Germany Able to Spare Planes for Forays While Contending for Air Supremacy Along Battle Lines in Flanders.

LONDON, Oct. 2 .- There has been big influx of people into towns outide of London since the recent moor light air raids and at many places diffi gulty at first was found in providing ecommodations for the visitors. Dur ing the first few nights many of the poorer people who emigrated from the metropolis slept in the open, but since then the authorities have made arrangements for sleeping quarters for them in public buildings.

Most of the people are in London after daybreak each morning. In last night's air raid, 10 persons were killed and 38 injured.

Londoners who, while heeding official warnings to take cover, show while beeding no signs of panic or even of great excitement during the raids. The people have accommodated themselves to the enforced alterations in their method of entorced afterations in their method of living and are hurrying home at the close of their working hours to take an early dinner and prepare to spend the evening in the security of their homes or in the greater safety afforded by the protection of the subways, the base-ments and other underground refuges. Hotels Places of Refuge.

Many carry wraps and food and make themselves as comfortable as the cir-cumstances will permit in the corridors of the big hotels, which are becoming a favorite place for the residents, the walls affording protection against fly

The London press is becoming strongly critical of the government. Semiofficial explanations that the British cannot spare machines for reciprocal raids are questioned by the Northeliffe newspapers, the Daily Express and others, which point out that the Germans are able to spare aircraft for raiding England and have enough along the battle lines to give the British a continuing fight for supremacy in the air.

More Attacks Expected.

It is argued that the Germans evidently have outbuilt the British in aircraft and may be expected to continue building on an increasing scale and improve the types of their machines while the British are trying to catch up with them. Predictions that this would be the case were made months ago by some of the newspapers and by experts like Montagu of Beaulieu. Lord Montagu also predicts that the Germans will soon pass the experimental stage of operations and be able to attack London in all kinds of weather, nearly every night.

Relief and Ration Parties Have Difficulty in Reaching Front. Captives Found Dazed by Ferocity of Attack.

By the Associated Press. BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 2.—Th badly punished German troops east of Ypres today were largely resting on their arms after reverses suffered yesterday when they attempted in a series of fierce counter-attacks to drive the British back. Possibly the designation "resting" is a misnomer, for the enemy was sitting under a terrific bombardment from hundreds of big guns, which were deluging his back and forward acreas with high explosives and turn-ing his fastnesses into twisted masses of debris, which formed the graves of the defenders.

Any of the nerve-racked, half-stunned German prisoners who have lived through these bombardments can tell of the tragedy now being enacted along the German front in this section of Belgium. Thanks to the German counter-attacks, there has been hardly a moment's cessation of the intense ar-tillery work of the British since last Wednesday, when Field Marshal Haig's troops executed their latest offensive.

The jury was instructed to award to the plaintiff such a sum as would fairly and hon-estly compensate him for injury to his character and reputation. He told the jurors to consider the actual damages and to consider as well the question of malice, and advised that they could bring in a verdict for punitive or ex-emplary damages, in addition to actual damages.

In the opening statement, C. D. Latourette, one of Mr. Tooze's attorneys, declared that his client did not care for money, but wanted a vindication. He said the defendants had "bit the hand that fed them." Senator Dimick, representing the defendants, ridiculed the idea of the plaintiff that ridiculed the idea of the plaintiff that his trouble was traceable to Bulletin No. 1.
