with a chic fall hat. Dr. and Mrs. Virgil are the beach for a fortnight's trip.

The bride is well known and popular in the college set and the bridegroom is a prominent physician of Polk County.

Mr. and Mrs. William Avery Case are being congratulated upon the birth of a son, born Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. LeGrand, of Portland, motored to Newport last week and are occupying their bungalow, "Shagbilly on the Sea," at Nye Beach, where they were recently joined by C. A. LeGrand, Adolph LeGrand and Adolph Rae.

Mrs. Charles C. Early and Mrs. Mark G. Colby left Thursday for British Columbia and will be away a month or six weeks and will visit Victoria, Vancouver, Lake Louise and Banff, spending most of their time at the latter place.

Mrs. J. C. Hare is passing a few days at Neah-kah-nie. She visited Mrs. Alice Welster at the Clubhouse last week.

Mrs. P. Mansley and son, Gordon, have left town to spend the remainder of the season at Seaview, North Beach, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Jensen, who have been visiting Mrs. Andrew P. Gram for the summer, will leave this morning for their home in Omaha, Neb. Mrs. Jensen and children spent July at the Gram cottage in Gearhart. Mr. Jensen arrived here a few days ago to accompany his family home. They will visit at Banff and other points in the Canadian Rockies en route.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Behrendsen have returned from a two-week visit with friends on the Sound cities and at Rainier National Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frederick Wilson, whose marriage in Redwood City, Cal., was a recent event of interest, have returned from their honeymoon trip and are at home at the Multnomah Hotel, where they have taken a suite of rooms for the season.

Mrs. E. E. Ryan, of El Paso, Tex., is in Portland as the guest of her mother, Mrs. H. G. West, of 800 Halsey street. Mrs. Ryan was Miss Clara Louise West.

On the war council of the Young Women's Christian Association representing Portland are Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett and Mrs. William MacMaster. The National committee will tour the Northwest next month, and there will be a reception at Mrs. Corbett's home for them.

The plan of the women is, in brief, conservation, the utilizing of all products and general co-operation in patriotic service.

Gay with flags and with the dash of enthusiasm inspired by the presence of so many of the young officers in their uniforms, the dance given at the Waverly Country Club by Miss Ruth Shull was one of the most attractive affairs of the season. Close to 100 young people attended, representing the leading families of the city. The party was planned in compliment to the officers just back from the training camp. The girls wore unusually lovely Summer gowns, and all in all, the party was one long to be remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Bair and their two attractive daughters, the Misses Alberta and Margaret, will leave this morning for a motor trip through Montana and the Yellowstone National Park. Last week Miss Alberta Bair and Miss Ruth Shull were guests of Miss Cornelia Stanley at the Stanley ranch near Bend.

Mrs. Bair and Miss Margaret Bair were at the beach last week.

WHAT YOU CAN MAKE AT HOME BY MRS. PORTLAND.

WHEN you are in camp this summer, there are several schemes you may use to keep your eatables cool, and the same time keep them from becoming creatures of all kinds. One is the old woodsman's method of hanging them up in a tree, tying them with sufficient rope to keep them well out of the reach of any climbing marauders. This may do in moderately cool weather for over night, but is not ordinarily the best plan for the hot Summer days, and the food is apt to be infested with ants, bugs and such insects, unless the food receptacles are placed in a bucket or pan of water, and this suspended from the branch of a tree.

One very good method of keeping foods cool is by placing them in a double sand or ash box. If you are near the ocean or a stream, you will probably be able to get plenty of sand. Dig a hole in the ground in some shady place, and set in it a large box or tub. Put several inches of sand in the bottom of this box, and then set another tub or box inside of it and fill up the space between the two receptacles with sand. If the sand surrounding the inner box is kept constantly wet, the air within will be kept quite cool. If it is water tight, an inch or two of water in the bottom of the box, and a wet cloth covering it, will further lower the temperature, and with a good board cover on top of the cloth, milk, butter and all kinds of foods may be kept nicely. Jars or tubs of stoneware or concrete are also very good camp receptacles for foods, and can also be set down in the ground, as that is ordinarily a cooler place than above ground.

If you are camping near a stream, you may be able to fit up a cooler be-lasts with pepper, mustard, onion juice (if liked) and any other preferred flavorings, adding a very small amount, say 1/2 teaspoon sugar. If a "half sweet" dressing is wanted, omit the onion juice and increase the sugar. For fruit salads, dilute with whipped cream and use a little more sugar, omitting, of course, the hot condiments. Use a little paprika, if liked. A little fruit juice might also be added.

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 2.—Dear Miss Tingle: I am sending you my recipe for Graham Bread. It is very tasty, and I hope you will like it. The egg makes it lighter and more nutritious than ordinary Graham bread. Making you for your recipe. I am glad you find this column helpful.

Graham Bread With Buttermilk—Two cups Graham flour, one cup white flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, one teaspoon (level) soda, one tablespoon sugar, or molasses, one tablespoon melted shortening, one egg, about 1 1/2 cups buttermilk or well-soured skim milk. Mix the dry ingredients, add the egg and stir well. Place in a well-greased pan and bake in a moderate oven. Test like a cake to be sure it is baked through. If you make it in a loaf, it bakes it in a shallow pan and cut in squares, as this gives more brown crust, which we enjoy.

TRAINING THE CHILD BY WILLIAM BYRON FORBUSH, PH.D.

Men are beginning to take laughter seriously. Great men are writing books about it. They usually start with the simple question, Why do we laugh? But is it so simple? Can you give the answer in a word?

Professor Patrick, of Iowa University, has told us when men laugh. It is when they feel relief from tension. A child laughs most of the time because he never has much tension. Whenever, as the old negro mammy put it, one can "weah dis yeah wurl lak a loose garment," then he laughs. Colored folks are past masters of laughter.

What Started Laughter. Some claim the first human laughter was when the savage felt relief after the stress of battle. Others say it was when he looked with satisfaction upon the writhings of his conquered enemy. In any case it was when he felt safe and could sit loose.

And we laugh today when things are loose. We laugh when anyone slips, when one is discovered in an undignified position, like chasing his hat or administering what he supposed to be a private kiss, when anything disorderly or out of the formal programme occurs, like an innocent dog in church or a deer caught in a trap.

Laughter and Progress. Laughter implies progress. Though beyond an original kind of laughter beyond the vacant guffaw of those who are mentally unstable requires that he who laughs should be possessed of an individual mind. It involves a quick survey of what is going on around one, seeing things in their setting and being amused at what is out of place.

Laughter is useful. It helps one dismiss petty annoyances, like big hats at the theater, or the hauteur of snobs. It gives respite from great sorrows. It drives us to be compassionate, because we feel the need of somebody to laugh with. No doubt laughter has been a potent reformer. Satire has made ridiculous the follies of our age and comedy has driven old-fashioned customs into shame.

Judgment of the Amusing. But laughter has its pitfalls. It is a kind of judgment. There is a French saying which echoes an older one in the Bible, that "A man may be measured by what he finds amusing." Here is where a word is needed in respect to the laughter of our children.

Has it ever occurred to you that it is your duty to teach your children how to laugh? Because they laugh so easily, they are in danger of being taken in by some one who is laughing at them. They shall laugh only over triumph or teasing of the more or less of others. It is their duty to get a child to be a good sport and laugh at himself. It requires discipline for him to use his own mind and make it up as he goes. It means patience to obtain the self-control to "laugh only as love does laugh."

Those Who Do Not Laugh. I am more concerned, however, about our youth who have outgrown laughter. An English thinker calls attention to the decline of "youthful laughter." He attributes it to "the greater pushfulness of men," and thinks mankind is getting too weary, too busy, too cynical to laugh. It is the trouble with our "civilized" young.

Did you never note the set faces of young dancers? Have you been surprised to see how sternly youths stare from the baseball benches? At loud laughter Mrs. Grundy raises every where an offended front. Now I suspect a young man or woman who does not laugh easily. Don't you think we ought to make laughter more popular? Ought it not to be easier to laugh than to frown? The "laughing hour" is a household in which the children called "meatline," the "laughter hour"?

Wouldn't you like to have your folks known in the neighborhood as "the family that laughs"?
