Sunset.

"A PERFECT SCREAM" is excellent phraseology for "Fools for Luck," the Sunset Theater photoplay headliner, in which the Portland public is given its first glimpse of Taylor Holmes.

"Fools for Luck" contains the same fine brand of comedy contained in Kenneth Harris' Saturday Evening Post story, "Tallmans," from which the photoplay was taken.

The picture takes a turn for the serious, and Sunstar discovers that, with his horse and all, his job, his girl and his money take to themselves wings because of frequent poker and drinking.

"Arms and the Girl," Billie Burke's second Paramount photoplay, bears a title with a martial air, but there's not a battle in the picture.

The star is seen as Ruth Sherwood, an American girl who misses her train when she steps off to send a telegram to her scapegrace fiancé, and is forced to take refuge in a small town Belgian hotel on the eve of the German invasion.

"A Bedroom Blunder," the first of the Mack-Sennett Paramount comedies, establishes a high mark for the producers to shoot at.

"Fighting Odds," the story, acting and presence of Billie Burke in her repertoire of cute little Burke tricks, insure for the picture much popularity.

The story in brief concerns the social aspirations of Velma Gay and the burglarizing exploits of Joseph Court. Known as "Possum," Velma is engaged to one man, a Westerner, and interested in another. The Westerner knows it.

"Possum" believes that much jewelry is to be had in the house where Velma is stopping. The Westerner finds the crook and girl together in the dead of night, believes them to be lovers, and forces a marriage. The Court declines to reform, and does so despite the persecution of Buck Lindsay, the man who was responsible for the gun-enforced ceremony.

Herbert Rawlinson and Alice Lake carry off the acting honors in a picture certain to enjoy much popularity throughout the country.

COUNTY FAIR CLOSES

Races at Klickitat Attract Record Attendance.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS PLEASE

Goldendale Pupils Win From Lyle in Fruit and Vegetable Canning Contests Held on Saturday.

GOLDENDALE, Wash., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Friday's patriotic day at the Klickitat County Fair. It also marked the closing of the last fair to be given under the auspices of the Klickitat County Fair Association.

The attendance Saturday was nearly equal to the record crowd Thursday. The other special events included a double card of racing and novelty events was put on by the management.

Dr. H. H. Hartley, president of the fair association, made an address, in which he thanked the fair patrons for loyal support given the association and hoped the people of Klickitat would continue to support the fair under the county management.

Much interest this year centered in the school exhibit and Miss Josephine Arndt, of Fullman College, first assistant of boys' and girls' club work throughout the state, said the Klickitat school exhibit was the best she had seen at any county fair in the state of Washington.

The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the crowd stood up and gave three cheers for the Stars and Stripes. The afternoon programme was opened by a parade of pure-blood stock, and other special events included a bucking contest, novelty aquaw races, novelty automobile races and a wild horse race.

The crisp October air seemed to put extra vigor in the race horses, and a thrilling card of races, with close finishes and fast time, was pulled off without an accident.

Current events had many interesting topics of the day, including glimpses of the baseball players engaging in the world's series.

"The Man From Painted Post," the wild and woolly Western comedy drama of cattle-rustling in Wyoming during the days of the "Hole-in-the-Wall" gang, a picture which presents Douglas Fairbanks, most popular of stars, in a role productive of grins and thrills, entered upon the last lap of its screen-entertainment.

This Arcturaf picture is meeting with the same sort of reception that the fourth picture which presented Douglas Fairbanks offerings, which means crowded houses promising to establish new attendance records.

In this picture Fairbanks discloses many new cowboy tricks learned from champions of a recent rodeo meet, who appear with him in the photoplay. The story of Wyoming cattle-rustling days presents the versatile Douglas in many thrilling situations, offering typical Fairbanks surprises.

Among other things Douglas is called upon to shoot two holes through the legs of the man, but he refuses peacefully upon the latter's head, some hundred yards away. When the usual substitute was suggested, Fairbanks refused to listen to it, thereby retaining his distinction of never "faking a stunt" before the camera.
