

RAILING OF CHURCH RECALLS OLD DAYS

James Cumming, Foreman on Taylor-Street Edifice, is Hale and Hearty at 85.

WORK HOURS NOT AGITATED

Condition of Structure Erected 50 Years Ago Pleases Craftsman Who Says Heaviest Timbers Raised by Man Power.

There was no agitation for the eight-hour day, no walking delegates, and everybody worked, including father, when James Cumming, foreman, took charge of the raising of the basement of Third and Taylor streets in March, 1867, preparatory to building Taylor-Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

Yesterday afternoon in his home at 894 Couch street, James Cumming, retired citizen, 84 years old and still full of vim, related some of the circumstances from memory, but he was unable to clear up what has become of the wrecking of the old edifice—the location of the cornerstone.

"I think it will be found somewhere in the corner of the lot," said Mr. Cumming, "but I don't just recall the exact location. I remember when it was laid, but not as to details of it, my mind is a little uncertain."

When Governor Gibbs was there and gave a talk and that it was on a Thursday in June of 1867; another I remember there was a Dr. Watkins. The whole town, of course, turned out.

Mr. Cumming, Dr. Thomas Mann, who was a bricklayer; Donald Mackay, plasterer, later head of the North Pacific Lumber Company, and a laborer, whose name is not recalled, are the only men who worked "putting up" the church building which is known to be alive.

"I was down by the church the other day," said Mr. Cumming, "and you know, when I saw the church, it made me tear down my work, it kind of made me think of the days gone by and of certain things that happened when we built the church in those ago."

For instance, I put on most of the roof, and they were tearing off the shingles when I was there. The mechanical force, consisting of all the way from one to five men, depending upon the circumstances, was paid off Saturday night; likewise, material bills were promptly liquidated when due.

Home-Made Products Used. Nearly all of the lumber was furnished from mill run by Hayden & Smith, now deceased, which was located on the east side of Front street, between Second and Third streets.

The brick was furnished from a factory conducted by a Mr. Harkness, located in the corner of Broadway and Park street.

There was no contract for building the church. It was a big undertaking in those days, and Mr. Cumming laughed when he recounted that the Methodists had to employ him, a Presbyterian, to supervise the work.

Mr. Mann also was a Presbyterian, while Mr. Mackay was of the Methodist denomination.

Why Man Power Used. "We had quite a job getting the heavier timbers and material into position," said Mr. Cumming, "as we had only an old-fashioned derrick, operated by strong-arm men, which is not a good thing, but we did it and got the building together in good shape, so that it lasted quite a while, and they tell me they found only one crack in it when they went to look over it before starting the work of raising it."

Mr. Cumming came to Portland in 1862 from Nashville, Tenn., and worked at his trade, that of a carpenter. Among the buildings of which he was foreman or carpenter were the Elbow Scott Academy and the building at Third and Alder streets, first built for the Masses and later used as their hall, but long occupied by the J. K. Gill Company.

TRY THIS JAPANESE CORN REMEDY

Costs Little but Does the Work Quickly. No Pain, No Soreness.

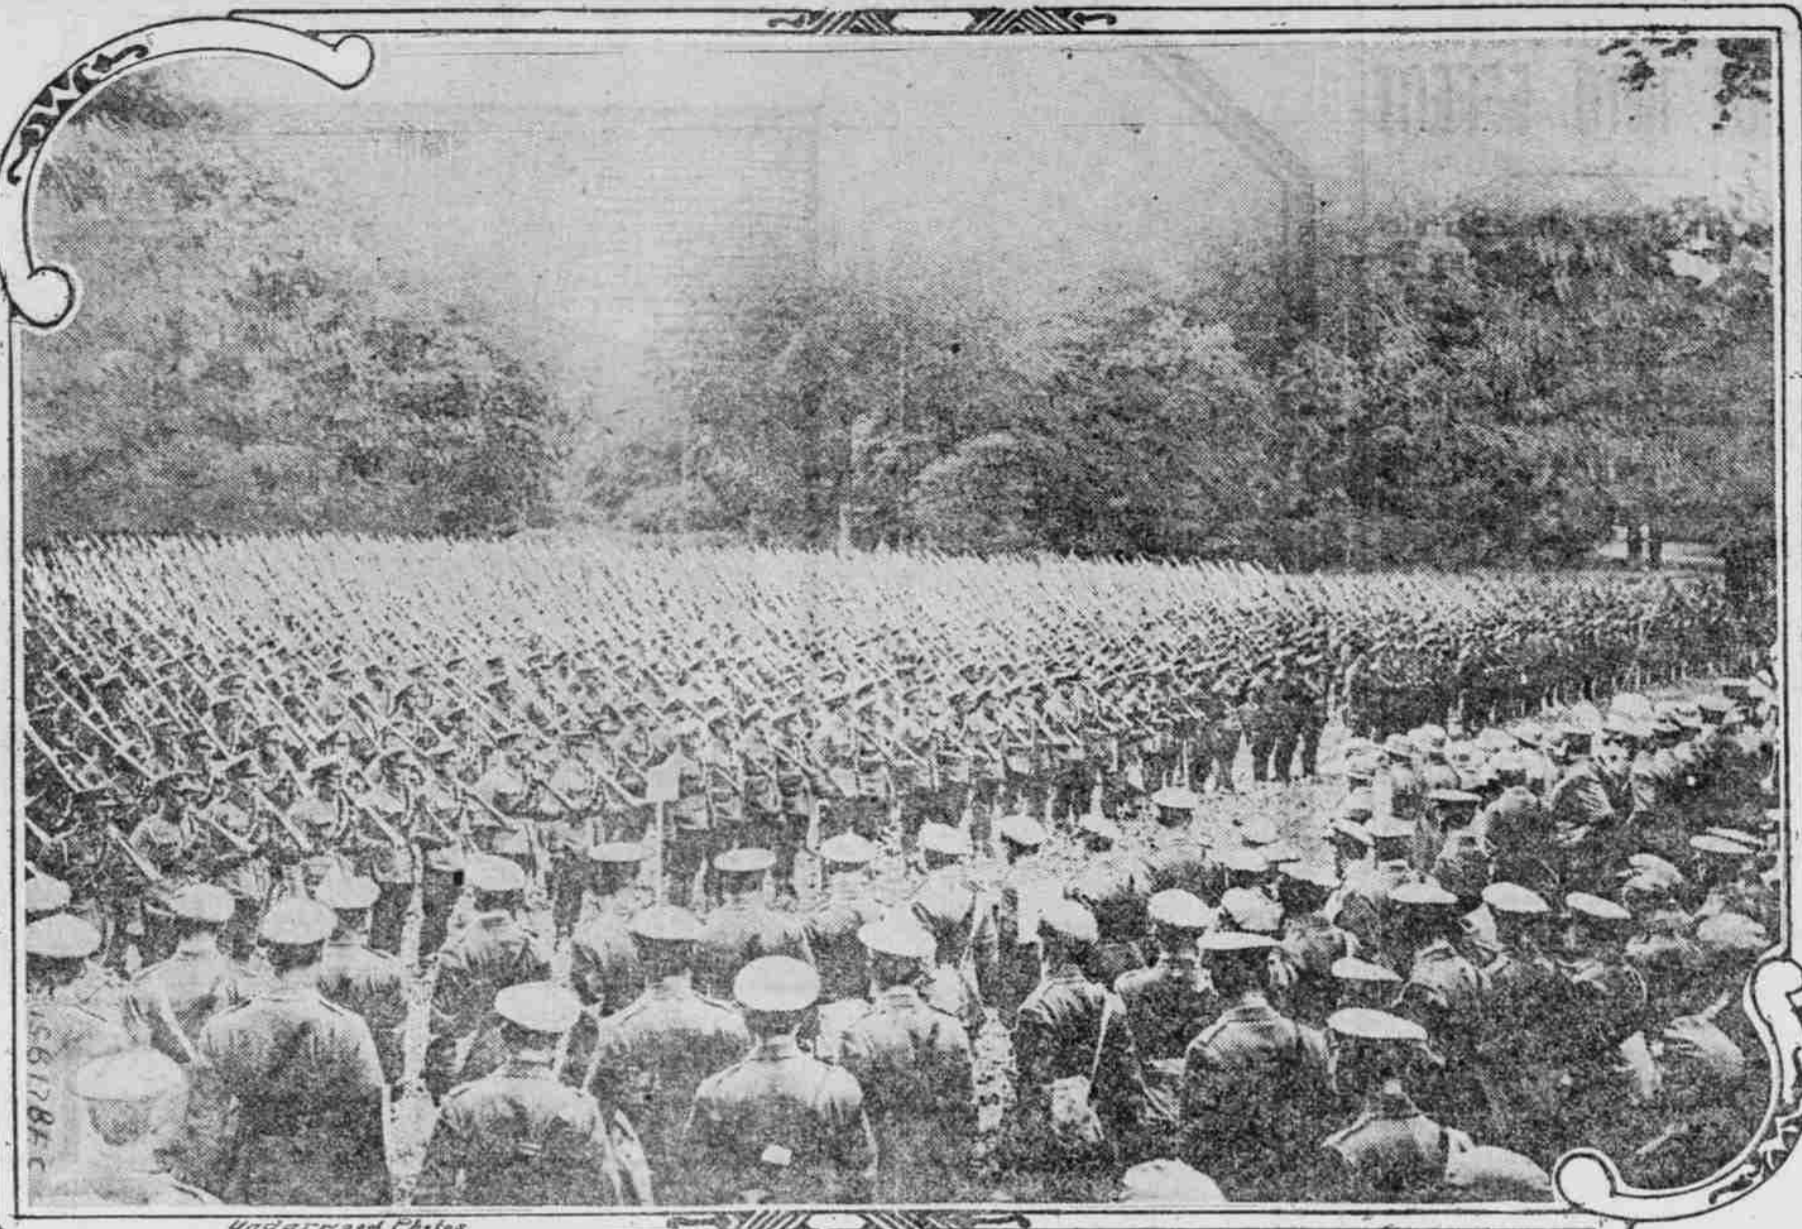

Corn sufferers gather round; get right up close and listen. Here's good news for you. The real "Corn Killer" is here at last. Ice-Mint, the New Discovery, made from a Japanese product, cures corns surely and quickly and all foot misery. Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between toes. It also loosens callouses, just shrivel up and lift off easy. It's wonderful. There is no pain or soreness when applying ice-mint or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Think of it: just a touch or two of that cooling, soothing ice-mint and real foot joy is yours. If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will take the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and bleeding places.

Ice-Mint prevents foot-odors and keeps them sweet and comfortable. It is the real Japanese secret for fine, healthy little feet.

Every person who has suffered with stubborn corns or tender feet can appreciate the cooling, soothing comfort that it brings; especially women whom fashion has decreed should wear high-heeled shoes and men who have to stand all day on their feet. Try it. Get a few cents' worth of Ice-Mint from your Druggist today and give your poor, aching, suffering feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better—Adv.

FIELD OF STEEL WHERE BRITISH HELD GREAT SERVICE AT START OF FOURTH YEAR OF WAR.

GREAT FORCE AWAITING COMMAND, "ORDER ARMS."

GOODBYE IS SAID

Rev. G. K. Berry Preaches Farewell Sermon.

"SAFE COURSE" IS TOPIC

Pastor Will Leave for Southern California This Week, Where He Has Accepted Call in New Field.

Rev. G. K. Berry yesterday preached his farewell sermon to his congregation at Kern Park Christian Church. This week Mr. Berry will leave for Southern California, where he recently was called.

As a parting message, Mr. Berry spoke of the "Safe Course" in life, the straight and narrow way and urged his friends not to be diverted therefrom. He offered advice and suggestions for right and happy living.

"Infidelity is unwise," said Mr. Berry. "If there is no life beyond the grave, living according to the teaching of Christ will make you better and happier in this world. If there is another life, only obedience to Christ will guarantee it. Until infidelity can promise something as good as Christianity it will be a failure."

"To enter in at the straight gate you should be very certain that you obey every command of Christ. You should not risk any substitution of man's ideas for what God has told you to do. Your faith in Christ should be strong, your repentance thorough and your turning from sin complete."

Rev. Mr. Berry said that all should rejoice that every condition of salvation mentioned in the New Testament can be complied with in such a way that all will admit that it is safe. He concluded his sermon by saying that if all those who profess to follow

PATRIOTISM IS PREACHED

Clergymen in Practically all Pulpits in Oregon Will Urge Hearers to Heed Nation's Call in Its Hour of Need.

At the outset of "Liberty week," 100 claimed by Governor Withycombe, sermons in Portland churches yesterday were largely directed to the patriotic needs of the times, and to the necessity for supporting the second liberty loan.

The premier announcement of the day was made at St. Mary's Cathedral at the morning service, when Father Edwin V. O'Hara told his congregation of the decision to purchase $5000 worth of liberty bonds.

Private Subscriptions Urged. In setting the congregation's quota toward the liberty loan issue, Father O'Hara announced that committees would be appointed to solicit subscriptions from members, and that nothing should be left undone to insure the raising of the complete fund within the next 10 days.

The $5000 purchase of liberty bonds will constitute a portion of an endowment fund for educational purposes, said Father O'Hara yesterday. At a conference with the parish advisory board several days ago the decision to make the purchase was reached. It is distinctly a parish investment on the part of the congregation as a whole, and individual members are expected to purchase bonds on their own account.

At the First Presbyterian Church, at the morning services, Dr. John H. Boyd suggested the idea of sacrifice and referred in a general way to the duty of willing financial support of the Government in the present war. Dr. Boyd is a member of the ministers' committee which arranged for the liberty loan message to be given through the media of Oregon churches.

Duty to God Asserted. "No man, and least of all the Christian man, may say of his property, 'This is my own and I will do with it as I please,'" declared Rev. Harold H. Griffith, in his sermon at the First Christian Church. "No man owns his property, but he owes it. He owes it to his family. He owes it to his community. He owes it to his Nation. He owes it to his God."

The Gospel of Lincoln, and "Christ or the Kaiser" were the themes of sermons dealing with patriotic duty, delivered by Dr. W. B. Hinson at morning and evening services at the East Side Baptist Church.

Rev. Edward Constant, pastor of Highland Congregational Church, delivered a sermon on the theme, "Showing Real Love for the Nation."

They explained the bonds and told the citizens it was their duty to help the United States in fighting the greatest battle in history and the benefit of all Oregonians. He urged that those who cannot help by fighting.
