Total of $5200 Subscribed at Rate of $170 a Minute—Talks Arouse Much Interest.

Fifty-two hundred dollars in liberty bonds was subscribed by members of the Public Works Department at a meeting called last night by Commissioner A. L. Barbur. Commissioner Barbur said that the total for the department would be more than $7000. The money was subscribed at the rate of $170 a minute. It was resolved that every member of the department should buy at least one $50 bond. Seventy-five participated in the voting.

The great majority of those subscribing are taking advantage of the installment plan arranged by the city, by which the city will purchase the bonds outright and resell them on the installment plan without interest charges. C. H. Davis, assistant manager of the Liberty Loan, Roger B. Sinnott and Commissioner Barbur addressed the meeting. Mr. Sinnott pointed out that the first members of the department to subscribe were all women employees. Following are the subscribers: $50 each, M. H. Eric, A. G. Johnson, R. C. Huntling, I. G. WEST THOUGHT WOOLLY

ADVERTISING CIRCULAR OFFENSIVE TO JOHN C. ABBOTT.

Railroad Man Writes Eastern Concern Censuring It for Inaccuracies of District.

It is high time, believes John C. Abbott, of the advertising department of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway, that the efforts East quite misrepresenting the West as wild and woolly and out of date. Yesterday he picked up a prospectus of the Encyclopedia Britannica and found a picture of an old Concord stagecoach, with the information appended thereto that this vehicle is "still used in the West." "If the editor of that book can find a Concord coach in active service today in the West I'll eat a ten-dollar note," declared Mr. Abbott. "Whereupon he sat down and wrote a letter to the editor-in-chief in New York, and he minced no words in calling attention to the error. "George Geddes was the first witness called at the afternoon session, and he had been dismissed from the Northwest Steel company plant because he was a union man. He was being forced to work there on an unfair work, which was done, he said, and with men not members of any union.

At times during certain stages of the sessions Mr. Macy very strongly indicated that, in case of the establishment of an adjuster by the government, that power would be forthcoming to back any action he might take regarding wages and working conditions. It would be his advantage of any plant, he said, under such conditions, to work in harmony with the Government. "Macy Statement Significant. "Please keep in mind that the Government will become more and more a factor in a material way as the war progresses," was a most significant statement by Mr. Macy. "That was construed as meaning that his headquarters is going to be in the amount of supplies and ships and that, if necessary, it will supply whatever power is necessary to get them through. "Mr. Macy also asked Mr. Coolidge, who had been dismissed from the Northwest Steel company plant because he was a union man, why he was being forced to work there on an unfair work, which was done, he said, and with men not members of any union. "Discrimination Is Charged. "But war makes a difference," suggested Mr. Macy. "Perhaps many of us are doing things now that we dislike, but we're at war." "Well, we (meaning the union men) are between the devil and the deep, blue sea." (Laughter.) "M. Hauman said he had likewise been discharged from the same plant for the same reason. He objected to having to work Saturday afternoon, among other things. "If the Government asked you to work Saturday afternoon, would you say 'no'?" asked Mr. Berres. "I'd work," was the reply. "Worker Professes Loyalty. "It developed that Hauman is an Austrian, not a naturalized, although he has lived in this country 13 years. "Do you feel that the unions are co-partners with the Government?" asked Mr. Berres. "Undoubtedly," replied Hauman. "Especially so since we adopted a resolution that we would willingly build ships for the Government at cost if they would take over the plants." "Have any of your associates bought liberty bonds?" asked Mr. Berres. "Lots of them," Hauman replied. "T. C. Clark was next witness, and, in addition to making serious charges against the Chamber of Commerce, testified that he was promoted to the position of foreman when his superintendent at the Northwest Steel Company discovered that he had dropped his union button, and was discharged immediately upon its reappearance on his coat. "They won't stand for any union business at the Northwest," said Clark. "Mr. Cornfoot's Attitude Praised. "Clark went from the Northwest plant to the Albina Engine & Machine Works, which Mr. Cornfoot is president. Mr. Cornfoot is the employer who submitted a proposal to the Metal Trades Council, Thursday night, in mass meeting which was very interesting, and granted practically everything they asked, except the out and out 'closed' shop.

union men are willing to negotiate. The acceptance of this and recognition of their respective organizations are the imperative demands of the men, it was pointed out. "A feature of the morning session, one which was injected into the proceedings by Mr. Bottomley, related to what he charged was a central employment office by the Employers' Association, with a paid official in charge. It was charged by Mr. Bottomley and supported by others, that in this office union men have been compelled times without number to present their life history and that it is regarded by the men as a place connected for the express purpose of "breaking" unions and union men. "Upon being questioned by Mr. Kerr, however, Mr. Bottomley said he had no knowledge that any of the steel shipbuilding companies are members of the Employers' Association. "The Northwest Steel Company was the center around which much of the morning's session revolved, the union men attacking that firm for its outspoken attitude in favor of open-shop conditions and for its so-called agreement with its men, in which, it was shown, the shop committee, members of which were supposed to settle any grievances of the men, made it necessary for each member of such committee to be approved first by the president of the company. "Many men of strong union conviction, it was testified, had been discriminated from the Northwest Steel plant on one pretext or another and, taken by and large, conditions there are, and have been, very unsatisfactory. "When Mr. Berres asked Fred L. Bourne, business agent for the electricians' union, whether the men here, meaning the members of unions, are apparently in readiness to assist the Government at this time, Mr. Bourne replied by filing certain letters, showing offers of the men of his own organization to do anything asked of them, and said that out of the membership of 240, 22 had joined the service. He declared that he himself had tried to get into some branch, but was rejected the right because of physical defects, principally eyesight, and said that two of his brothers have been killed in France, being with the British army. "Recognition Held Vital. "Arthur Burns, speaking for the Iron Molders' Union, testified to alleged unfair conditions in various shops, in-

"Chairman Macy made it clear at the meeting that the adjustment board could hardly be expected to investigate the strike of the ironmolders who are out in sympathy with the ironmolders of the various shipyards which have foundries as auxiliaries to their plants. "President Burns, of the Ironmolders' Union, asked the board to give some attention to the ironmolders as an organization. He explained that ironmolders' patternmakers and allied crafts of independent foundries doing shipyard work were out in sympathy with the molders on strike at the plants, but Mr. Macy said he understood when the board was appointed that it was to confine its work, for the present, at least, to the shipyard troubles.
