

WORLD OF TRADE CHANGED BY WAR

Germany's Ruined Commerce Will Meet With Difficulties in Path of Restoration.

AMERICA AND ALLIES WAKE

Commercial Frightfulness, Like Its Military Namesake, Will Have Passed Away, Says Mr. Redfield at Southern Congress.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—What a different world of trade this will be after the war was pictured to the Southern Commercial Congress here tonight by Secretary Redfield. In an address telling of the cutting of the threads of Germany's foreign commerce by her own act and of the awakening of America and her allies to the danger of having the industries dependent upon foreign and possibly unfriendly sources of supply.

"When peace shall come and her merchants atke up the task of restoring Germany's ruined commerce, they will find that it is a strange world which they seek to re-enter," said the Secretary.

"There will be difficulties in the path of future peaceful penetration of which they seem not to dream. Commercial frightfulness, like its military namesake, will have passed away.

German Control Ended.
"It will hardly be said again in any Secretary of Commerce of the United States that the German dyestuff veyein will not permit the establishment of an American dyestuff industry. The monopolies on which German foreign commerce in large part seem to rest secure have passed away. Our friends beyond the sea and we ourselves have learned the danger of having our industries wholly dependent on foreign sources of supply which may become unfriendly."

Things Seen Differently.
"It must be renewed under circumstances of peculiar hardship. It would be a strange world upon which the German merchant will look when war shall close, so let me add it will be in a large measure a strange world which the American merchant will look out at at the same time. When embargoes are over and trading with the enemy acts shall have ceased to trouble, we also shall see things differently, upon separation, but the reverse. We have gained and are gaining a better understanding of the world we live in.

Scales of provincialism have fallen from our eyes.

"If we were those who look upon the peaceful contents of commerce as economic war, we should hardly feel we could speak with freedom in the presence of coming days when normal commercial intercourse throughout the world shall replace present restricted conditions, for we recognize as a matter of course as an opportunity and a duty they are not slow to see, and upon which they rightly act, that the nations associated with us in this war are preparing for their proper share of the world's business when the war shall close.

"Believing as we do, however, that commerce is not war, but mutual intercourse to mutual gain, we look without fear and with strong approval on

WHITE SALMON LOSES ONE OF OLDEST AND LEADING CITIZENS.

Teunis Weyers.

WHITE SALMON, Wash., Oct. 16.—(Special).—One of White Salmon's oldest and leading citizens, Teunis Weyers, died at a Portland hospital Sunday. Born in Zevenaar, Gelderland, Holland, in 1842, he came to this country, locating in Kansas in 1888, and came to White Salmon in 1891. He was married to Maria Heyting in Holland and nine children were born, of whom five survive, with his widow. The sons, John G., Teunis, Jr., Peter A., and daughter, Mrs. R. M. Kreps, all reside in or close to White Salmon. The other daughter, Mrs. Theodore P. Shepler, resides in Des, Or. Mr. Weyers was a member of the Dutch Reformed Church of Holland and was affiliated with the Masons in the old country.

any effort of our friends to renew commercial and industrial activities in the happier days that are coming."

DIVORCE CASE RECALLED

Conductor Would Prove ex-Wife Not Proper Person to Keep Son.

In support of his application to reopen the decree by which Sadie R. Cunningham divorced him in July, 1915, and obtained control of their son, William P. Cunningham, conductor for the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway, yesterday filed affidavits in the Circuit Court by which he seeks to prove Mrs. Cunningham is not a proper person to have the custody of the son.

Incorporated in his affidavit, Mr. Cunningham supplies copies of ardent love letters alleged to have been re-

The Smartly Dressed Young Man

YOU'LL be delighted with these wonderfully smart young men's clothes that I am showing.

Here are Autumn suits and overcoats, ready-to-put-on, shown in select weavings and in plain effects of brown, blue, green and gray.

These clothes are developed in accord with the correct French and English design, but bold and typically American.

Both double-breasted and single-breasted garments are shown, bearing all those niceties of design and workmanship which young men appreciate so much ceived by his ex-wife from an admirer whose name is not given. The author of the missives evidently is an athlete of some note, for in one of his passionate letters, which were written as early as 6:15 A. M., he tells of traveling in company with the captain of the University of Chicago football eleven, center on last year's all-American football team.

Mr. Cunningham asks to have the divorce decree reopened, that the custody of the son, Gordon, be awarded to himself and that he be relieved of contributing further to his former wife for the support and maintenance of the boy.

John Day Stockman Buried.
BAKER, Or., Oct. 16.—(Special).—The funeral of Edwin Buckley, 77, prominent John Day stockman, was held in the Catholic Church at Canyon City yesterday. The services were conducted by Father Kelly. Mr. Buckley was a resident of the Silvies Valley for 23 years before moving to John Day. He was ill only a short time from pneumonia.

DRY FORCES NAME HEAD

Edwin Rawdin, of Michigan, Elected by Anti-Saloon League.

At a meeting of the executive committee and trustees of the Oregon Anti-Saloon League, at which Rev. E. J. Moore, assistant general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, was present, Edwin Rawdin, formerly attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of Michigan, located at Lansing, was nominated and unanimously elected superintendent of the Oregon Anti-Saloon League to take the place of R. P. Hutton, who resigned to take the superintendency of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Rawdin comes to Portland with high recommendations.

His services have been reported exceedingly valuable to the Michigan League and no cases in which he has appeared in the Supreme Court of Michigan in behalf of the temperance forces have been decided adversely to his contentions. Mr. Rawdin is expected in Portland to take up his duties early in the month of November.

Ridgefield Bank Files Suit.

RIDGEFIELD, Wash., Oct. 16.—(Special).—The Ridgefield State Bank filed suit last week against Herman L. Groat and Mrs. Groat to collect a promissory note issued August 13, 1917. It is alleged that since the note was signed another suit has been filed which causes the note to be immediately due.

CHAPTER LIX.

"Respectability," as I have told you, is the great goal of the education of an "ethical" dentist—or, for that matter, any kind of professional practitioner. "Respectability" sets him apart from those who are not "respectable." I suppose that's the same as saying "disrespectable." It's the distinction which makes him different from the ordinary run of humanity, makes him seek a higher level than that in which his fellow men travel, makes him consider himself better than the rest of us.

take his word as law. It makes the collection of large fees from patients almost a sacred religious rite. That's why, early in a young man's dental curriculum, he is taught the vital importance of doing things differently from other folks. In other lines of endeavor you may advertise your business. But it is not respectable for a dentist to advertise his. This, you may have noticed, separates the dentist even from the modern church, which doesn't hesitate to advertise to attract people. You may believe that it is only fair to be open and aboveboard with the people with whom you do business. But the dentist can't do that and be respectable, according to the immovable laws which govern his own highly specialized line of conduct. He must move around with mystery, Latin and sage wagging of the forehead and must act like a Medicine Man running a Ghost Dance. You may have some theological notions about the acceptability of the Golden Rule in modern business life—but not your respectable dentist. He can't give you a square deal and charge you a reasonable fee for his service, because his respectable profession bars him from such ridiculous benevolence.—Adv.
