Pantomime by Girls and Acrobatics by Boys Close Play Season.

NURSERY STORY DEPICTED

Boxing Exhibition Also Given by Youngsters at Columbia Park With Their Worried Mothers Present as Spectators.

Dozens of proud mothers and small brothers and sisters were at Columbia Park yesterday afternoon to see the pageant given by the children of the playground to mark the end of the season at the park. The day was ideal for such an occasion and there was just enough breeze to make it cool enough for the youngsters to go through with their dances and acrobatic formations with ease.

A number of boys went through different pyramid formations with the exactness and self-confidence of experienced athletes. The formations were topped by one small boy, who seemed to be capable of keeping his balance, no matter what happened. The well-known story of "Little Red Riding Hood" was pantomimed in a charming way by the smaller girls of the playground. There the flowers, in various colors; the trees, in vivid green costumes; the fairies who wore white-spangled tarlatan dresses and carried silver wands; and the butterflies, in various colored costumes. Then there was Sunshine, a tiny youngster in bright yellow, and the Wind, who wore a white dress and a filmy scarf of blue.

Dancers Are Graceful.
First the trees danced out, followed by the flowers. Then the Wind, Alva Stout, came and danced through the trees and around the flowers. The elusive sunbeam, Josephine Leferer, darted in and about the trees and flowers, pausing every now and then to beam some particular flower friend.

Little Red Riding Hood, Evelyn Churchill, came striding along the way to visit her grandmother, Mabel Easter. A ferocious looking wolf, Kenneth Duncan, pursued by two young hunters, followed Red Riding Hood, but reached grandmother's cottage first and that was the last of grandmother.

The children were well trained and danced with grace and which holds promise for future celebrities.

Tumbling Exhibition Given.
A clever exhibition of tumbling was given by Robert Langley, who is the playground instructor, and his brother, George Langley.

A boxing match by Jess Bailey, as Jess Williams, and Harold Brown, as John L. Sullivan, was thoroughly enjoyed by the young fans and somewhat worried mothers. Earl Robinson referred the match, seeming to get as much enjoyment out of it as the participants.

The pantomime, "Little Red Riding Hood" was given under the direction of Miss Jennie Huggins, playground instructor. The pyramid formations and boxing were well done by the youngsters of Robert Langley. The pageant was an artistic success and the exemplification of the mission of the modern playground.

State's Protest Causes Reconsideration of Exemption Granted 125.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Aug. 28.—(Special.)—The Clarke County Draft Board will reconsider exemption claims allowed men in the first call.

It is expected that fully 25 per cent of 125 freed will have their exemptions revoked. They may appeal to the District Board, at Tacoma.

The board was much stricter in the second call, but 119 exemption claims were allowed. Allowance must be made, however, for those exempted by the District Board, particularly on occupational grounds.

RACE RIOT PROBE ON

Major Snow Instructed Not to Testify in Houston Quizz.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 28.—The city of Houston today began what Acting Mayor D. M. Moody terms the development of the "real story" of the horror of last Thursday night, when 100 negro soldiers of the Twenty-fourth Infantry rampaged through the west end, shooting down 15 whites and losing two of their own number.

The board of inquiry appointed by Moody began the examination of witnesses.

Two or three witnesses were called who testified as to the conduct of negro soldiers on streetcars. W. F. Legg, a conductor, said many colored soldiers took seats not in the section reserved for negroes, and objected to moving when requested.

"They told me they would build a smoke under me," he added, but explained he did not know what this meant.

W. S. Green, who worked at night near the negroes' camp, said as soon as dark would fall negro women flocked down the street to the camps. He said he had seen as many as six automobiles come near the camp at daybreak and haul negro women away. Legg and Green said they never had seen any of the negro soldiers drunk.

At this point a telegram was received from Congressman Daniel Garrett in Washington, saying Secretary of War Baker had detailed General J. L. Chamberlain to assist the board of inquiry.

Major Snow appeared and explained that under instructions he was unable to testify.

ARMY THEFT CONFESSED

Soldiers Arrested While Trying to Dispose of Stolen Blankets.

John C. Crowley, 24, one of the soldiers in charge of the commissary storeroom of the Fourteenth Infantry, at Vancouver Barracks, and Robert L. Pierce, a cook in the same regiment, were arrested in the North End last night while trying to dispose of 10 Army blankets. They were held for the military authorities.

The police got a description of two soldiers who were trying to dispose of alleged stolen goods and recognized them in a second-hand store. They say Crowley confessed that he had stolen the blankets, but maintained that Pierce had merely helped to carry the blankets to Portland, and knew nothing of the theft. This is the first local arrest of soldiers in connection with the theft of Government goods during the present war.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 28.—The city of Houston today began what Acting Mayor D. M. ### SUBMARINE HITS MINE

Cruiser Drops Explosive and Leads Diver to Doom.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 28.—A story of how a German submarine was sunk by a floating bomb left in the wake of a British cruiser which the submarine was following, was told by a captain of a British merchantman arriving here today. His ship had been sunk by the submarine and the crew had been picked up by the cruiser.

When the lookout on the cruiser sighted the periscope of the submarine, he alerted the crew and the U-boat came near. It was dark and the bomb was lowered over the side of the cruiser which then put on all steam and ran straight ahead, while the submarine followed. Soon an explosion blew the U-boat out of the water. The cruiser returned and rescued two German sailors from the sunken submarine.

LOVE GOD CRUSHED

Angela Marquam's Married Life Turbulent.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 28.—(Special.)—The story of a married life as turbulent as a storm at sea, during which pretty Angela Lyndalle Marquam, formerly of Portland, was said to have become engaged to marry Victor G. Vierzon, a sculptor, was recounted today in Judge Avery's court, where the girl-wife, now Mrs. Vierzon, was granted a divorce.

She was 19 years old and the young sculptor, said to be closely related to Marconi, the wireless inventor, was 24 when they were married in 1915, according to the young wife's story of her shattered romance.

Their married life lasted four months, when they separated in Glendale, a Los Angeles suburb, following a number of violent quarrels, she said.

Mother's Visit Causes Squall.
According to her testimony, her husband struck her when she came to Los Angeles from Glendale to meet her mother, who visited them from Portland.

Mrs. Vierzon said she had no warning of the blow, which, she declared, felled her to the sidewalk, and she supposed he was angry because she came to meet her mother.

Another similar incident occurred in their apartments afterwards, she said. At that time, she declared, he attempted to choke her, but her mother interferred.

The young wife's mother, Dr. Lulu M. Marquam, well known as a physician in Portland and Eugene, Or., corroborated the story of the alleged choking.

"He rushed at his wife and she fled around the table," Dr. Marquam testified.

He already had his hand upon her throat when the witness declared she fled around the table and prevented further trouble at that time.

Troth Plighted as Sea Yawns.
Mrs. Vierzon's attorney stated that he had been informed the husband was arrested recently in Berkeley on a charge of forgery. He showed Judge Avery a letter from the District Attorney in which it was stated that Vierzon had agreed to plead guilty.

Dr. Marquam said that her daughter and Vierzon separated June 25, 1916.
