APPLE BOXES SUPPLIED

OREGON ORGANIZATION AIDED BY ORDERING EARLY.

Shortage in Eastern Oregon Said to Be Million Boxes Less Than Before Growers Acted.

That the apple-box shortage in Eastern Oregon has been lessened by 1,000,000 boxes in the last few weeks, through the application of the "order early" system devised at recent conservation meetings in Portland, is the report of J. B. Knapp, chairman of the special committee, who was in Portland Thursday.

By bulking the orders at mills which manufacture the boxes, production is speeded up and the shortage reduced.

The California orange and lemon crop, now ripening, is confronted by a shortage of boxes. In response to requests for assistance from that state, Mr. Knapp replied that the needs of Oregon must first be supplied.

Mr. Knapp left for Walla Walla and North Yakima, Wash., where he will undertake to organize the box situation on the same plan as that which has shown success in Oregon.
