54 OF DISTRICT ENLIST

MANY REGIMENTS OF DIVISION NO. 10 VOLUNTEER.

Members of Board Declare They Believe Record Unequaled—Names of Men Given.

Since June 5, registration day for all men subject to military service, 54 men have volunteered from Local Division No. 10, in this city, passed the physical tests and are now serving in some branch of the country's service. The district from which these young men came is in the northwestern part of the city, including St. Johns and contiguous districts.

- The members of the board in this division—Dr. W. J. Gilstrap, chairman; J. B. Easter, secretary, and E. R. Williston—say they are proud of this record and feel satisfied it has not been equaled by any other district of like size anywhere.
- The names of the 54 young men who voluntarily gave their services are:

sick list. The lieutenant's eyes were injured by a shell at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He is, however, getting along nicely.

When the boys arrived in camp the spot picked for the tents was a real stump patch. In less than two days it looked like a real city park.

Who said that one was underfed in the Army? It is not the small quantity of food which is bothering the boys but instead it is to find enough dishes to hold all the extras. Here is a sample menu: Steak, fried potatoes, peas, bread and jam, prunes or apricots, tapioca pudding and coffee. It is a case of help yourself to the milk and sugar. For breakfast: Hotcakes and syrup, rolled oats mush with milk and sugar, coffee, bread and some kind of fruit, or instead of hotcakes bacon and fried potatoes.

PENDLETON WOMAN DIES

Mrs. Ernestine Geisler, Native of Germany, Succumbs to Pneumonia.

PENDLETON, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Dr. William R. Scott, for many years a practicing physician of Athena, Or., was found dead in the bathroom at the Claud Reeder ranch, four miles east of Helix, today. There was a gunshot wound through his head.

suicide, although it is not improbable that an accidental explosion of the gun resulted in his death.

Dr. Scott was 36 years old, and married. He rented the ranch a few weeks ago. His wife is at Athena.

Miss Elliott. She wears 31 gowns in the picture.

The star is supported by a strong cast, including Charles Dalton, who has been in many big stage productions; including "The Servant in the House," "The Resurrection" and "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and Henry Clive, who plays the part of the ruined husband.

Scenario Writing Advances.
Frances Marion, who adapted "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" to the screen for Mary Pickford, attributes her success to her close observation of film audiences.

In speaking of the scenario of today, Miss Marion said: "The modern scenario is vastly different from those of five, three or even a year ago. In fact, it has changed considerably within the last six months, and we no longer have to do our pictures in words of one syllable for an audience which has developed so fast that we can write more and more intricate stories and picture audiences can follow them. Many beginners attempt to write stories for the modern picture which are on a par with those of a year ago, which accounts for their failure. I attend motion picture theaters regularly and study audiences, hear their remarks, and then endeavor to eliminate such things as they dislike."

Screen Gossip.
In its answer to Anita Stewart's appeal to the courts for permission to break her contract with Vitaphone, the attorney of that producing concern asserts that the dainty Anita is afflicted with artistic temperament and an exaggerated idea of her own importance. She is charged with quarreling with her directors, demanding their dismissal for the most petty causes and even quarreling with her brother-in-law, Ralph Ince. She even refused to work in a new $25,000 studio built especially for her, according to the legal luminary.

To prepare for the making of its new series of Pathe plays, starring such well-known stars as Mrs. Vernon Castle, Bryant Washburn, Essie Love, Fannie Ward, Frank Keenan and Pearl White, Pathe has secured three new studios, one of which is in Los Angeles.

"A Bedroom Blunder," the first of the Mack Sennett-Paramount comedies, which is said to be one of the funniest pictures Sennett ever turned out, will be shown at the Liberty Theater tomorrow.

Louise Glaum doesn't like the word "vampire" and she says she loathes the kind of women she has been called upon to portray in some of her pictures. Louise, who is just the opposite type of girl from the creatures of her pictures, is ambitious to essay on the screen roles similar to those played by Bernhardt, Duse and Modjeska. Miss Glaum started in pictures as an ingenue.

George M. Cohan, the Arterart star, who is making a cross-country trip, gave out a remarkable interview recently. "I am extremely busy these days, doing lots of things," says the Yankee Doodle boy. "After finishing my Arterart picture, 'Seven Keys to Baldpate,' I became a manufacturer. I am manufacturing dolls' eyes. You know since the war with Germany we are shut off from this supply, so you can see how busy I am. Then again, I am experimenting with a bee and a lightning bug. Yes, I'm trying to cross a bee with a lightning bug, so the bee can work at night. At present I am going straight through to Honolulu to buy a ukulele."

William V. Mong, who has been directing pictures for the Universal and Triangle companies, has returned to the business of acting. He has been cast for an important part in Raymond Weil's new picture, "Fanatics."

THREE OF 138 REJECTED

Lewis County 27 Men Short of Quota for Army.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Of the 138 draft registrants sent from Lewis County to Camp Lewis only three have been rejected, according to Dr. E. L. Kniskern, a member of the county exemption board. One of the men rejected had defective eyesight and another lost two fingers after he had been certified for service. Dr. Kniskern states that several registrants who complained of poor eyesight were sent from this county under the belief that they were shamming, and the fact that only one was rejected proves the board was right in its suspicion.

The county is still 27 men short of its quota of 132. These will be selected from the 326 men to be examined by the board here next week.

Troop C, Oregon Cavalry, News Notes.

WITH TROOP C, OREGON CAVALRY, Camp Greene, N. C., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Sergeant George D. Riley has been promoted to top sergeant to succeed Sergeant Neal J. Hawkins, resigned. Sergeant Hawkins is to be first duty sergeant. Sergeant Riley is well liked by all the troopmen. George is a brother of Lieutenant Riley, of Troop B, Oregon Cavalry.

An hour each day has been set aside by the camp commander to be devoted toward athletics. This has met with the approval of all the boys, and a football, basketball and track team have been organized.

Fighting Sam, Troop C's mascot, claims the championship of the squadron. It is not unrequited here in camp to have a good dog fight.

Sergeant Cronquist has the boxing championship of the squadron. Considerable interest is shown in the coming boxing contest between Bugler Orendorf, Troop A, and Sergeant Arthur Cronquist, Troop C, for the championship of the squadron.

A boxing pavilion is being built for the squadron.

Coel Marten has joined his troop again. Marten was operated on for appendicitis at Vancouver, Wash., and left behind by his troop.

L. C. Nero has an eye for business. Seeing the need of a cleaning and pressing establishment in camp, he has hired a couple of negroes and spends his evenings attending to the business.
