Softly fell the silvery moonlight,

Nightbirds to their mates were calling. Whippo wills were cutting didoes In the breezes with their pinions, To the spot a gray owl hoeted And imagined in its wisdom That it really was singing, There was music in the rippling Of the waters of the river As they swept around the boulders In the picturesque old canyon, Down the trail with measured paces, Hand in hand, their smoke-tanned faces Draped in cloud of dark brown sorrow. From the evelids of the squawlet Crystal tears were damply oozing Washing streaks as down they tri Through the paint upon her features. The German Palatinate. TWO RIVERS, Wash., Aug. 28 .- (To the Editor.)-In a recent article by Ambassador Gerard, he mentions the Palatinate. Where is this province located? Is it German or is it more nearly kin to Swiss? I believe the Pennsylvania Germans are mostly descended from immigrants from the Palatinate.

I would like any information regarding this province that is at hand. I am not situated so that I can consult a

The German Palatinate was formerly an electorate consisting of the Lower or Rhine Palatinate and the Upper Palatinate, whose capital was Amberg. About 1629 these were separated, the electoral vote passing to Bavaria, while a new electorate was created later for remainder of the Lower Palatinate was divided among Baden, Hesse, Prussia, etc. The Bavarian portions now form the governmental districts of Palatinate and Upper Palatinate. In the 16th century Calvinism was made the established religion in the Palatinate and it became a refuge for French Protestants. Succession of the Neuberg line, whose members were of the Catholic faith, to the lower electorate in 1685 led to the emigration of Protestant inhabitants numbering about 13,000 in 1709-10. years, and will thank you for the publication of the following: Christ suffered crucifixion only once, while the dog idolaters of Portland crucify their unfortunate neighbors almost every hour of the day and night. Personally, I have suffered crucifixion ten thousand times at the hands of dog idolaters, so often, in fact, that I question whether the entire tribe of dog worshipers are possessed of a heart, conscience or any of the attributes we associate with a rational human being. No matter how tactfully you appeal to one of their tribe, looking for some relief from the incessant yap, yap, yap, of the mongrel cur that is a neighbor-hood nuisance, no relief is affordedonly black looks and abuse. of even a semi-civilized man was never intended to withstand such raucus, earspliting and brain-racking noise.
